

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

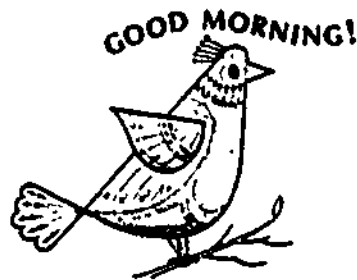

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1½ inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

TODAY: Continued snow with little temperature change; high in 20s.

FRIDAY: Mostly cloudy with chance of snow; high in mid 20s.

Project won't be ready by fall: schools

Snow delays construction of junior high additions

The onslaught of heavy snows has slowed construction on the new additions to the three junior high schools in Dist. 21. School officials predict the entire project will not be completed by next fall as originally planned.

The $1.8 million additions are to provide extra classrooms besides accommodating new vocational education programs at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said workmen were able to install the foundations for the additions before the snows came last week, but further progress this winter will depend on the weather.

"We'll keep going, but if we continue to have storms like this, we won't be able to make it," Gill said.

A PRIORITY has been placed on completing the addition to Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove first because the new classrooms will be needed in September. The building is operating at near capacity now.

Plans for the new vocational arts program have not yet been finalized, but the superintendent said a coeducational curriculum is being studied.

Courses will be probably be offered, he said, to acquaint girls with carpentry skills needed around a home and cooking classes for boys likely will be available.

"We'll probably set it up to give students exposure to general home arts the first year and offer specialized courses the second year," Gill said.

The Watson Construction Co. began work on the additions the first of November.

THE NEW facilities are being financed with funds remaining from the 1970 Dist. 21 referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools, both completed this year, and to construct the vocational education wings at the junior high schools.

Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated to the district by builders, about $300,000 in referendum funds remain unused.

The special education monies may be used for the junior high additions because the new wings will include some classrooms for special education students.

Liebling annex court case date set Jan. 18

A new court date, Jan. 18, has been set for a decision on whether a group of Prospect Heights homeowners objected too late to Wheeling's illegal annexation of the Arnold Liebling property.

The court has already ruled Wheeling's 1971 annexation was illegal but the one final objection is holding up a resolution of the case on the Circuit Court level.

The property in question is on the east side of Wheeling Road, south of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church. Wheeling had rezoned the property for apartments. It is now a vacant field.

Applications coming in for hospital board seats

At least one dozen Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents have applied for a seat on the board of directors of the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon yesterday said he has received applications from three Buffalo Grove and nine Wheeling residents. "I do have a number of names that have been submitted, and have been holding off until after the holidays," he said.

After the first of the year, Scanlon said he will call a meeting of the applicants. He said a representative from the hospital will explain the duties of a director, and then the applicants will be able to decide if they want the position.

Heritage Park sledding restricted

Sledding on the sled hill at Heritage Park is restricted to daylight hours so park district personnel can be present to supervise.

The Wheeling Park District board decided to limit sledding activities because of a recent accident on the hill. Signs will be posted warning youngsters that all sledding must be supervised.

The park board also met in executive session to discuss land acquisition.

According to Scanlon, there will be no screening committee choosing the board of directors. He said the applicants will be able to decide among themselves how to fill the seven seats on the board.

THREE OF THOSE seats are to be filled by Buffalo Grove residents, with the remaining four directors coming from Wheeling. This division is designed to represent the population that will primarily be served by the proposed 223-bed hospital facility.

The board of directors is expected to become actively involved in the planning for the proposed hospital. Developers of the satellite branch are now preparing feasibility studies on the project, but will need the directors before plans are presented to the state for approval.

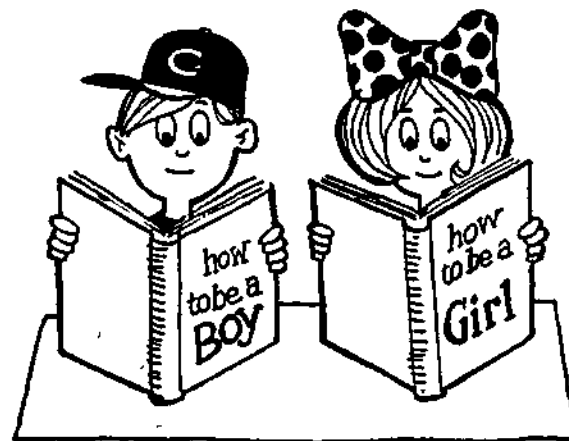

Since the hospital is proposed as a satellite facility, the board of directors will be overseen by a larger board governing the operation of both hospitals.

SCANLON SAID he had little problem finding applicants for the hospital board. In fact, he said he ran out of application forms.

The Buffalo Grove applicants were recruited through St. Mary's Church, while Wheeling residents were told to pick up application forms from the village clerk.

Scanlon declined to release the names of the applicants, saying he could not remember who had applied. He said more information will be available after he meets with the applicants.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

Jaycees seek awards week nominees

The Wheeling Jaycees are seeking nominations for their annual Jaycee Week awards to be presented at the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast Jan. 26.

Mike Moran, breakfast chairman, said Wheeling residents are invited to make nominations for the distinguished service award. "Anybody somebody feels has done a lot of service to the community is eligible," he said. "It's just based on service to the community."

Traditionally, the Jaycees have also honored teachers in School Districts 21 and 214 with an outstanding young educator award. This year, however, a new award for an outstanding law enforcement officer will take its place.

MORAN SAID THE education award is being dropped "primarily because the school district goes beyond the village limits. So many of the teachers are not residents of the village. We just thought we'd do this as a change," he said.

Nominations for the law enforcement award should be based on "dedication of service and personal involvement with the community," said Moran, who is a member of the village police and fire commission.

All nominations will be reviewed by a Jaycee screening committee which will make the final decision on the awards.

ACCORDING TO MORAN, the awards are designed "to honor the unheralded people who are making contributions to the community and to emphasize the importance of community involvement by the local citizenry."

The breakfast chairman urged residents to participate in the nominating process so the awards would be truly representative of the community.

Last year the distinguished service award was presented to Wheeling Park Dist. Supt. Dave Phillips. The outstanding young educator award was given to Frank Dobler, Wheeling High School's choral director.

This year's awards will be presented at the prayer breakfast at 10 a.m. Jan. 26 at the Fireplace Restaurant, 604 N. Milwaukee Ave.

All nominations should be sent to the Wheeling Jaycees, Post Office Box 7, Wheeling.

Fire destroys store in Elk Grove

A spectacular blaze last night destroyed a 100-year-old barn used as a retail store by Berthold's Nursery on Devon Avenue in Elk Grove Village.

The fire, which began about 4:30 p.m., quickly consumed the aged structure, causing an estimated $150,000 damage. Flames from the fire were visible for some distance from the nursery sight. No injuries were reported.

Law limits youth drinking

Nineteen and 20-year-olds won't be able to drink beer and wine where liquor is sold in Schaumburg — or will they? Village officials have passed a law preventing anyone who is 19 or 20 from drinking in an establishment that also sells hard liquor. But the state liquor control commission says the law is illegal. It's an attempt to "deny rights granted by the legislature," said commission official Thomas Murphy. "Our position is that the state law granting 19 and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allows them to buy these beverages (beer and wine) wherever they are sold," he said.

C&NW backing transit plan

The Chicago and North Western Ry. yesterday began its own campaign for passage of the March 10 Regional Transit Authority referendum. C&NW commuters were given leaflets headlined "A message to our riders concerning the Regional Transportation Authority." It described the RTA as "a good bill (that) . . . once it is in operation, will serve the interests of all citizens in the six-county metropolitan area — including you, our riders." The C&NW also urged riders "to keep an open mind on the RTA and to be certain that you have the facts necessary to make a judgment that is in your own interest as a user of public transportation."

Council supports RTA

The Council of Governments of Cook County, an association of local governmental agencies, also endorsed RTA yesterday. Council chairman Edgar Vaneman, the mayor of Evanston, said the group favors the RTA proposal even though it would have liked to see a larger RTA board for more suburban representation and establishment of a separate transit planning agency — Sec. 2, Page 2

Airline pilots will post "informational" pickets at O'Hare Airport tomorrow to protest federal fuel policies that have forced cutbacks in airline jobs. ### Appeal to commerce commission

Voters' group asks telephone service rate cut

by LEA TONKIN

The Independent Voters of Illinois launched a surprise attack on Illinois Bell Telephone Co. on Thursday afternoon, calling on the Illinois Commerce Commission to slash telephone service rates by $24 million dollars.

A brief filed with the ICC by the IVI and Ellis Levin, IVI consumer affairs director, cited examples of Bell's accounting and operating practices in its request for lower service rates. A commission ruling is expected this week on the telephone company's bid for $81.4 million in higher service rates.

ARAM HARTUNIAN, attorney for the IVI, charged that Bell made several undisclosed campaign contributions to political candidates. Bell gave preferential treatment to the favored officials, and tried to write the expense off to the public, according to Hartunian.

"During the (ICC) hearings, IVI attempted to obtain the details of these contributions from Illinois Bell, without success," Hartunian continued. "The commerce commission refused to require Bell to disclose this information."

Hartunian said a $15.2 million cut in Illinois Bell service rates is justified "for a number of reasons." He listed advertising expenses and prices paid to the supplier Western Electric as among the costs.

The total service rate cutback should amount to $24 million, said Hartunian. "It is based on our view that Bell failed to comply with the court order for proving a $7 million item," he said. This item is the licensing fee paid to the parent firm American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T). He referred to an Illinois Supreme Court decision in October which disallowed Bell expenses for charitable contributions, lobbying activities and company-sponsored memberships in civic clubs for rate-making purposes.

"THE LOBBYING expenses Bell reported to the Commerce Commission are about one tenth of what has actually been spent to get Illinois Bell the government support it has wanted," said Madeleine Rueckberg, IVI director.

Windfall profits paid to Bell suppliers cost the Illinois telephone users more than $6 million annually, the IVI brief states. The group charges that the advertising and public relations expenses have little justification. Advertising costs are more than six times higher than necessary to meet Bell's objectives, IVI charges. The group also criticized Bell's charitable donations.

A spokesman for Illinois Bell was sharply critical of the IVI announcement. "Having had its day in court, the IVI has now decided to go public with the same bunkum it has already presented to the ICC," the spokesman said.

"To do a rerun of this nonsense on the very eve of the commission's decision is nothing but a ploy — and a brazenly improper one at that." The ICC has held more than 70 public hearings over the past 13 months on Bell's rate increase bid, the spokesman continued. "In the final analysis, rhetoric is no substitute for evidence, and you can count on the public to spot the difference," he said.

Social Security deadlock clearing

The House-Senate deadlock over an 11 per cent Social Security increase may be resolved before Congress adjourns this weekend. Committee chairmen from both houses of Congress said they buried some of their past sharp differences and held a friendly meeting to work on a compromise. A conference meeting has been scheduled for this afternoon to work on the bills.

GAO eyes spending on Nixon home

While most of the $1.4 million spent on President Nixon's homes was justified, there were some questionable government outlays that perhaps the President should have paid, the Government Accounting Office said yesterday. The GAO questioned only about $40,000 of the money spent on the San Clemente estate.

Nixon orders impounded funds released

President Nixon yesterday ordered the release of $1.1 billion in impounded funds for health and education programs. Involved are funds appropriated by Congress for such things as grants for compensating education programs, vocational education, health manpower, mental health, education for the handicapped and programs on alcoholism.

Steel price increases are sought

Steel corporation chairmen told government price controllers yesterday they would need a price increase of up to 10 per cent to keep up with economic conditions, although they did not seek that large an increase. Stewart Court, chairman of Bethlehem Steel told the Cost of Living Council that economic controls have depressed prices to a point where steel manufacturers lack incentive to increase production.

Drug rules could mean big savings

From Herald news services

The government took action Wednesday that could have the effect of bringing down the cost of drug prescriptions for everyone.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger announced regulations aimed at inducing doctors to prescribe low-cost drugs in place of identical — but higher priced — brand name drugs.

Under the plan, the government will reimburse pharmacists for prescription drugs only at the lowest price at which the drugs are available.

Initially, the regulations will affect only drugs prescribed under federal programs such as Medicare and Medicaid, as well as the Defense Department's program of health care for dependents of military personnel.

Government experts feel the long-range spin-off will be doctors getting in the habit of prescribing drugs by their generic, or chemical, names rather than by brand names. That would bring cost-savings to all patients in an industry in which Americans spend $10 billion annually.

The government currently spends $1.3 billion on drugs, directly or through reimbursement, and the regulations are expected to cut that 5 to 8 per cent.

The prescribing of drugs by brand name — when identical drugs are available at much lower cost — has been a controversy for years, with critics such as Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., charging some brand name drugs sell for 30 times as much as their unbranded twins.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has estimated consumers could save several hundred million dollars annually if doctors would prescribe by generic name, and pharmacists would supply the low-cost-price drug.

There was quick dissent of sorts to the new regulations, with Joseph Stetler, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association saying the FMA rejects "the notion that all drugs are interchangeable," and American Medical Association chairman Dr. James Sammons saying the AMA would accept the change as long as there was "absolute, irrefutable, demonstrable, scientific evidence" that the low-cost drugs are the therapeutic equal of the high-cost drugs.

Administration asks voluntary gas rationing

From Herald news services

Americans will be asked not to buy more than 10 gallons of gasoline a week to ease the fuel shortage — instead of having formally imposed rationing — emergency officials said Wednesday.

William E. Simon, President Nixon's energy adviser, is expected to make the plea in a morning news conference today. The request for voluntary action is the latest government step in a campaign to head off gasoline rationing.

Simon went to Capitol Hill Wednesday night for an unusual meeting with House and Senate conferees working on an emergency energy bill.

Simon is reported to have tried to convince the lawmakers that Nixon wants to avoid gasoline rationing — the only power freely given in the bill — and does not want congressional control over his power to set up other energy conservation programs that would prevent rationing.

The administration announced a series of actions earlier designed to give oil corporations bigger profits for further exploration, but at the same time proposed an excess profits tax as a safeguard against "windfall profits" due to the energy crisis.

A short time later, the Cost of Living Council raised the Dec. 1 base price ceiling on domestic crude oil by $1 per barrel, which it estimated would increase the filling station cost of a gallon of gas-line by 2.3 cents by February. The ceiling applies to an estimated 75 per cent of present domestic crude oil production.

But all price increases above the old Dec. 1 ceiling — including those authorized by the Cost of Living Council — would be subject to Nixon's proposed excess profits tax under a complex pricing formula published by the Treasury Department. Under previous anti-inflation guidelines, any basic price increase can be passed along to the consumer on a dollar-by-dollar basis.

The twin administration actions coincided with Senate approval by an 86-2 vote of legislation that would create a Federal Emergency Energy Administration until mid-1975 as a successor to the White House Federal Energy Office headed by Simon.

House-Senate conferees meanwhile removed a series of major obstacles to final congressional action on the President's request for emergency energy powers.

Nixon announced the proposal for a temporary, five-year excess profits tax on major oil corporations after a White House meeting with Simon and with his Cabinet-level task force on energy policy.

The administration seemed to be preparing the public for a tax increase on retail gasoline sales with release of a study showing that a 30-cent-per-gallon tax would reduce gasoline consumption by 11 to 15 per cent.

Sen. Sam Ervin...

Melvin Laird...

Familiar faces fade out

From Herald news services

The man who became an overnight Washington institution and kind of national folk hero after 19 years in the U.S. Senate will not be back when his term expires in January, 1975.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., the Bible-quoting, eyebrow-arching chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, cited his age — 77 — in a surprise announcement on the Senate floor that he would not seek re-election.

Ervin, first appointed to the Senate in 1954, earned a reputation as the Senate "lawyer" for southern lawmakers trying to block civil rights legislation, but was also admired for his battles for individual liberties.

He said he would retire with his wife to Morganton, N.C., to "watch the sun set in indescribable glory."

From Herald news services

As he said he would after confirmation of Gerald Ford as vice president, presidential counselor Melvin Laird has resigned. He'll leave effective Feb. 1.

President Nixon accepted with "deepest personal regret" the departure of Laird, who will become senior counselor for national and international affairs for Reader's Digest magazine.

Laird, a former Wisconsin congressman and defense secretary in Nixon's first term, took his White House command post in the midst of Nixon's Watergate troubles.

He returned to government service June 6 to take over the duties of domestic adviser John R. Ehrlichman, who resigned April 30 under the pressure of the Watergate disclosures.

Tapes: some cleared, more sought

From Herald news services

While President Nixon was upheld in claims about some of his Watergate tapes, the Senate Watergate Committee was seeking literally bushels more of them.

U.S. Chief District Judge John Sirica, in a five-page order, ruled that all of two presidential tapes and part of a third be withheld from the Watergate grand jury because they did not deal with Watergate.

Of the three tapes, he said only one 33-minute portion of one dealt with Watergate and should be forwarded to prosecutors. That was a segment of a June 30, 1972 conversation between Nixon and former Attorney General John Mitchell, just before he quit as Nixon's campaign director.

All other content was protected on Nixon's claim of executive privilege.

Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski accepted the decision, saying Judge Sirica did what he was asked and there would be no appeal to his findings.

The tapes were among nine originally subpoenaed by the grand jury. Four already have been sent to the grand jury by Sirica, and the White House announced that the other two never existed.

Meantime, the Watergate committee subpoenaed tapes and documents of 481 White House meetings and phone calls relating to the Watergate investigation; 69 documents relating to the milk case in which it's said the dairy industry got government concessions for big Nixon campaign donations; and 37 documents relative to such items as Howard Hughes' $100,000 gift handled by Nixon friend Charles "Bebe" Rebozo.

The committee also asked for anything relating to meetings Nixon had with his top aides between Jan. 1, 1971 and Dec. 19 of this year.

In all, three subpoenas were issued, totaling 69 pages. They ask for the materials to be delivered on Friday, Jan. 4.

The White House was said to have "graciously agreed" to accept them, but anxious to keep a low profile on dealing with them. Committee counsel Sam Dash said that would be honored.

Presidential attorney Samuel Powers, however, said it would be a "rather difficult question to decide" whether the White House would produce all the materials sought.

He said it "would almost shut down" the entire executive branch of government to cope with the work that would be involved.

In related developments:

• Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., of the House Judiciary Committee said he had selected a man with "a Republican background" as special counsel to head impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, and would name his choice today.

• The Carnation Co. and its board chairman, H. Everett Olson, became the latest corporation and corporate executive to plead guilty to illegal political donations, admitting giving $8,900 to 1972 Republican presidential and congressional campaigns. The milk company was fined $5,000, Olson $1,000.

Jury finds Ford and GM innocent of conspiracy

From Herald news services

After almost seven hours of deliberation, a federal court jury in Detroit cleared General Motors and Ford of charges they conspired in 1969 and 1970 to fix prices in the multi-billion auto fleet sales market.

The innocent finding ended a major phase of what Justice Department lawyers called the biggest criminal conspiracy case ever filed against U.S. automakers.

Separate charges are still pending in federal court in Chicago, with 38 states and five fleet customers suing for more than $2 billion in damages in price-fixing charges. A guilty finding in Detroit would have increased the auto companies' chances of having to pay out.

The fleet market — where 10 or more vehicles are sold at one time to a single customer — accounts for 12 of every 100 car sales and is valued at better than $2.5 billion a year.

The Justice Department argued it had proved through auto company records and testimony of automotive officials that there was a conspiracy in 1969 and 1970 to drop discounts — averaging about $250 a car — that formerly had been given to large volume fleet customers.

Automakers' attorneys contended there was no conspiracy at all, but "independent assessment and reaction to the pricing moves of its competitors" by both Ford and GM.

According to the government, the two companies announced almost simultaneously on May 21, 1970, that they were eliminating price concessions as a means of competition in the fleet market.

Mideast peace talks tomorrow

From United Press International

The Soviet and Egyptian delegations arrived in Geneva Wednesday for the first formal Middle East peace conference in 25 years amid new charges by Israel of Syrian war atrocities. Unprecedented security measures were ordered because of fears of Palestinian terrorist attacks.

Also taking part in the crucial five-nation conference scheduled to open Friday are the United States, Jordan and Israel. Syria also was invited but announced Tuesday it would boycott the meeting because it said indications are that the conference would be sidetracked onto issues not pertinent to Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war.

An Israeli spokesman in Geneva, however, accused the Syrians of murdering 42 Israeli prisoners of war and said the mistreatment of other captives in the October war was one of the main reasons Syria decided to boycott the talks.

The conference will be under the chairmanship of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as co-chairmen.

Adventurer Sir Edmund Hillary now a school builder

Conqueror of Everest lives beneath his mountain with a new challenge

by JOE SWICKARD

"He isn't remembered as the man who went up Everest. He didn't just go up and get out; he came down and stayed. They know him because of what he's done for them."

It has been 20 years since Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norkay, his Sherpa guide, became the first men to climb Mt. Everest. Since then, Hillary has not deserted Nepal nor the Sherpas.

Hillary, who spoke this week at the Buehler YMCA in Palatine, is a man of two eras. He is perhaps the last of the great individual explorers and conquerors. He is now a builder of schools and hospitals for the Sherpa tribe of Nepal.

Hillary ranks with Perry, Amundsen and others who took ultimate challenges personally. They pushed themselves to their goal. Men on the moon don't really compare to their efforts. Hillary, Perry and Amundsen did not arrive in machines pushed by teams.

BUT HE HAS GONE beyond the others by staying. He builds and helps fund and equip schools and hospitals in the region.

The quote at the beginning of this story came from a young man in the Buehler audience. He had been in Nepal and said he was returning as soon as he could. He knew of Hillary through his travels and came to hear him. It is the schools in Nepal that will remain with the Sherpas, he said, longer than the climb.

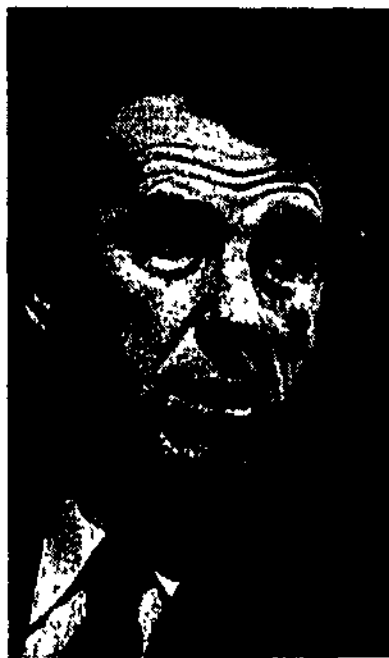

Yet it was the climb and the way in which it was done, that made it possible for Hillary to build.

He spoke of the recent Italian climb of Everest with little respect.

"As I see it, they spent vast sums of money and used massive amounts of technical equipment, including two helicopters, just to duplicate what we did 20 years ago: place two men on the summit," he said.

HILLARY SPEAKS quietly and with assurance. His face is lined and craggy. His hands and feet are large, almost out of proportion to his imposing stature. He can afford to underplay his achievements.

"There is a modern trend over the past decade to run expeditions with vast supplies and technical support of all sorts. I think it's ridiculous. I would like to see a return to the small expedition where each individual can form a relation with the mountain," he said.

SIR EDMUND HILLARY, 20 years after his successful climb of Mt. Everest, continues his relationship with the mountain and the local Sherpa tribesmen.

It is this personal involvement that is important to him, and he returns to the theme frequently.

"Individual members should become involved with the mountain," he reiterated.

Hillary used the words "understand," "respect," "enjoy," and "association" time and again when speaking of climbing.

He said he could "see the point" of the Italian military conquest of Everest, but it was plain he felt they failed in one sense. "You have to become intimate with the mountain when you do it," he said.

UNSAID, BUT CONVEYED, was his impression that the Italians with their Hercules helicopters "assaulted" Everest.

Hillary has maintained his relation with the area, and strengthened it. Several months a year, he said, are spent with the Sherpas. He proudly shows the photograph of the Sherpa youth who placed highest in the Nepal university examinations recently.

He spoke of his new relation to Everest: "I returned to the old base camp last year. I thought it would be fun to see it again. But, it was frightening to recognize the trash, the empty cans, the old batteries we threw away 20 years ago."

It is just within the last 10 years, he said, that man has learned to clean away his technological droppings.

Hillary showed slides to the Buehler group of friends, staff members and children in awe of him. His tone was slightly deprecating when speaking of his 1953 climb. The shots of the schools and local Sherpa teachers, though, brought out true pride.

His efforts are not the doings of some great white father come down from the mountain. He tells of the Sherpa teachers and principals for the schools. The land, he points out, is chosen by the village and the work is cooperative.

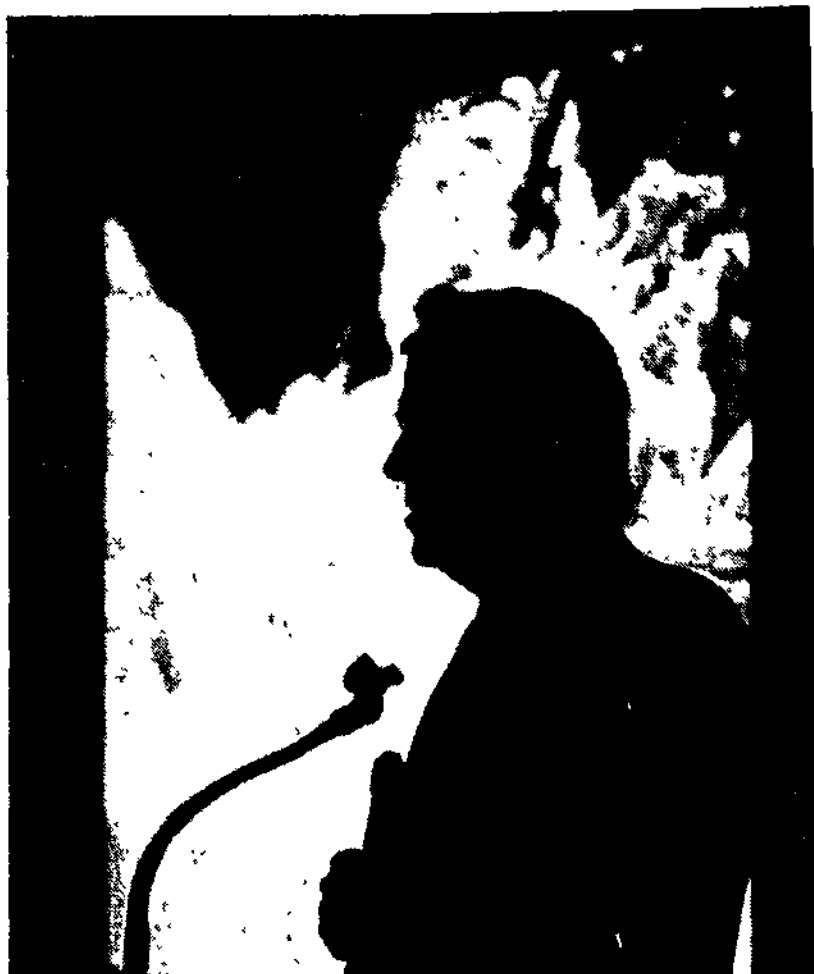

HILLARY WAS CHALLENGED directly from a member of the audience. What was Hillary doing, the man asked, promoting opening of the wilderness when many groups were fighting to leave them unchanged.

"I see life has to be, to some degree, a matter of compromise. If you are willing to work and carry your loads and sweat a little bit, they should be able to go into the wilderness," he said.

But, he said, once a path, a bridge is established, the wilderness is gone.

"Make it hard. Let some people die. There is nothing like a few deaths to make people more careful. There can be a compromise. Let some areas be available to the hiker and let some be very hard," he said.

There is, for "just a farm boy" from New Zealand, enjoyment and then there is an experience through intimacy and involvement.

"I WOULD LIKE to see a return to the small expedition," says Sir Edmund Hillary, "where each individual can form a relationship with the mountain."

U of I trustees seek tuition hike

ALLERTON PARK, ILL. (UPI) — The University of Illinois trustees Wednesday voted to increase tuition $60 a year starting next fall, a raise of 12 per cent for Illinois students who now pay $496 annually.

The increase, approved by a 6-2 vote, is about 6 per cent more than the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommended to all Illinois schools earlier this month.

Either the BHE or Illinois legislature can veto or reduce the increase.

University of Illinois Pres. John Corbally said the increase is necessary because the BHE's recommended budget provides the university with $9 million less than the school requested. He said the tuition increase will provide $1 million more in revenues each year.

Tuition at the University of Illinois has climbed rapidly since 1969. During the 1968-69 school year it was $170 annually for in-state students. In 1969-70 it was $246, in 1970-71 it was $396 and in 1972-73 it increased to the current $496.

Under the new increase, tuition for students who are not Illinois residents goes to $1,546 a year. The raise also applies to students at the U of I's medical school in Chicago, who pay varying tuitions.

The board which governs all the state's public universities, passed a budget earlier this month which recommended all schools increase tuitions by about 6 per cent.

Centex tells village 'no' to annexation fee request

by JOE FRANZ

Centex Homes Corp., which has proposed building 940 units on the Hank Farm, does not plan to pay Buffalo Grove a $100-per-unit annexation fee, thus the village will lose $94,000 in revenue.

The fee has been paid by almost all recent builders annexing property into the village. Morton Kaplan, an attorney for Centex, told the plan commission Tuesday night the fees are "outside the realm of reasonableness."

The number of units proposed, Kaplan said, would make the cost to the developer prohibitive. If the village insists on collecting the fees as a condition for approving the annexation, Kaplan said Centex may decide to build the project in unincorporated Lake County instead.

The project has already been approved by the Lake County Board, thus the developer could build the project under county zoning should Buffalo Grove reject it.

WITH THE exception of the Hawthorn development, which was approved last spring, Centex is the only developer that has refused to pay the annexation fees. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the village is not legally required to collect the fees and the village board can waive them at its discretion.

In the case of the Hawthorn development, which calls for 1,234 units, Larson said the fees were waived because the developer could have annexed to Wheeling if Buffalo Grove had turned the project down. If the fee had been paid the village would have received $123,400.

Larson said the fees are only a guideline and the village negotiates with developers in an attempt to obtain them. Since Centex has already received approval from Lake County, he said the village's negotiating position is weak.

"They have put themselves in a very strong position because they can build the project whether we (village) approve it or not," Larson said.

IF THE VILLAGE insists on the fees and the developer builds under county zoning instead he said the development could turn out to be a liability for Buffalo Grove. Even though the project would not be in the village, it might still be called on for some services, he said.

In addition to the annexation fee question, Centex also does not plan to conform to the village's resolution that asks for donations to local schools and parks.

The owner of the Hank Farm, prior to giving Centex an option to buy, agreed to donate $39,000 to Aptakisic-Tripp School Dist. 102. Centex, however, refuses to pay an additional $71,000 to $75,000, estimated to be the amount required for schools under the resolution.

MICHAEL DI VINCENZO, superintendent of Dist. 102 said Tuesday night since Centex is seeking annexation, the village should require the firm to conform to the resolution. When the agreement for the $39,000 was made two years ago, Di Vincenzo said the school district tried, but was unable to get additional money. The village has more "legal leverage" than the school district, and might be able to get more money, he said.

In response to Di Vincenzo's remarks, Kaplan said, "There is no room to pay that demand. An agreement was reached and I think he (Di Vincenzo) is taking advantage to try to get more because we are planning to come to the village."

Centex has said the tax money generated by the development will be more than adequate to support the schools. However, because of a tax lag, it can take six to 18 months for the school districts to get the needed money to meet initial operating expenses.

Park Director Stan Crosland said Tuesday night that under the resolution Centex would be required to provide 17.55 acres for recreation. Centex' plan designates only 10.17 acres for this purpose, none of which is set aside for preschoolers.

WHILE THERE may be additional recreation areas, Crosland said the plan does not show them. He has requested that Centex submit a detailed plan of all park areas.

Several members of the village board recently said the project should not be annexed unless Centex agrees to the additional donations. Other members, however, said while they favor negotiating with the developer for the donations, they will not vote against annexation should Centex continue to refuse.

The Hank Farm is north of Chevy Chase Country Club and will consist of 580 townhouses and 380 condominiums. The project, called Winston Park North is expected to generate more than 3,000 persons.

After the plan commission makes a recommendation on the project, it will go to the village board for its review.

Volunteer school helpers racking up the man-hours

Parents in School Dist. 21 are donating hundreds of hours of their time each week to work regularly as volunteer helpers in local schools.

A recent survey shows volunteers put in an average of 1,158 hours per week. They serve as classroom aides, library helpers, room mothers, "motor moms," "picture ladies," learning center aides and perform a variety of other tasks in the schools.

The greatest amount of regular volunteer hours is put in by parents of children at Poe School in Arlington Heights, Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove and Kilmer School, also in Buffalo Grove. Volunteers at these schools all work an average of over 100 hours per week.

Volunteer participation at other schools in the district is also high except at Holmes and London junior high schools.

OVERALL, DIST. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he believes that the number of volunteers working at buildings is "tremendously large" for a school district the size of Dist. 21.

Commenting on the parent service to the schools, Gill said, "I guess they're just nice people who really want to make a contribution to the community and the school district. They are very generous with their time and most of them are very very competent."

Gill stressed that the recent survey of volunteer hours contributed to the district does not include the great amount of time and effort donated by local PTA and PTO groups.

Actually, the superintendent said, the organized volunteer program began with the efforts of members of parent-teacher organizations.

The organized volunteer program was set up with a half-time paid volunteer coordinator about five years ago. Prior to that, Gill said, PTA and PTO members served in the schools and coordinated activities without pay.

The current volunteer coordinator for Dist. 21 is Betty Chase. Her office is located in the district administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Height variation granted for last Cambridge building

A height variation for the final building at Cambridge-on-the-Lake in Buffalo Grove has been approved by the zoning board of appeals.

The zoning committee approved the variation Tuesday night. The matter will now go to the village board for its review.

The developer, Richard J. Brown Inc., requested a variation because the building cannot be built to conform with the village's height ordinance. Village ordinances state a multi-family structure, such as Brown has proposed, should be a maximum of 45 feet, or four stories, whichever is less.

Zoners will recommend the board approve a variation allowing the developer to go to a maximum of 49½ feet. According to law, the zoners can grant the developer a 10 per cent variation.

Earlier, Brown requested permission to make the building slightly taller than 50 feet. Chief Building Inspector William Detmer said because that large a variation could not be granted, the developer agreed to put the parking level deeper into the ground.

PRIOR to the zoning board's request, the parking level was more than half above grade, which officials said constituted an additional story. Because the building has four residential floors, with the parking it became a five-story building. Now that the parking has been put more than half below grade, the building is considered only four stories.

Although the final building will be somewhat lower than the existing structures in the development, officials said it will not be readily noticeable because it is being built on somewhat higher ground.

The taller structures are not in violation of building codes because the more restrictive height ordinance was passed after they were built.

Last summer the village board approved a change in the final phase of the development. The new plan calls for a building about 600 feet long that will consist of 80 condominiums. Originally, the final phase was to consist of two six-story buildings, about 400 feet long.

The change in the development will reduce the number of units from 512 to 382. The developer said the original plan called for mostly small units, while the new plan will have all larger units. The change was requested because the larger units were selling better, the developer said.

Parked autos slow snowplows

Wheeling residents are asked to observe village parking regulations and keep their cars off streets during heavy snowfalls.

Village Mgr. George Passolt yesterday said the snowplows had some problems clearing the streets because of parked cars.

"There were a lot of cars parked on the streets. The plow has to go around them and you plow them in, and you wind up with the streets not properly plowed," he said.

Passolt said the police had to travel through subdivisions and use the public address system to ask people to move their cars.

Village ordinance prohibits parking on any streets at any time within 12 hours of a snowfall of three inches or more.

"It is against the law, and it would help speed up the snow plowing operation if the citizens would remember to keep their cars off the street at this time," Passolt said.

THERE'S NO REASON WHY snow should stop Fran Kurka, a crossing guard, taking a break from her duties. The novel makes it worth sitting down until the kids come, despite the cold and wind and snow.

School news notes

Kindergarten students in Jo Simpson's class at Whitman School, Wheeling, are truly giving of themselves this Christmas.

The children recently presented their parents with a decorated grab bag containing the names of seven jobs they were willing to perform.

Chores included in the grab bags were dusting furniture, shoveling snow, drying dishes, picking up toys, making beds and a special job card allowing parents to assign the children a job of their choice.

In turn, parents have been visiting the school, taking part in art, math, singing, motor and reading activities.

Sixth grade students at Riley School, Arlington Heights, have been collecting Campbell soup can labels since the beginning of the school year in hopes of earning a tape recorder for the school.

The Campbell Soup Co. offered to donate the tape recorder if the student could collect 2,350 labels by Dec. 15.

Students reached their goal and have mailed the labels to the soup company.

It is not known when the tape recorder will arrive, but students are already making plans to use the machine in their classroom for varied activities, including recording original stories they will write.

As part of the schedule of holiday activities at Longfellow School, Buffalo Grove, fifth graders in LaDonna Stone-rock's social studies class are researching the Christmas customs of people around the world.

The children are studying the customs of many ethnic groups, particularly those of their own nationalities.

As resource materials, they are using books, film strips, records and most importantly, their parents and grandparents.

A group of students at Whitman School are planning a special Christmas program for their parents scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday at the school.

Children in Maria McClurkin's kindergarten class and Vickie York's first grade class have invited their parents to come to school and sing songs, play games and enjoy cookies which the classes baked themselves.

Extended holiday vacations may foul up school calendars

Is there an unhappier sight in the world than a school official looking out his window at 4:30 in the morning, realizing that the snow will make the roads impassable and that he has only two emergency days left on his calendar?

Of course there is. The fellow shoveling his driveway at 6 a.m. so he can get his car stuck on the way to work is a much sadder case. But, for a moment, consider the less familiar case of that poor school official.

Or, more particularly, consider the case of several local school districts, whose officials now rival the local television weathermen in their ability to foresee future climatic conditions.

Last week, Monday to be exact, Dist. 214 decided to extend Christmas vacation through Jan. 3 and 4 in order to save fuel in the energy crisis. The week before Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 had started things off by doing the same thing.

THE TWO DAYS will be counted as "emergency days." Each district sets aside five days in its calendar as a cushion in case schools have to close because of snow, flood or other problems. Once the five days are used up, a district is expected to make up days it closes, either at the end of the year or during vacations, or lose state school aid.

When Districts 59 and 214 decided to close those two extra days at Christmas vacation, it looked as if the odds were with them. They had not been faced with any long closings because of weather since 1967, the winter had been mild and the chances of needing all five emergency days seemed remote.

by Wandalyne Rice

So, of course, three days after the Dist. 214 board made its decision (and one day after Prospect Heights Dist. 23 followed suit) all the schools in the area had to close because of snow. That reduced the number of available emergency days for the rest of the year to two.

AS THIS COLUMN is written, it's snowing again. All area schools are open, but during the last week our mild winter has suddenly turned cold and snowy.

Now, it may well be just this is all the snow we'll get all winter and that no district will use up its last two emergency days. But, as Supt. Edward Gilbert said last Thursday, "I feel much less secure today than I did yesterday when I had three emergency days."

As a result of all this, I have a suggestion. All students in Dist. 23, 59 and 214 who are hoping for more snow to get them out of school, had better start doing anti-snow dances.

AFTER ALL, what kid would like to make up a day missed in winter because of snow for a day of his spring vacation or, worse, for a day of summer vacation. And if we get too much snow, folks, that's what may happen.

One sidelight: Only one district that has considered closing Jan. 3 and 4 since Thursday's snowfall has decided to extend Christmas vacation. Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 bravely decided to close Jan. 3 and 4 Thursday night — almost in the middle of a snowfall.

Trial by cold

Winter without power proves to be an ordeal

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — For more than 24 frigid hours, neighbors and I have been without electricity — our umbilical cord to heat, hot food, hot water and light.

This ordeal through cold — temperatures in the low teens again Tuesday night — is a prelude to blackouts forecast for this area due to the energy shortage.

This dress rehearsal for life without power comes courtesy of an icy storm that knocked out hundreds of power lines Monday morning. A promise of power in 36 hours does little to ease our discomfort or worries.

Sixty per cent of Fairfield County families are in the same boat. The Red Cross and Salvation Army are manning shelters in schools and churches.

WE'RE KEEPING warm with layers of clothing and wish we could do the same for our hot water heating pipes.

Right now that water is cold and probably slush. Temperatures inside the house are near freezing.

If the heating pipes freeze during the night, they burst. Then comes a flood in the house. No plumber, or heating company will waver against that prospect. Our only hope is good luck.

Inside the house sounds like a mini Niagara Falls. To keep water pipes from freezing, we keep water running. And every so often, we run around and flush the toilets for the same reason.

BUT EVEN those measures aren't without peril. Public health officials say the water may make septic tanks overflow. So you take your choice: a yard full of sewage or frozen toilets and water pipes.

Nancy Nevins down the road has a propane grill in the yard, and keeps neighbors supplied with hot water for coffee. Others are charcoal grilling outside. Ruth Ann Ring, next door, is sharing her firewood.

Eating and sleeping have low priorities. Through the night my son and I took turns keeping the fireplace going. It provides a slim bit of heat that keeps icicles from forming on the fingers, ears and nose.

We have flashlights and candles. We thought we were prepared for such an emergency. A short one, yes. One of this duration, no.

We can't bring back coal furnaces or wood burning stoves. We can just hope to luck out.

Employee relations man values 'human resources'

Companies 'people-oriented'

by LEA TONKIN
Human potential. Personal development. Competence and job satisfaction. They're the stuff that Bill Flock's job is made of.

More specifically, some 3,200 sales service and plant personnel scattered across the country comprise the human resources in his domain. Flock is the general director of employee relations for the Schaumburg-based AM Services Division of Addressograph Multigraph Corp.

Sitting back for a moment in his new office at Walden Office Square, Flock calmly describes how he plans to work himself right out of a job. "In that way, I'm highly self-destructive," he said with a slow smile.

Making better people managers out of employees is Flock's line of work. "It's not an easy job, but it's fun," he added. "And if I can work my way out of a job, then I'll achieve everything I set out to do."

FLOCK RECENTLY gained the AM Services appointment following a stint as employee relations manager at the company's Multigraph Division in Mount Prospect. Now he's working with people who service the company's line of copiers, typesetters, duplicators and other office equipment, and a staff of salespeople for inks and graphics supplies.

"I get my kicks out of managing human relationships; I work with people directly, not just with application forms, books and company manuals," Flock said. Flanked by an impressive set of company manuals, a conflict chart posted on the wall, and a large plant which he says is reputed to be a man-eater, he does have all the trappings of a traditional personnel specialist.

"But employee relations is more than the maintenance of records and hiring," said Flock. "In the past few years, there's been a switch to consideration of human potential."

"Today, people expect, deserve and need the help of their company to become a Horatio Alger, if they want to," said Flock. He's talking about personal career development — allowing an employee to make decisions, including an occasional mistake.

"We're a labor intensive business," adds Flock. "And people, unlike machines, appreciate in value, given the proper input." His job includes counseling sessions at the AM Services training center in Schaumburg, and out in the field. At a recent confrontation session on the West Coast, role-playing was used to bring out understanding between AM sales and service representatives.

"EMPLOYEE RELATIONS shouldn't exist unless it can contribute to profitability," Flock contends. "Turnover goes down, there are fewer conflicts, we have a higher payoff per man in the field, a higher level of stability and motivation through understanding of company policies."

"We've gone through a period of industrial history that started in 1958 with the introduction of Sputnik and the space race," commented Flock. "There was a high degree of mobility in the aerospace industry, and it swept other industries." The idea that transfers motivate employees, and the frantic search for the best college brains in the recruitment crush of the 1960s has been replaced by a more rational way of doing things, says Flock.

"A family feels freer today to say no to a transfer," he says. "A few years ago, it was the kiss of death. What a waste of human resources."

Flock has made eight moves since he was graduated from Ohio State University in 1963. "You get a little tired of this after a while," he said. Companies now understand that competence and satisfaction can be gained through transfer, or by staying with the job at one location, he added.

"EMPLOYEES SHOULD ask whether the company wants you for your ideas, or for your ideas and what you can learn further down the road," he counsels.

Training AM employees to set goals and evaluate their own achievements helps the company achieve improved operating results, Flock contends. "Sure, pay and perks (prerequisites) are still there," he said. "But today to satisfy employees, you've got to satisfy their decision-making and self-actualization needs."

PEOPLE EXPECT, deserve and need help from their companies to become a Horatio Alger, if they want to, says employee relations man Bill Flock. In his post at AM Services Division of Addressograph Multigraph in Schaumburg, Flock heads human resources management for 3,200 employees.

Central Federal opens new office

A new savings and loan association branch will open its doors today in Mount Prospect. The Central Federal Savings of Cicero will open the office at 300 W. Golf Rd. Festivities for the grand opening will begin 10 days later, said Frank J. Kryda, president.

The association's board of directors named Frank J. Kryda Jr. to head the Mount Prospect branch office. He has served as vice president and director of marketing for the association.

Services at the new branch facility will include a drive up window. Parking space is provided.

Founded in 1892, Central Federal Savings has assets of $90 million. It will maintain offices at 5953 W. Cermak at Austin Boulevard in Cicero.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent of curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 96 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 26 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.
- Number of illustrations of males and females.
- Number of stories which depict children involved in activity play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.
- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.
- Are boys allowed to show emotion?
- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?
- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?
- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?
- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?
- Are babysitters depicted in stories?
- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

INSIDE AND OUT — Preliminary architect's plans for the proposed 18,000-seat sports stadium to be built in Rosemont shows how spectators in the $11.5 million arena will have an unobstructed view of the action. ### Des Plaines officials to hear Rosemont mayor speak on stadium

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there.

The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Mannheim Road and Lee Street and that no access to Touhy Avenue is planned.

Rosemont officials have been trying to get a tollway interchange built at the stadium site to ease traffic flow. Stephens also indicated Rosemont plans to seek more than $1 million from the federal government to widen Higgins Road which runs just south of the stadium site.

The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

Schaumburg law limit youths' liquor rights

by PAT GERLACH

Nineteen and 20-year-olds can't buy wine and beer where hard liquor is served in Schaumburg, village officials say.

Yes they can, argues a spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Liquor law revisions adopted in Schaumburg this week prohibit 19- and 20-year-olds from being served beer or wine in restaurants serving hard liquor.

But, the revisions are illegal, said Thomas Murphy of the ILOC.

"Our position is that the state law granting 19- and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allow them to buy these beverages wherever they are sold," he said.

THE SCHAUMBURG ordinance is an attempt to "deny rights granted by the state legislature," he added.

Even though Schaumburg is a home rule community, those powers do not permit a municipality to "deny rights allowed by the state," Murphy said.

Neither Jack Siegel, the village attorney, nor Mayor Robert O. Atcher were available for comment yesterday.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the ordinance will be enforced as part of regular spot checks the police department makes of liquor-serving establishments.

There will be a lot of self-policing by license holders too, Conroy said, adding, it was the people who held full liquor licenses who wanted these restrictions.

The ordinance was written after a meeting of proprietors from businesses holding full liquor licenses.

THE UPDATED village ordinance allows 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase beer and wine in places where only those alcoholic beverages are sold as well as in package liquor stores. But persons under 21 cannot buy or drink beer or wine in establishments where hard liquor is served.

The law also prohibits persons under 21 from entering a tavern unless accompanied by a parent or other adult and does not allow them to purchase either beer or wine.

The ordinance, however, does not restrict those under 21 from entering restaurants or other businesses whose principal purpose is other than serving liquor.

Persons 19 and 20 years old will be able to serve all types of alcoholic beverages, it was added.

Doll show raises $200

More than $200 was raised for the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling Christmas Seal fund drive through a benefit antique doll and toy show.

The show at the Randhurst Shopping Center was prepared by the Lake Michigan Doll Study Club. Funds raised in the campaign support Chicago Lung Assn. research and education programs.

We back Spanish-speaking parley

On Jan. 15 an unprecedented meeting will be held at Harper College in Palatine.

The meeting, sponsored by the college, will involve agencies and individuals who are involved with the Spanish-speaking residents of the Northwest suburbs. The group will discuss what actions to take following a survey of Spanish-speaking persons conducted by the school.

The gathering is unprecedented in that never, at least in recent memory, has a group been gathered together to address specifically the problems of the "invisible minority" who live in the Northwest suburbs.

The Jan. 15 meeting is a valuable first step toward creating greater public awareness of the problems and contributions of Spanish-speaking residents. In addition, we hope the result of the meeting will be development of programs which will speak directly to the Latino community.

Harper College, through the survey it commissioned using $10,000 in state money and $5,000 in local money, already has contributed significantly to the understanding of the nature of the Latino community in the Northwest suburbs.

Whenever any agency, particularly the Northwest Opportunity Center, in the past has appealed for funds, officials of local communities have argued that they had no disadvantaged residents of Spanish origin who needed the center's help. The Harper survey has identified, for the first time, areas where large numbers of Latinos live and has developed information on jobs and income levels.

The Harper survey also has discovered that while many Latinos are scattered throughout the Northwest suburbs, they do have some sense of community identity. In fact, one teacher aide in the basic adult education program at Harper is already identified as a leader in the Latino community.

What is needed now is a handing together of Harper officials, officials of social service agencies, churches and schools to make sure this report does not end up shelved away and forgotten.

Harper officials are already talking about expanding offerings to Spanish-speaking residents. One possibility is a "horizons" program to help Spanish-speaking adults focus on possible changes they can make in their lives.

The Jan. 15 meeting is going to be the place to start the development of new programs. We all hope in the future there will be other, similar meetings — and programs which will bear fruit.

Walker needs Clyde Choate

Gov. Daniel Walker's best investment in his first year as governor may have been that he took Clyde Choate on the weekend after Choate announced he was packing it in as a state representative.

Choate, Southern Illinois protégé of the late Paul Powell, is the Democratic minority leader in the General Assembly. If Democratic expectations for the 1974 elections are realized, the Democrats should have a working majority in the 79th General Assembly which will convene in January, 1975.

And Choate would be the odds-on favorite to become speaker of the House.

After a year in which the legislature took delight in being cantankerous with the governor's office, Walker sorely needs a cooperative legislature in the last two years of his maiden term as governor to establish the kind of record he needs for whatever future campaign he has in mind.

Despite an early animosity between Choate and Walker, the two Democratic leaders found areas of cooperation in the 78th General Assembly, and the minority leader became Walker's strongest champion in the House.

No doubt they discussed other areas of cooperation while sitting in the weeds waiting for the honkers to fly over. At any rate, by the time the hunt was ended, Choate had changed his mind and "unretired" from the legislature, where he has served since 1946.

With Choate in the speaker's chair, it would appear the governor's legislative program would receive a much more cordial welcome than it did this year. Had Choate retired, a Democratic majority of 69 members in the House would have sent visions of the speakership

Choate could also likely accommodate himself to an amicable relationship with the independent-minded Democrats from Chicago and the suburbs who are generally supportive of the governor.

A tough political bargainer, Choate resisted demands of these independents for promises of wider participation in Democratic decisions during the last election as speaker.

The independents, led by Rep. Harold A. Katz of Glenview and voting for Rep. Eugenia Chapman of Arlington Heights for speaker, offered to switch to Choate in return for certain reform promises.

As long as it appeared there was no chance of his being elected, Choate was deaf to their pleas. But he came around quickly when he looked for a fleeting moment that he might be able to pick up the one or two Republican votes which would have made him a minority speaker.

dancing in the heads of just about every Democrat in the House, barring the freshmen.

At the head of the pack undoubtedly would have been Rep. Gerald Shea of Chicago, major donor in the House for Mayor Daley. Walker, with or without Choate as speaker, has problems enough getting Daley's support for his plans. A speaker with one ear cocked for the sound of the mayor's voice could be as troublesome to Walker as Republican Speaker Robert Blair has been.

On the other hand, Choate also works well in harness with Daley and he could provide a buffer between the governor and the mayor to the benefit of both of them.

1976 race shaping up

by ARNOLD B. SAWISIAK

WASHINGTON — When George McGovern declared his presidential intentions almost two years before the 1972 election, he was considered by some to be either naively inexperienced or desperate for attention.

No one has announced for the 1976 election yet, but some of the activity going on now makes McGovern's pre-1972 campaign appear small-like.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., announced months ago that he had set up a committee to explore the possibility of seeking the Republican nomination. Its operations are significant enough to impel the General Accounting Office to call on the Percy committee for regular campaign finance reports.

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., concedes that he is thinking about a 1976 race, which is not particularly decisive, but Phillip Hughes, head of GAO's Federal Elections Office, said last month that a representative of the senator voluntarily offered to start making campaign reports.

John Connally, the former governor of Texas who served in both the Kennedy and Nixon cabinets, switched his party enrollment from Democrat to Republican and shortly thereafter set out on a speechmaking tour, saying the kinds of things and seeing the kinds of people that make it perfectly clear he is looking for presidential backing.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California announced that he would not seek re-election, but coupled that with an offer to make campaign appearances in 1974 for all Republicans who wanted him.

Reagan says he isn't a candidate for anything else, but it was more than an interest in the cotton crop that took him to a meeting with a number of state GOP chairmen in Mississippi last month, before the Memphis meeting of the Republican Governors Association.

And now, Nelson Rockefeller has given up the New York governorship he held for 15 years, declaring that he wanted to spend all his time overseeing the work of two commissions that will study national problems.

As always, Rockefeller says he's keeping his options open. But it does not go unnoticed that those commissions would be ideal vehicles for a politician who is well known nationally and who wants to lay his solutions for national problems before the largest possible public.

All of this is legitimate precampaign activity, but it does come uncommonly early and from a large group of potential candidates. The reason for all this seems obvious.

First, 1976 is one year when presidential aspirants from the party already holding the White House are not likely to wait for the incumbent to anoint a successor. The next Republican nomination, just as the 1952 Democratic nomination, is up for grabs, and the men most interested in it are maneuvering near the starting line to make sure they don't get caught short when the first candidate declares.

Second, the Democrats have no single logical candidate for 1976. Just as Barry

Charles Percy

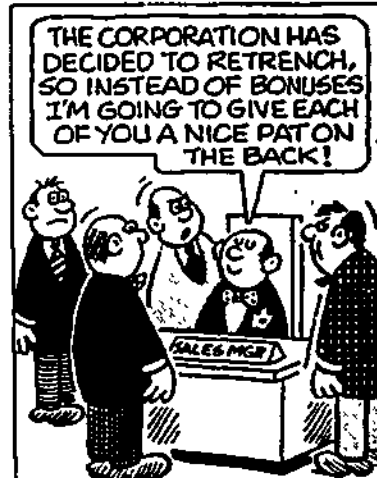

Nelson Rockefeller

Goldwater could not have asked his party for another chance in 1968 after the disaster of 1964, McGovern would be in some difficulty if he sought the Democratic nomination again. While less in the open than the Republicans, a fairly lengthy list of Democrats starting with Mondale are already trying to make themselves known without actually taking the plunge.

So why not just go ahead and announce? Also simple: No one wants to be the first target to be shot down, as George Romney was in 1968 and Edmund Muskie was in 1972. (UPI)

4) give the United Nations control of the 60 million tons of fish taken from the sea annually.

More than 20 nations are drilling for offshore oil along their continental shelves, and U.S. firms have already spent $90 million for the exploitation of deep-sea minerals. Exploitation of the seas has barely begun. At a time when our nation's energy sources have been prevented by ecology maniacs from expanding to meet the ever-growing needs of its industries and become self-sufficient by utilizing the ocean beds near our shores, the President is rushing headlong into treaty negotiations, backed by the support of the Congress. And the official U.S. position is to:

"Renounce all national claims to natural resources of the seabed beyond a point where the high seas reach a depth of 200 meters (218.8 yards) and would agree to regard these resources as the common heritage of mankind."

This "common heritage" nonsense has no basis in law or in fact, but, as even the International Law Association admits, rather expresses a "philosophy" — a thinly veiled rehash of Marxist notions.

With all of the "energy" controls being imposed by the Congress and the President to overcome our energy shortages, does it really appear that they are sincere in serving this nation?

Reader assails UN 'power grab'

While Americans at home are busy preparing to "tighten their belts" in an effort to conserve fuel and heating resources, the biggest international power-grab in the 27-year history of the United Nations is being pulled off with the approval and support of the President of the United States and with the advice and consent of both Houses of Congress. International agreement is sought by the Preparatory Committee for the Law of the Sea Conference, known as the U.N. Seabed Committee, by the spring of 1974. It is a power-grab so gigantic as to:

Fairview School says thank you

Fairview School in Mount Prospect has just completed a Save-a-Thon of Campbell Soup Labels. In case you aren't aware of what that was, let me explain it briefly. The Campbell Soup Company gave elementary schools K-6 all over the country an opportunity to exchange soup labels for audio-visual equipment. Each piece of equipment had a certain number of label values. Fairview School decided to try for a Kodak Slide Projector for 11,350 labels. This was a lot of labels and a lot of soup to eat for our Fairview families — so we decided to have a neighborhood campaign. The Fairview students went out to their neighbors week after week collecting the labels.

The reason I am writing this to you is to thank you for giving Lil Floros the opportunity to help us. I called up Mrs. Floros in October when we started this Save-a-Thon and she was very happy to put our special project in her column. She again was good enough to put it in her column during our last week without my requesting it. As a result the Mount Prospect residents were aware of our

A friend in need — isn't much help

by BARRY SIGALE

"Hey, man! You're live." Say that again. "Lookit here. In your pocket. See?" I saw. It was my check book, a moment ago sitting in my coat pocket, for all to see. Now it was in a stranger's hand. Bye-bye.

Actually, he was just being my friend. In Chicago, that may seem strange. Friends are hard to come by these days, whether they are good friends or bad. And it's just as difficult to get someone to give good advice. Or to help out.

I was standing in a gas station on the outskirts of downtown Chicago, watching as the energy crisis hit me locally. At 46.6 cents per gallon for regular gasoline all that was on my mind was parking my car and walking.

BUT, MY GAS jockey took me away from my pleasant thoughts of the moment. Obviously he was adept at handling a fuel pump. But why he didn't go into pickpocketing full time is something I don't understand.

"I used to be bad," my "friend" said. "When I was young I did all kinds of stuff, like picking dudes' pockets. My advice is for you to keep stuff out of THAT pocket."

He was right, of course. My checkbook and other papers that I had placed in my coat pocket were highly visible, and definitely made an easy target for even the novice Fagan.

As I drove away I checked my other pockets, quickly. I had realized that I was "live" just a few moments earlier. I might have been "dead" by now. Later, a sigh of relief later, I found I had my wallet and all my money.

The moral — and there always is one — to the story is that victims of pickpockets can have their day ruined, not to mention subsequent following days of calling credit card agencies and companies where victims have charge accounts. It is possible that that someone who has stolen you blind very well may be buying items and services at the victim's expense.

IT IS EASY for me to be careless. I have more important things on my mind than making sure my valuables are properly safe on my person. I always carry my wallet in my back pocket. That makes me an easy mark. Especially during the holiday season.

On a recent swing through downtown, it was obvious there were a lot of easy marks walking around. Unbuttoned top coats make the pickpocket's job a little easier. Working by himself or with an accomplice it is quite easy for him to bump into his victim, whisk away a wallet, billfold, etc. A purse is another easy target, though not considered pickpocketing, when taken. That's plain thievery.

Navy Junior ROTC chief plans campaign to save program

by WANDALYN RICE

The head of the Wheeling High School Navy Junior ROTC program is going to be telling students about the advantages of his program in the next few months in order to save it.

The Wheeling NJROTC program, headed by Capt. Adrien Lorentson (U.S. Navy Ret.), has been in existence since 1969. But this year the Navy has put the school on notice that unless 100 students sign up next spring, the program will be phased out.

Right now, Lorentson says, he has about 60 students, including 16 girls, down from about 80 students last year. Even so, Lorentson says he thinks the program will make it. "I think we'll be very close," he says. "I expect that if we get close to the 100 students, it will be all right."

IN ORDER to attract students to the program, Lorentson says he plans to emphasize its advantages. "A good student has a lot of choices," he says. "I think somehow in the past we have not made known to them that they can learn some things and develop some habits in NJROTC that will pay in the years ahead."

A student in the program increases his chances of receiving a Navy scholarship in college, the captain says. In addition, if he or she enters any branch of the military service after graduating from high school, it will be at the third pay grade, rather than the first.

"About 1/3 of our graduates have gone directly into the military," Lorentson says. "Many of them have told me recruit training is a breeze after they've been in NJROTC."

IN ADDITION, students in the program learn some meteorology, astronomy and seamanship. Many students in the program say the most valuable thing is the self discipline and organization they learn, Lorentson says.

One part of the self-discipline does cause a problem in recruiting today's high school student, the captain says. "Hair cuts are a problem," he says. "During scheduling last year we had four or five boys who were interested, but who said they wouldn't join because they had to have hair cuts."

The required hair cuts, he says, "aren't what the Marines call 'white-sidewalls' but the hair does have to be off the collar and off the ears."

ONE REASON the Wheeling program has lost enrollment this year, Lorentson says, is because of the split between Wheeling and newly opened Buffalo Grove High School. "The majority of our students were from Buffalo Grove," he says.

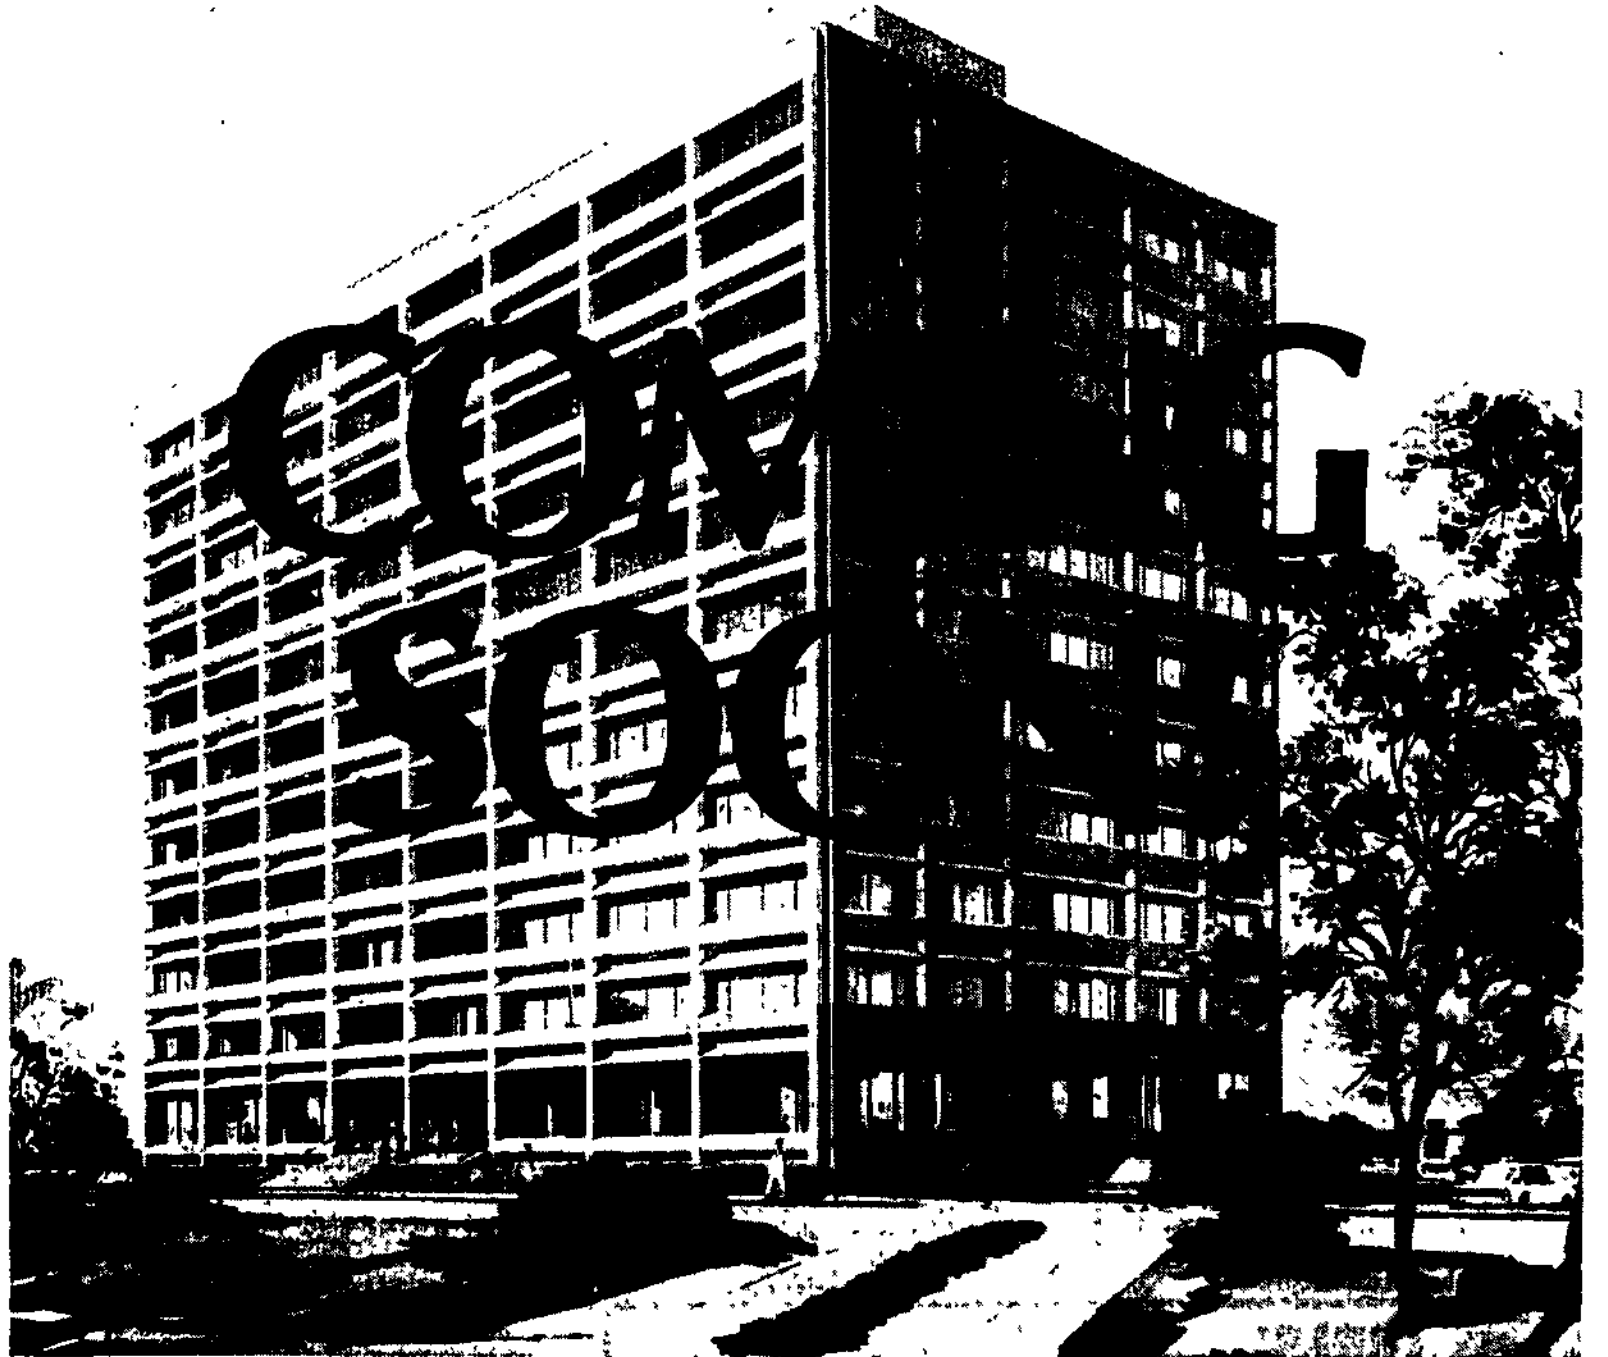

Students can theoretically come to Wheeling for NJROTC from other schools, but Lorentson says that has not been practical. "Just the mechanics of going back and forth are a problem," he says. "Even with Buffalo Grove, a student would lose half a class period coming here for class and half a period going back — we decided it just wasn't helping the youngster."

The Wheeling program is not alone in its tenuous status with the Navy, the captain says. Twenty-nine of the 22 NJROTC programs in the Ninth Naval District are in the same situation.

ONE REASON for the Navy emphasis on enrollment, he says, is the fact that, by law, only 223 schools in the country can have NJROTC programs. "There are many schools, especially in the South, which want NJROTC programs and the Navy is up against the legal limits," he says. "Congressmen from some areas that want programs are pressing to have programs in other areas discontinued."

Next spring's class registration will tell the story for the Wheeling NJROTC program — and Lorentson says he is hopeful that now that all students are from Wheeling that support for the program will grow. "The cadets are the best recruiters," he says.

'I remember the impact'

It was just a year ago that 11 lost their lives in Delta-North Central crash

by KURT BAER

No one story can speak for all the 127 people who were aboard the two jet airlines that collided on a fog-shrouded runway at O'Hare Airport one year ago today.

Ten life stories ended in that fiery early evening crash. An 11th died in a Chicago hospital a short time later.

Each person aboard North Central Airlines Flight 575 bound for Madison, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., and Delta Airlines Flight 64 which had just arrived from Florida, will recall the crash in his own personal terms.

Elsie Delong, 61, of Villa Park, contacted yesterday, retold it this way.

"I remember the impact and trying to get out of my seat. Then everything went black. I was having trouble breathing. And then there was a bright flash — a fire."

THE NORTH CENTRAL DC-9 in which Mrs. Delong was riding had just lifted off the runway when it collided with the Delta plane.

"I jumped out onto the wing and then jumped down on the ground. For a moment I thought it was Lake Michigan because water was shimmering on the ground."

"Moment, moments later the plane exploded."

Mrs. Delong was hospitalized for nine days with second degree burns after the crash. Besides the physical injury, she still carries psychological scars from the crash.

"I'm not what you'd call a good flyer," she says, adding that she has made several airline flights since the 1972 crash. "They've been on bigger planes, but still I've been very uneasy."

In fact, Mrs. Delong is planning another holiday trip to Duluth, Minn., but not aboard North Central.

"I have reservations to leave Friday (tomorrow), but with the weather like it is, I'm not sure I'm going to go."

NINE MONTHS after the crash, the National Transportation Safety Board ruled that the traffic control system at O'Hare was at fault in the collision.

"The failure of the traffic control system to insure separation of aircraft during a period of restricted visibility," is the way it reads officially.

Airport traffic on the runways and taxiways could not be seen from the control tower. Visibility at the time of the accident was 1/4 of a mile, the board found.

Even though the captain of the North Central plane was operating under a clearance from the flight tower, the crew and tower were unaware of the other plane's proximity to the takeoff runway.

It was a human error that took 10 human lives, and left an undying memory in the minds of Mrs. Delong and the other 118 persons who were spared by fate on that O'Hare runway one year ago.

The burned fuselage of the North Central plane sits at O'Hare Airport.

A CHICAGO policeman peers from the wreckage of one of the planes involved in the tragic O'Hare mishap of one year ago today.

Demolition firms hit for pollution

by LEA TONKIN

Hazardous air pollutants at demolition sites may be eliminated through the efforts of the federal Environmental Protection Agency office in Chicago. Four firms in Chicago and Detroit were notified this week of violations of national emissions standards in their wrecking operations, the EPA said. The EPA wants all asbestos materials to be dampened and removed before a building is demolished.

The Chicago firms cited for violations are Speedway Wrecking Co. and Keystone Wrecking Co. The Adamo Wrecking Co. and Cuyahoga Wrecking Co., both of Detroit, were also named in the action.

"Asbestos is an extremely hazardous air pollutant since inhalation of asbestos fibers has been linked to respiratory diseases and mesothelioma, a form of cancer," said Francis T. Mayo, EPA Midwest regional administrator.

Blame the ecologists?

ECO-FREAKS, along with social and economic planners, are blamed by the American Conservative Union's current Battle Line publication for the aggravations of the energy crisis. The back-to-nature lobby interfered with the profitability of the coal mining and petroleum industry, charges the publication. This, along with government wage and price controls, contributed considerably to petroleum shortages, we are told.

"As government regulations dropped the bottom out of the demand for coal, pushing industries and electrical plants to oil and natural gas, demagogic office holders and self-proclaimed spokesmen for the public interests rallied against the shortages, which first appeared in petroleum in 1972, as contrivances of the big oil companies," the report says.

Environmental lobbies are pushing for increased research and development of clean, coal-fired power plants — a fact that's overlooked by the publication. And the complaints about profitability problems in the petroleum industry are somewhat out of line with reality. The Federal Trade Commission's quarterly financial report, released Dec. 12, shows the overall profits after taxes in the petroleum industry climbed to $1,998,000,000 in the third quarter of 1973 as compared to $1,321,000,000 in the same quarter last year.

Outdoor book gifts

UNCLE SAM'S gift giving ideas include publications which will interest outdoor buffs. Virginia Knauer, the President's Director of Consumer Affairs, lists a number of books available from the U.S. Government Printing Office. Among these are "Sport Fishing USA," published by the Commerce Department. This is a $10 book offering descriptions of how sport fish look and act, how to catch them, and how to clean and cook the fish. "Plants, People and Environmental Quality" is another publication, published by the National Park Service and American Society of Landscape Architects Foundation. Available for $4, the publication discusses aesthetic values of plants as well as architectural and engineering uses of plants.

Because of projected population growth

Suburbs will control RTA: legislator

by STEVE FORSYTH

Population growth in the next 20 years will assure suburban control of the proposed Regional Transit Authority, according to a state legislator who supports the RTA referendum.

Rep. James McCourt, R-Evanston, said charges that the city of Chicago will rule the RTA board should be discounted, because population projections show the suburban area will grow to an estimated 6.4 million by 1995.

The RTA bill includes a provision that the board shall be reapportioned after each 10-year federal census, and McCourt said the suburbs are almost guaranteed control of the RTA board in the future.

He said Chicago's present 3.5 million population is expected to grow only 2 per cent in the same time period.

McCourt is one of three Chicago area legislators organizing a group of lawmakers to promote passage of the March 19 RTA referendum. Other organizers are Reps. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, and Bernard B. Wolfe, D-Chicago.

At a sparsely attended organizational meeting yesterday, the three legislators set up a 10-member steering committee of the ad hoc legislative committee, probably to be called RTA Central. The steering committee will include two senators and eight representatives, with equal party representation.

THE AD HOC committee will take action to promote the RTA by having public hearings, setting up a speakers' bureau and preparing a "fact sheet" explaining the details of the RTA bill.

Three public meetings were tentatively agreed upon — one to be in the city, one in the Cook County suburbs and one in the five "collar counties" included in the RTA six-county region.

Six proponents of the legislation said Wednesday that criticism of the RTA bill's wording and charges of Chicago dominance of the RTA board are unfounded.

Jaffe said changes can be made continually by the legislature, which will review the RTA budget each year and monitor the board's activities. As for control, Jaffe said the board will almost certainly be made up of four Democrats and four Republicans, because the four appointees of the mayor will be Democrats, and the suburban appointees will be Republicans.

THE EVEN SPLIT will assure non-partisan decisions on matters such as selection of the chairman (ninth member) of the board, Jaffe said.

Jaffe disputes fellow legislators who have said the RTA referendum should be defeated so more time can be spent preparing a better RTA bill next year. He said failure of the referendum now will prevent support from downstate legislators in the future.

The energy supply crises, increasing environmental pollution and accelerating costs of private transportation demand that the RTA be organized now so planning for the future can begin, Jaffe said.

THE AD HOC committee will meet again Jan. 7 to map specific plans, and Jaffe announced that all meetings, organizational or otherwise, will be open to the public. He said the committee will also be seeking cooperation from citizens' groups and private organizations that have elected to support the RTA.

He referred specifically to a group of leaders of city and county groups who met Monday to discuss RTA. Although the meeting was closed, there are reports that the group may supply as much as $500,000 to promote the RTA referendum.

Thomas Flynn, Democratic candidate for state representative from Niles, asked the new committee to consider formal liaison with Operation — Yes! a suburban group that has already announced plans to promote the RTA. He did not get an enthusiastic response, and later said Operation — Yes! will continue efforts on its own. One of its prime objectives is to organize a program in January with the governor or representatives of his office and state political leaders, to discuss RTA before a suburban audience.

Protest federal fuel cutbacks

Pilots plan 'informational pickets' at O'Hare Airport

"Informational pickets" will be posted by airline pilots at O'Hare Airport Friday to protest federal cutbacks in fuel allocations costing airline personnel their jobs.

Robert G. Rubens, regional vice president of the Airline Pilots Assn., said the decision to picket was apparently made at ALPA headquarters because airlines have announced large layoffs beginning in January.

Rubens said the demonstration may also involve protests against the Mutual Aid Pact, an airline agreement that provides money to carriers being struck. Rubens said that during the recent TWA stewardess strike, TWA received $2 million a day from the other airlines.

PROTESTS ALSO are planned at other major airports throughout the nation in response to the 25 per cent fuel supply cutback ordered by the federal government.

Rubens said airline personnel believe the cutback is discriminatory because no other public transportation system is being cut by such a percentage.

Union representatives from each airline are meeting in a special ALPA executive board meeting at 9:30 a.m. today in Washington, D.C., to consider "wide-ranging efforts to exert all possible influence on the federal government to affect a more adequate and equitable allocation of aviation fuels to the commercial airlines," an ALPA official said.

THERE IS PRESSURE from two airline pilot groups, Rubens said, to walk out during the heavy Christmas holiday travel season in protest of the fuel cutback policy. He said there will have to be convincing reasons for all pilots to agree to a walkout.

Rubens said many airline employees believe the fuel crisis is being used as an excuse to reduce capacities and increase airplane loads for greater profits.

An estimated 68,000 gallons of fuel could be saved each day at O'Hare if Department of Transportation landing procedures were being followed regularly, Rubens said. Under the procedures, planes are kept at 10,000 feet until landing, and are allowed to descend at 210 knots instead of the usual 180. The faster descent eliminates the need for flaps during much of the landing, thus using less fuel.

An official at the O'Hare tower said the faster landing procedure is used occasionally at the airport, but only during moderate or light traffic. He said faster-moving planes require more airspace and more control tower personnel.

RUBENS SAID he also intends to renew efforts to stem airport hijackings and the resultant loss of life. He said the deaths of passengers and crew aboard the Pan American flight that was burned by Arab terrorists in Rome Monday should not be overshadowed by concern over the fuel crisis.

The executive committee may consider granting powers to the ALPA president to suspend service to an airport or nation that does not return hijackers to the point of origin of their flights.

Daniel R. Sikora

Daniel R. Sikora, 45, of Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival yesterday morning at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Chicago, after an apparent heart attack.

Visitation is today from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Leo and Perry streets, Des Plaines, and tomorrow from 2 to 9:30 p.m.

Mr. Sikora was employed as a supervisor for a photo and printing company, and a veteran of the Korean Conflict, U. S. Army. He was born March 19, 1928, in Milwaukee, Wis.

Surviving are his widow, Constance M., nee Baron; a son, Daniel J.; a daughter, Catherine Ann, both of Des Plaines; brother, Eugene J. of Chicago; two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Rathczyk and Mrs. Evelyn Gnasabik, both of Milwaukee, Wis., and parents-in-law, John and Julia Baron of Chicago.

Funeral Mass for Mr. Sikora will be said at 10 a.m. Saturday in St. Stephen Catholic Church, 1267 Everett, Des Plaines. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Family requests, Mass offering preferred.

Charles Zinkel

Charles Zinkel, 79, of Schaumburg, a retired railroad switchman, died Tuesday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Visitation is tomorrow from 2 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 330 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in the chapel of the funeral home, with the Rev. Edward Paape of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Hoffman Estates, officiating. Interment will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Preceded in death by his wife, Marcella; two sons, Warren and Carl, and a daughter, Marcella Bolum; survivors include three sons, Chester of California, Glen and Calvin; three daughters, Mrs. Jean Thrasher of Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Rita Gearlig of South Holland, Ill., and Mrs. Betty Villano of Schaumburg; 21 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; two brothers, Otto of Florida and John of Cleero, and a sister, Mrs. Edna Schmidt of Florida.

Mr. Zinkel was born in Chicago, April 9, 1894.

The almanac

Today is Thursday, Dec. 20, the 354th day of 1973 with 11 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American tire manufacturer Harvey Firestone was born Dec. 20, 1868.

On this day in history:

In 1803, the U.S. government officially took over from France territory acquired in the Louisiana Purchase.

In 1864, Union Gen. William Sherman completed his "March to the Sea" and arrived in Savannah, Ga.

In 1922, the 14 Russian republics combined to form the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

In 1972, 11 persons were killed when taxing jetliners crashed on the ground at O'Hare Airport.

A thought for the day:

American poet Walt Whitman said, "Once fully enslaved, no nation, state, city of this earth, ever afterward resumes its liberty."

Kenneth H. Dorsch, 46, of Mount Prospect, died Tuesday in Wesley Medical Center, Chicago, after a short illness. A resident of Mount Prospect for 20 years, he was born Dec. 13, 1927, in Chicago.

Visitation is today from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and tomorrow from 2 to 9:30 p.m.

Funeral Mass will be said at 11 a.m. Saturday in St. Emily Catholic Church, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Eleanor, nee Schaden of Mount Prospect; a son, Glenn; a daughter, Nancy, both at home; father, George Dorsch of Pompano Beach, Fla., and a brother, Donald of Glenview. He was preceded in death by his mother, Lucille Dorsch.

Mr. Dorsch was a self-employed claim adjuster. He was a veteran of World War II, and the Korean Conflict.

Louise Mecklenburg

Miss Louise Marie Mecklenburg, 83, died yesterday morning in the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, Arlington Heights, where she had been a resident for the last 14 years. She was born in Illinois, March 4, 1890.

Surviving are a brother-in-law, Oscar Buerger of Chicago, and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by two sisters, Mrs. Hedwig Joers and Mrs. Minnie Buerger, and a brother, William Mecklenburg.

Visitation is today from 4 to 9 p.m. in Haire Funeral home, Northwest Highway and Vall Avenue, Arlington Heights, where funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow. The Rev. Gerhard Barthel will be officiating. Burial will be in Randall Park Cemetery, Palatine.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Haire Funeral Home, Northwest Highway and Vall Avenue, Arlington Heights.

Family requests, memorial donations may be made to the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, Arlington Heights.

The Spook

Reporter recalls meeting with old man who wanted to play Santa.

by TOM TIEDE

It hadn't snowed that week before Christmas. Everett, Washington, had rainy winters, with only some occasional white ash falling from the pulp and paper company chimneys.

Had there been some ice, I would have been sledding; as it was I was out peddling newspaper subscriptions, my friend Danny along, the both of us being eight or nine years old.

Danny was a nincompoop of sorts. Irish parentage, red hair, large freckles, he was the only kid I knew who smoked cigarettes and showed me occasional pictures of women in brassieres.

We made a team. I didn't smoke, but I thought the pictures were delightful. In the fourth grade Danny and I ran together, best pals; a little wild, we were, and especially him, since he had a cousin with a car and sometimes they would drive all the way to Seattle.

It was raining that afternoon. We carried subscription forms door to door. The town paper had a special gimmick: Lads could win a midget racer for selling two subs or a motorized midget racer for seven. Knock-knock. "You wanta buy the paper?"

WE WERE getting little else but wet by the time we reached the woods where the spook lived. Actually, it wasn't a woods but a lot of front-yard tangle, and the spook was an old man who lived in the house beyond.

We called him spook because everybody else called him spook. Nobody had ever seen him, for all we knew, but everyone had heard the stories: He had a deranged daughter behind those doors, who ate scraps from the floor; he had a wife who'd been in prison; he himself, though nobody could prove it, walked around the house with no clothes on and threw knives at visitors fool enough to call.

Danny made the dare. He suggested we yell for the spook from back off the porch, because if we got closer we might get grabbed. God only knew what happened to the kids grabbed on that porch. Danny said he had a friend who had a friend who read meters who one time got cut by a knife on the porch.

I said who was that? Danny said just a guy. Danny was uncomfortable, when pressed for details, and snapped: "Are we gonna do it or not?"

WE DID. Danny yelled for the spook and retreated to the mailbox. When the old man came out he was wearing a bathrobe and Danny started to laugh. I remember the old man waving.

I said: "We're selling subscriptions to the paper." Danny made more giggling sounds. The spook waved us in through his door.

I was surprised at the house. It was normal, orderly, clean; a little better furnished than my own, actually. The man had been reading a paper in a chair, a pole lamp turned on over a lace doily, so I knew he didn't need a paper subscription.

The man asked how we were. I said fine, uneasily. Danny, the dummy, was still making sounds, trying not to laugh, snorting through his nose he tripped on the rug and howled.

THE OLD MAN had his teeth out. No, he said, he didn't need a subscription, and he said "subscription" so funny I almost laughed myself. Then he picked a large bowl of candy off his coffee table and offered it.

It was Halloween candy, he said, and excused the fact that by now it was all stuck together. "I always have a big bowl of it on Halloween, but nobody ever comes around. It just sits and melts for the rest of the year."

We started to leave but the man suggested we sit down. I did. Danny didn't. And after that, for no particular reason that I remember, the old fellow began talking about Christmas.

HE SAID he came from Minnesota, where it snowed every December, and when he was young he would take his family for a ride on a sleigh. "Bells and everything." He talked of cutting down his own tree, and choosing presents from the most colorful pages of the catalogue, and going into Duluth to see the decorations.

He said he remembered playing Santa once, years before, in the school his children attended. He seemed to remember everything about it. He said he went from class to class with a bundle of small gifts, one for each student and teacher. He said it had been a proud day for him, as well as a happy one. His children, he said, talked about it for years, as did his wife.

He said nothing else about his family. There were photos on a credenza of two girls and a thin woman, but there was nobody else evident in the house and the old man indicated he had lived alone for years. Not until now have I wondered what happened to them.

AS DANNY and I left the old man offered more candy and told us to come around more. Then, I recall, he wondered hopefully if our school every needed a Santa Claus.

I said no, because there was a fat kid in our class who played the part each year. He man nodded. He watched us leave the porch and closed the door.

In the street Danny slowed up. He was still smirking. He picked up a rock and threw it at the old man's roof. I called him a name for it; then we got out of there as fast as we could.

We sold no more subscriptions that night. I never saw the old man again. After that I stopped playing with that nincompoop Danny.

Luck plays part in duplicate

Here is another example of duplicate luck. North and South really belong in five hearts. This is all they can make if the defense starts by taking their two diamond tricks.

The bidding in the box shows how they can reach a heart slam if North elects to open one club. You can't find much fault with North's second round jump to four hearts. If anything he has underbid a trifle and while South might not have Blackwood to the heart slam he certainly has a pretty good hand after his partner has jumped to the heart game.

This series of bids leaves West on lead. He might open a diamond, but the spade suit looks far better. Once he opens a spade South is home free. He simply draws trumps with three leads; runs off four clubs in order to discard one of dummy's diamonds; concedes a diamond trick and eventually ruffs one diamond and discards the last two on the ace and king of spades.

Where does the luck come in? Suppose the bidding goes differently and North becomes declarer at six hearts. East in on lead with the ace and king of diamonds and will be smart enough to cash them.

Human resources

office opened in Oak Park

A branch office of the Governor's Office of Human Resources has been opened at 24 W. Lake St., Oak Park. The branch offices, which are intended to provide "ombudsman" services for state residents were begun in 1969 by then-Gov. Richard Ogilvie and have been expanded by Gov. Daniel Walker. There are now 15 throughout the state.

Purposes of the offices are to direct residents to proper state agencies; mediate complaints against state agencies; and provide the governor's office with citizens' opinions.

The Oak Park office is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and may be reached by telephone at 386-3060 or 378-1928.

Area fire officials have asked residents with fire hydrants near their property to remove snow from the hydrants when they shovel their walks.

They called upon homeowners, to clean the snow from the plugs and around the hydrants as they clean their own walkways. The action could aid firemen in an emergency situation in case the hydrants are needed to combat a fire.

Working widow still entitled to benefits

Q. I'm a widow with five young children. I expected my Social Security checks to stop when I went to work full time, but I still get the same amount every month. Why?

A. With five young children, your family is still entitled to a maximum family benefit amount based on your husband's earnings. Since your five children continue to collect Social Security, your family keeps getting the same monthly amount — the family maximum — whether you work or not. Stopping your check and increasing the monthly amount paid to each of your children could cause an interruption of your family's payments. For this reason, and to save administrative costs, the checks continue in your name.

Q. I previously applied for disability benefits under Social Security but was denied for medical reasons. Under this new Supplemental Security Income program, are the medical determinations for disability as strict?

A. The same definition for disability is used for Supplemental Security Income as for Social Security: an inability to engage in any substantial gainful activity due to a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that is expected to last at least 12 months or result in death.

Q. My aged mother-in-law lives with my wife and I. She has no income of her own. Could she possibly get any benefits under the new Federal Supplemental Security Income program of the needy aged?

A. If your mother-in-law is 65 or older, she may be eligible for monthly payments under the new federal program, starting in January. Since she is living with you her payments would be reduced. Contact your nearest Social Security office for more information.

Q. There is a program that pays $1.60 per hour to persons 60 and older who spend 20 hours weekly acting as foster grandparents to children who are under 18. Would earnings under this program affect my Social Security benefits?

A. The Foster Grandparent Program provides part-time volunteer opportunities for low income older persons to give supportive person-to-person services to children having special needs. Effective May 3, 1973, payments to volunteers under this program are not considered income for any purpose. This includes the Social Security retirement test, supplemental security income, income tax and FICA tax. Payment under the program would not affect your Social Security payments. For more information about this new program call 922-9158.

Social security and you

Q. My grandfather, who's 74, lives with me in my household. He has no income of his own. Could he get monthly federal payments when the supplemental security income program begins?

A. Starting in January, your grandfather may be eligible for the federal payments. However, since he's living with you, his monthly payments would be reduced. You or your grandfather should contact any Social Security office for more information.

Q. In a few weeks I'll be changing my job and moving to another state. Should I notify a Social Security office of my new address?

A. No, not unless you're getting Social Security checks. Social security doesn't keep an up-to-date record of your mailing address until you start getting benefits. Regardless of where you work or live, Social Security keeps one central record of your earnings in work covered by Social Security. You use the same Social Security number in any state, and your number and name are enough to credit your earnings to your record no matter where you are.

Q. A recent advertisement appeared in a Sunday newspaper supplement offering a booklet for sale telling how to collect benefits from Social Security. Included in the release is a request for a check on the amount of earnings reported to Social Security. Isn't this information available from Social Security without charge?

A. Yes, every social security office, of which there are 1,300 in the United States, will provide free authoritative Social Security publications upon request. A statement of earnings can be obtained directly from the Social Security Administration at no cost. To obtain pamphlets or a statement of earnings credited to your social security account, simply write or phone your nearest Social Security Office. There is no charge for this service.

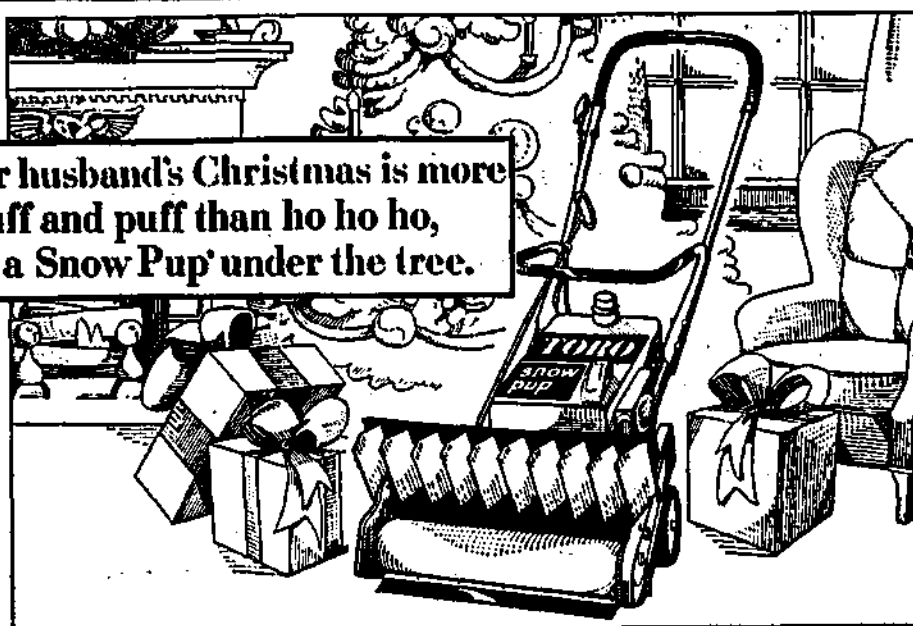

Q. I am age 42 and working steady. My wife is age 41, has a kidney disease and has been taking hemodialysis treatments regularly for the past 16 months. I thought I read somewhere that she could be covered under Medicare. I can't believe this because she has never worked in employment covered under Social Security. Did I read correctly or was what I read a misprint?

A. You read right — no misprint. Under the new law, a spouse or an insured person is eligible for Medicare coverage. You or your wife should contact your Social Security Office as soon as possible.

Q. I will be age 65 this November. I am working full-time and intend to keep working for another couple of years. I was going to contact the Social Security office to enroll for Medicare, but my neighbor tells me that due to a recent change, my enrollment will be automatic at age 65. Does this mean I won't have to contact the Social Security office to enroll for Medicare?

A. No, you will have to contact the Social Security Office to enroll for Medicare. For people who are already on the Social Security rolls before age 65, Medicare coverage will be automatic at age 65, but anyone who has not filed for benefits will have to file. You should contact your nearest Social Security office at once. Since you indicate you are working full-time, it would appear convenient for you to telephone the office.

Can YOU pass this quiz?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It doesn't take much practice to tell if a skid-row bum is an alcoholic, but the diagnosis of the early stages of the disease is a difficult problem.

To help detect the warning signals of potential alcoholism, Dr. Marvin A. Block, a specialist from Buffalo, N.Y., has come up with a list of 12 questions doctors should ask patients.

"If he answers 'yes' to more than one of these questions, this person had better watch his drinking very carefully; for he has all the earmarks of the early alcoholic," Block said at a recent conference on alcoholism.

THE SUGGESTED questionnaire:

1. Is the desire for a drink a frequent occurrence, with emphasis on the desire?
2. Is there a need for a drink at a certain time of the day, with the emphasis on the need?
3. Is there anticipation of drinking in the evening, as the day wears on?
4. Is alcohol used to help sleep?
5. Does frequent drinking go beyond ritual socializing?
6. Is there a desire to get "high" and thereafter to maintain that plateau through more drinking?
7. Is there disappointment when drinks are not served at a restaurant or a private party?
8. Is there criticism of one's drinking by anyone who cares about the patient?
9. Is there a resort to a drink or more when there is discomfort of any kind as a means of relief from tension or from physical or psychological problems?
10. Is care always taken to have a supply of alcohol on hand just in case, or is there more than slight preoccupation with this consideration?
11. Does one seek out individuals who drink in the same pattern as he does and avoid nondrinkers as companions?
12. Does he resent anyone's comment on his drinking habits?

IN ADDITION to helping point out people with potential drinking problems, Block said any of the questions might cause the patient to review his drinking habits and pay more attention to the amount of alcohol he drinks.

And if a person has more than one yes answer, Block said, "he would do well to consult a physician or other knowledgeable person at this point rather than wait longer."

Block told specialists attending the conference that it is of no use to look for overt signs and symptoms of excessive drinking at the early stage since there are few, if any.

"It does not necessarily follow that because a patient drinks daily or even increases his drinking over a period of time, this patient must necessarily be an alcoholic," Block said. "However, it is important that the physician learn certain details, chiefly why the patient drinks to the extent that he does."

The search for mental health

Causes of mental illness physical in origin?

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

There are some in the psychiatric profession who believe certain forms of mental illness are a product of heredity, biology, biochemical abnormalities and hormone imbalances — or some form of physiological impairment.

Evidence on this turned up by studies on many fronts — even though sometimes overwhelming — hasn't yet convinced all doctors that this is true.

But Dr. Earle Hearst, a National Institute for Mental Health Fellow at Washington University in St. Louis, is one of the believers.

Hearst admits that belief in a physical basis for mental illness is controversial, but, he said, belief that all mental illness stems from childhood environment is now open to question.

For instance, Hearst believes certain forms of depression are genetically or biochemically caused. He referred primarily to what he calls depression syndrome: a prolonged state of being low, blue, suffering from insomnia, decreased appetite and sexual interest, loss of pep and energy, difficulty in concentrating — a condition arising from within a person rather than caused by outside factors.

ANOTHER PHYSICALLY caused mental affliction, Dr. Hearst believes, is what he calls sociopathy, defined by him as the condition that causes repeated episodes with the law, inability to hold a job and assume responsibility and many marriage problems. Said Hearst, "Eighty to 90 per cent of prison convicts interviewed are believed to suffer from sociopathy."

Still other mental illnesses that Hearst and others view as physiologically produced are schizophrenia and anxiety neurosis.

Hearst's prime interest, after diagnosing a mental illness as physically caused, is to find effective physical cures.

When asked if brain surgery was the answer, Hearst replied, "Brain surgery is not as common as it once was since most people improve with other kinds of treatment. Some may do best with brain surgery as a last resort, but these cases are rare."

Instead, Hearst and his fellow believers are studying everything from family histories to body chemicals of mentally ill persons in hopes of finding drugs or chemicals or certain physically-oriented therapies as possible cures.

Hearst is optimistic that drugs will ultimately be the answer to many mental health problems.

Intestinal enzymes necessary to break down sugars

I would appreciate anything you could tell me about enzymes in the intestines.

I have a little grandson who is two years old, and ever since he was a small baby he has had this problem with his bowels. The first of this year he was so bad he became dehydrated and had to be hospitalized. The hospital said he had no enzymes in the intestines to make food into solids and would always have this diarrhea problem. And, of course, he was put on a very strict diet.

Now the little fellow is a typical youngster, runs and plays and enjoys life, but at least three or four times a day, and often many more, he has diarrhea.

The doctors I have talked to all seem so evasive that I am of the opinion that no one really knows too much about the enzyme bill.

Several of my friends have suggested I write to you and perhaps you could tell me if there is really no cure for this problem, or is he will eventually outgrow it. What really causes it? I'll appreciate any information you can give.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

The enzymes in the small intestine that we need to digest our food are from the pancreas or from the juices formed by the intestinal wall. I would guess that your little grandson has a problem with his pancreas.

The enzymes are used to split our carbohydrates down to simple sugars that can be absorbed through the intestine into the bloodstream. They also split the fats and even the proteins down to basic small units that can be absorbed. When this is not done properly, the undigested food is not absorbed, and what is worse, it acts to some extent like a chemical laxative. This is what causes the diarrhea, and sometimes the bloating and abdominal discomfort.

The severity of the problem depends on just how many enzymes are missing. A lot of otherwise healthy adults lack the enzyme to split milk sugar and they only need to guard against milk and foods made with milk. In more extensive loss of enzymes, the diet problems are much more complicated.

LACK OF ENZYMES usually is a result of characteristics present from birth. And, in most cases, the problem is one of managing the person through diet and other medical means, if required throughout life. However, new things are being learned all the time and if the problem is limited to deficient enzymes, perhaps in time it can be managed better.

I know from the rest of your letter that your grandson has been seen by an outstanding medical staff, and I am confident that he has been given the best of care.

So, what remains is following their instructions, hoping for the best, and perhaps time will improve the outlook. Or perhaps new advances will eventually make the problem more simple. I do wish there was more to offer at this time, but at least you can be thankful that your grandson was diagnosed early and that so much is known already to help in such cases.

New kidney machine may replace traditional dialysis

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — A new kidney machine that cleanses a patient's blood without rerouting it outside the body for treatment is coming onto the market this month.

Much simpler to operate and now priced competitively with current, more traditional hemodialysis models, the new machine uses the peritoneal dialysis method. It is expected to provide vital treatment to literally thousands of acute and chronic kidney patients otherwise unable to undergo treatment or kidney transplants.

The new machine was designed and developed at the University of Washington Medical School's Division of Kidney Diseases. It is manufactured by the Physio-Control Corp., of Seattle and is known as the Tenckhoff Peritoneal Dialysis System.

DR. HENRY Tenckhoff, associate professor of medicine, built the original prototype and was primarily responsible for its development.

He predicted this latest in a series of landmark medical inventions would be of great benefit, especially to children and older patients with heart or blood vessel disease and those persons needing dialysis who live alone.

The new system does the purifying and cleansing work the patient's kidneys once did, without the former hazard of rerouting the blood outside the body for treatment.

THE TENCKHOFF method embraces a whole new concept. It prepares and cycles a solution prepared from sterile water and concentrate into the patient's abdominal cavity where the peritoneal membrane acts as a filter in the removal of blood impurities.

The solution, called dialysate, remains approximately 20 minutes inside the abdomen, is automatically removed and the cycle repeats itself continuously for the duration of the timed program.

The system is designed for home or institutional use. It utilizes ordinary tap water in conjunction with a reverse osmosis water purification system and is easy to operate and maintain.

TOTAL COST of the machine, university authorities said, will be under $5,000, including the water treatment facilities.

Tenckhoff said present estimates indicate only two per cent of chronic kidney patients use peritoneal dialysis, which not only has the advantage of eliminating the extracorporeal blood circuit but also is simpler and safer to operate than hemodialysis.

"The combination of implanted peritoneal catheters and the newer automated peritoneal dialysis equipment will result in a rapid rise in the number of patients treated by this method," he said.

IRS checking on unemployment tax

Roger C. Beck, district director of the IRS for northern Illinois, has announced that 12,000 small business owners in northern Illinois will be contacted during this month to determine if they are properly filing their Federal Unemployment Tax returns. In 1972 a change in the tax law made virtually every employer subject to Federal Unemployment Tax.

To check the compliance with this new law the IRS recently cross-checked those businessmen who filed taxable Forms 941, Employers Quarterly Federal Tax return, for two quarterly periods in either calendar year 1971 or 1972, but who have not filed Form 940, Federal Unemployment Tax Return, for 1972. To date, 12,000 names have been identified in this area and a combined letter and questionnaire and a tax return are currently being mailed to these people.

Unemployment Tax is payable solely by employers; it must not be collected or deducted from the wages of employees. The money derived from this tax is used for state unemployment programs and payments.

Updated 'boom towns' dot American landscape

"Don't fence me in," Johnny Mercer's all-time hit song, put it succinctly. He zeroed in on the wished-for life style of most Americans.

"Although 88 per cent of the nation's population now lives on less than 1 per cent of the land area in the United States — some changes are being made," says Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Company, a San Francisco-based national mortgage banking and brokerage organization, with offices in principal cities throughout the U.S.

The trend today is getting away from it all. There are 120 million Americans who now live in 248 urban areas. Small wonder they have that hemmed-in feeling. They want to move out and onward — and they are doing just that.

Their destination? "America's new boom towns," answers Gaber. "They are springing up everywhere — but not like Topeka," he hastily adds.

"Skilled professional developers and planners are going about creating them methodically and meticulously. They have learned their lesson well from the mistakes of the past — like back in the Gold Rush days. At that time, towns actually mushroomed overnight — only to become tumbleweed-occupied ghost towns just a few years later."

These legendary Far West towns — so often depicted on TV — simply were not built on solid, firm foundations, literally or figuratively, Gaber points out. "The very reason for existing — or indeed, being created at all — depended solely on discoveries of gold, oil or silver," he notes.

"Today, the key words might well be meaningful diversity."

With a keen and practiced eye on detail and the desire to avoid history repeating itself, the planners make certain their towns have more than one product, one industry — or one attraction — before the bulldozer is given the green light.

"By the same token, they aren't about to create mere bedroom communities, adding suburbs to already sprawling metropolitan areas. The towns are complete, and self-contained — where people can work, live and play — with homes, schools, churches, apartment buildings, townhouses, shopping centers and office buildings.

"And, equally important — industry and a variety of selected businesses.

There is something for everyone," Gaber emphasizes.

So, if you are getting that closed-in feeling, do not despair. There's a rural-urban, ecological heaven out there — and not too far away.

"Call them today's version of boom towns if you will — and they are here to stay," Gaber concludes.

Expansion planned for tennis facility

A $700,000 construction loan on an expansion of an indoor tennis facility in Palatine, has been issued by Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors to Jordan and Walker Kaiser, prominent Chicago sports entrepreneurs.

The loan, which will be retired by a $900,000 permanent mortgage, is designed to warehouse a finished construction loan for a period of no less than four months.

The construction loan amount is $700,000 to help complete the Arlington Tennis Club, at 545 S. Consumers Ave. in the suburb.

A permanent mortgage of $900,000 has been arranged by Robert S. Julian, mortgage vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., which is adviser to the trust.

Bruce Gartzke tops list for October referrals

Bringing home the bacon is customary for Bruce H. Gartzke, sales associate in the Elk Grove Village residential office of Gladstone, Realtors. For Thanksgiving, however, Gartzke brought home turkey and champagne as his reward for producing the top number of referrals among the Gladstone offices for the month of October.

He assisted six families relocating to another city through his firm's membership in RELO/Intercity Relocation Service. Via RELO, the nation's leading real estate referral organization, Gladstone cooperates with RELO members across the country in helping families who must sell a home in one city while seeking a home in another city to which they are moving.

"It's associates like Bruce who have made Gladstone one of the top 20 RELO brokers in the nation," says Robert A. Poltzer, general manager of the firm which also has offices in Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Villa Park, Franklin Park, Berkeley and Westchester.

An active member of the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, Gartzke serves the groups as corresponding secretary. He also is chairman of the Jaycees' Committee for Senior Citizens of Elk Grove Village. His committee's current project is the VIP card, providing discounts from local merchants on certain days for senior citizens.

Zaun names top sales personnel

Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders, named seven sales associates "Salesman of the Month" for November.

Company finances Centex building

H. F. Phillipsborn & Co., an Illinois Central Industries company, announces financing of $130,000 on a 25-year term at the rate of 8 1/2 per cent for an 11,164 square foot industrial building located on a land site of approximately 24,000 square feet on the north side of Lunt Avenue 400 feet east of Wright Boulevard in the Centex Schaumburg Industrial Park. This "Incubator" style building will provide for maximum flexibility for users of small industrial space.

The attorney for the developer is Edwin R. Bates. The general contractor is C. W. Gansrud General Contractors of Park Ridge, and the architect is Ernest E. Ternovits, Jr. of Roselle.

IS IT "SWEATER WEATHER" INSIDE YOUR HOME?

Do you have an efficient vented heating system in your house, but find that it's still chilly. Perhaps you're not keeping cold air outside, where it belongs. It's easy, inexpensive... and you don't have to be a skilled carpenter or mechanic to do it. Start at the windows. Buy lengths of clear, heavy plastic from your local hardware store or building supply dealer. Tack, staple or tape the plastic inside or outside windows and screen doors (especially those on the North and West sides of your home). The plastic acts as an efficient, inexpensive storm window. It keeps cold outside. When wintry drafts turn to summer breezes remove these lowcost "overcoats." Put them away for next year. Be a money expert! Watch this paper for tips that save you money... and save fuel too.

Dangers of oil heaters emphasized by institute

If your mother's or grandmother's old oil space heater is still in the basement, leave it there. Better yet, get rid of it and find some other means of keeping warm and saving money this winter. This advice comes to you from the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company's Institute for Safer Living.

The dangers of oil space heaters cannot be overemphasized; they can be deadly, so deadly in fact that their use, in any building used for dwelling purposes, is illegal in Massachusetts.

According to the Institute, oil space heaters are dangerous for a number of reasons. First of all, the kerosene which is used to generate the heat, is subject to hydrostatic expansion. This means that the liquid expands when heated. Kerosene will be cool while in storage, but when it is poured into the oil container and the wick is lit, the kerosene will heat up and expand. The liquid can then overflow the container, saturate the floor and ignite. A leaky oil container can also cause fire. Another danger is the temptation to refill the container indoors since oil space heaters must be refueled fairly frequently.

One of the less obvious dangers of the oil space heater is the oxygen it consumes in the combustion process. Because oil space heaters do not have flues, many deaths have been the result of suffocation when the heaters were used in a room without sufficient ventilation — stuffing rags in and around windows and door jams to prevent drafts, etc.

Another major danger posed by oil space heaters is the fire hazard they constitute from possible contact with other combustible materials such as damp socks and other clothing, drapery, etc. The very portability of oil space heaters is a fire hazard — they can be knocked over or the kerosene container tipped.

In conclusion, don't resort to illegal, dangerous and possibly fatal heating devices this winter. In conserving energy, choose a permanent heating fixture with a flue, a fixture which cannot be shoved or knocked over or placed too near something flammable. Remember, conserving lives is more important than hazardous methods of handling the energy shortage.

Rezner honored for sales work

George W. Rezner, 639 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, and regional sales manager, Eastman Division, Imperial-Eastman Corp., has been honored for his personal sales achievements.

During a recent sales meeting hosted by the Eastman Division in Manitowoc, Wis., he was congratulated by Fred G. Dikeman, vice president, Eastman Division, who noted that in the past year the division posted the largest sales increase and largest volume of sales in its history.

Annen and Busse adds two associates to staff

Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors, in its 25th year of service to the northwest suburbs, announced the names of two additional associates who have reached the coveted Million Dollar Sales goal during the month of November.

Jim Harris, with the firm in their Palatine location since March of 1971, has lived in the Palatine area with his wife and three children for 17 years. He is a licensed Real Estate Broker, has his G.R.I., and is a senior member of the American Society of Appraisers. He has served the Chicago Chapter of that organization in several major capacities. Jim served as Office Sales Manager in the firm's Palatine office until early this year when he resigned that post.

Ruth Walker, with her husband Harry, is a long-time Mount Prospect resident. She was a member of the Million Dollar Sales Club in 1971 and received the firm's President's Club award in 1972. She was named Salesman of the Month in October of this year in the Mount Prospect Office, where she has served with the firm for almost four years.

These newest Million Dollar achievers bring the number of Annen & Busse Million Dollar Sales Club members for the current year to a total of fourteen. This certainly speaks well of the entire Annen & Busse sales organization, considering this number equals one-third of the staff, and gives credence to the old adage that quality rather than quantity prevails. Annen & Busse is proud of their associates' accomplishment and takes pleasure in congratulating them on their achievement. The entire staff works through the MAP Multiple Listing Service, of which Annen & Busse is a charter member, and also through the Homes for Living Network, the first national multi-list organization having representatives in 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Andrews reaches million dollar sales

Village Realty of Arlington Heights has announced that Tal Andrews has surpassed the million dollar mark in sales.

Tal Andrews

Andrews has been a consistent leader in sales since joining the Elk Grove office of Village Realty. He was transferred to the Arlington office in January of this year.

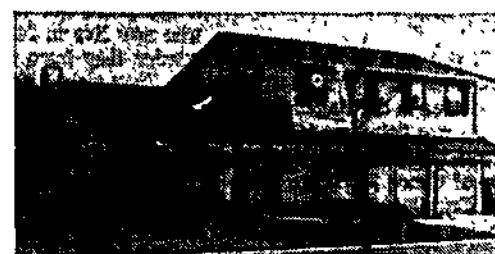

Andrews attended Indiana University School of Real Estate and received his Indiana license. Upon returning to Illinois he obtained his Illinois license.

WIN THE COLD WAR NOW

Are you plagued by one cold room . . . or just a single cold spot in a room? Maybe it's a draft that comes through a window. Or a chill wind that sneaks down the chimney. Be warned! If you have a vented heating system, any time you feel drafts of cold air, your heating dollars are being wasted. Check carefully to learn where the cold air is coming from. Your fireplace? When the fire is out, close the damper.

Seal cracks under doors and windows with felt or metal striping. Seal cracks between window and door frames and adjoining walls with ready-made rope putty or insulating materials. Your neighborhood hardware dealer or building supply store will be glad to advise you. Don't put it off! If you want to be comfortable inside, when it's cold outside, end the draft now.

Consumers prefer panel doors, survey indicates

Panel doors got the nod — and flush doors a knock — in a recently-released consumer survey.

The report on "The Consumer of the 70's — His Housing Plans and Preferences" was released by Ponderosa Pine Woodwork, a national association of woodwork manufacturers. It shows that since 1968, consumers have consistently listed appearance and durability as the first and second "most important" factors in the selection of doors. Wood panel doors got the votes in both categories. Their popularity over flush doors increased steadily and substantially over the five-year period of the survey.

According to the report, wood panel doors were rated "very attractive" in appearance by 69 per cent of the consumers queried in 1968. The percentage increased to 73 per cent in 1970 and 77 per cent in 1972. Comparative ratings for flush doors were: 1968 — 59 per cent;

1970 — 63 per cent; 1972 — 65 per cent. A durability rating of "very good" for wood panel doors rose from 69 per cent in 1968 to 73 per cent in 1972. Durability scores for flush doors fell from 65 per cent in 1968 to 53 per cent in 1972.

The consumers' emphasis on beauty and long life for doors is further reflected in a preference of 63 per cent for panel door front entrances — a hike from 59 per cent five years ago. Not to be outdone, rear entrance panel doors got 62 per cent of the current vote — up from 54 per cent in 1968.

Popular wood panel entrances are readily available to the consumer. Ponderosa pine entrances can be obtained as complete "packages" — which include a single or double-entry wood panel door, and "accessories" — such as an overhead facade, sidelights, fanlights and pillars — appropriate to the entrance style.

Larson named sales manager

Home Town Real Estate recently announced the appointment of Hugh L. Larson as sales manager of their Schaumburg office.

Hugh Larson

Born and educated in Chicago Mr. Larson spent over twenty years in management with the Bell and Howell Company. The Larson family have been residents of the northwest suburban area for the last 13 years.

He has been instrumental in developing the residential sales office located at 335 W. Wise Road and has been a sales leader for the company during the period that found Schaumburg itself in popular demand as a growth area.

Home Town Real Estate has four offices located throughout the M.A.P. Multiple Listing area employing some 70 professional real estate people in their Residential Sales division, Commercial and Investment division, and New Home Construction division. The Company recently joined a national network of fellow realtors through the Ineta-Homes electronic photo referral system for transferees.

Her construction project flies Roof is top determiner of architectural styling

Barbara Kovacs of Libertyville doesn't like to play tennis, because she doesn't think it is a very feminine game.

That may not seem like an unusual attitude, except that Mrs. Kovacs is the chairman of a development company which is in the midst of a multi-million dollar project.

Mrs. Kovacs has been in the construction business in the planning end for about five years. She became involved through her husband, Gary, who was at that time the senior vice president at Dunk N' Donuts.

ABOUT THREE years ago, she got the idea for her current project, a fly-in community under construction just northwest of Elgin.

The community features custom-built homes in a development next to a private landing strip. Private hangars and tie-down areas will be available for the private plane owners, although prospective buyers aren't required to own airplanes.

Mrs. Kovacs says she got the idea for the community from talking with members of flying clubs. Private plane owners at a larger airport must keep their plane in a large hangar with many others, and the planes are subject to vandalism, she says.

Barbara Kovacs

Pleasure pilots have to drive 30 or 40 miles to an airport just for an evening of flying, she notes.

SOME COMMUNITIES have been built with the homes physically located all around the air strip, with hangars attached to the homes, but the fumes from the planes are bad, and insurance rates are unusually high on the homes, Mrs. Kovacs says.

"Most pilots are white-collar workers, and fly for a hobby... and it is damn expensive for a hobby," she says. She is building a luxury home development, with prices ranging from $68,000 to $99,000.

A recreational complex will be included, with tennis courts and a small cabana house.

Mrs. Kovacs' titles include chairman of the Barko Development Corp. and president of the Barko Construction Co.

WHERE DOES she find ideas for developments? "I have to have a gut feeling about something. If I get negative vibrations, I walk away. We did a tremendous amount of market research on The Landings (fly-in community)."

Mrs. Kovacs has been working toward her own pilot's license, but since she has been involved in construction, she hasn't had much time to devote to it.

"I think I have always been interested in flying, since I was a little kid. I took my first plane ride when I was 16, and I really liked that feeling."

As chairman of the Barko Corp., Mrs. Kovacs has a company plane and pilot. The plane is outfitted with a refrigerator and a conference table, she says.

IN ADDITION to her flying lessons, she also takes riding lessons. Other hobbies include golf and collecting music boxes from around the world.

If house-hunters seem to be going along with their heads in the clouds, this doesn't mean they are considering a down payment on a castle in the air.

More likely it means they are checking out the roof lines of what could turn out to be their dream house.

The way the roof looks is a top factor in determining whether or not you opt for a particular architectural style, revealed a survey by The Larwin Group, builders of fine homes throughout the Chicago area.

It's second only to the overall impact of the design in determining the positive impression a house makes, the Larwin study found.

On the negative side, the roof line was the number one reason people cited for turning thumbs down on a design they disliked, the survey disclosed.

Larwin-Illinois actually took the survey to discover which of three architectural styles — traditional, California or contemporary — was most preferred by Chicago area families.

The result was a virtual standoff between traditional and California — with 48 per cent opting for traditional and 44 per cent for California. Contemporary was a poor third, picked by only 8 per cent of those surveyed.

The real purpose was to figure out what designs to emphasize in Larwin's newest community, in Park Forest South — and as a result of the findings, you can expect to see a blending of traditional and California features.

While they were asking questions, the Larwin people decided to find out what specific features, within an overall design, were especially important.

That's when they made the surprising discovery that the roof tops everything. It comes even ahead of such standard "best foot forward features" as the front door or entrance way, the survey disclosed.

The Larwin Group, headquartered in Beverly Hills, Calif., has built more than 28,000 homes in 67 communities since 1948. An Equal Housing Opportunity builder, Larwin is developing a wide range of new home communities in the Chicago area.

Larwin-Illinois communities include Tempo, Trend and Tanglewood villages, all in Greenbrook Country, Hanover Park; Horizon, in Bartlett and new communities now in the works in Park Forest South, Gurnee, Naperville and Itasca.

Larwin is a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corporation.

Tree signifies 'topping out'

If you have ever noticed a tree, or even a branch, on top of a building under construction, you have been given a message that says, "This is as high as this building will go."

The tree is the traditional symbol of the "topping out," whether it be on a high-rise apartment building or on the roof of a one-story home. In either case, it is cause for celebration.

In pioneer days, raising the roof on a new home was accomplished with the help of friends and neighbors from miles around. The day was usually climaxed by a feast.

Actually, houses may be expected to have several "topping out" celebrations in their lifetimes, because most of them will outlive several roofs.

Most homeowners eventually will tire of their "original equipment" roofs even before the roofs fall, preferring to upgrade with a more attractive and more modern covering. Many of today's homeowners, for example, are upgrading their present roofs with heavy-textured asphalt shingles designed to last up to 25 years. The shingles are available in a wide choice of earthtone hues, solid colors and blends, and are classified by the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., for fire and wind resistance.

Two pilots receive stripes as captains

F. L. Sponsler, 1801 W. Banbury Rd., Inverness, and D. L. Walsh, 1486 Pepper Tree Dr., Palatine, have added the fourth stripes to their American Airlines flight jackets indicating they are now captains in the Flagship fleet.

Sponsler, who had been a lieutenant in the U.S. Air National Guard, also holds a B.A. degree in geology from Simpson College, in Indianola, Iowa. He joined the airline in March, 1963.

Walsh came to American from the U. S. Air Force where he had been a pilot and instructor since 1964. He joined the airline in February, 1965.

office, Herbert D. Conant was also promoted to senior vice president.

Church and Conant, in an administrative realignment of corporate duties, will assume responsibilities of a regional nature in addition to their present assignments as the general managers of Turner's Chicago and Cleveland offices, respectively.

Church, formerly a vice president, will now oversee all of Turner's operations west of Chicago, including activities of the company's Houston office. Mr. Conant will be responsible for the areas generally east of Chicago and the Mississippi River, except for the Middle and North Atlantic states.

Church joined Turner in 1943 following his graduation from Northeastern University with a degree in civil engineering. After serving in numerous field positions of increasing responsibility, he became a general superintendent in the company's Chicago territory in 1964. In 1967 he was appointed operations manager in that office and the following year was elected vice president and general manager. He also serves as a member of the company's management committee.

Church is a director of the Builders Association of Chicago and is active in other industry groups. A director of the National Council of Northeastern University, he is also a member of The Chicago Club, Union League Club of Chicago, Economic Club of Chicago and Inverness Golf Club in Palatine.

Turner also announced that Robert D. Kupfer, presently senior vice president, will assume similar administrative responsibility for the operation of Turner's territory offices located in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and activities in Puerto Rico. Mr. Kupfer also has responsibility for Turner's Far Eastern operations.

Mr. Turner stated that the present moves were being made to provide improved administrative control of the company's expanding country-wide service to clients in the most effective and economical manner possible.

With corporate headquarters in New York, Turner has branch offices here and in New York; Boston; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Columbus, Ohio; Denver; Detroit; Houston; Los Angeles; Philadelphia; San Francisco; Hong Kong and Singapore.

WHAT GOES THROUGH THE ROOF? HEAT!

Leaky cracks and sneaky crevices under your roof cost you a bundle. Because heat escapes right through them. If you have a vented heating system to prevent costly heat loss, what's wanted is proper weatherstripping and insulation. If your attic floor is not insulated, fix it yourself, or have it insulated professionally. Ask your local hardware dealer or building supply store to recommend a good insulating material that will be easy to install. And while you're at it, check the chimney and vents to the outside to be sure they aren't clogged. The money you save on fuel will more than repay the cost of insulating supplies... and you'll be far more comfortable, too.

The case of the disappearing paycheck and what to do about it.

Some people learn the hard way. Paychecks disappear fast. Day-to-day living expenses eat up a lot. And maybe part goes in the savings account for this year's vacation or another immediate goal.

A good chunk of that money seems to disappear by itself. So it's no wonder that when it comes to long-term goals, or when an emergency comes up, there simply aren't funds to meet the need.

Unless there was a nest egg building up all that time. A good way to build that nest egg is with U.S. Savings Bonds. The easy way to buy them is to sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

And while you're going through grocery bills, car repairs, vacation weekends, kids' toys and nights out on the town, you'll know you're saving money too.

That's good to know.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 6 1/2% interest when held to maturity of 3 years. 10 months after the first year's interest is paid. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Insulating glass has advantages

When winter comes, can the chore of hanging storm sash be far behind?

Not only far behind, but non-existent — if your windows have insulating glass.

Insulating glass is the modern method of providing double window pane protection against the weather. It is actually two panes of glass sealed together at the edges to form an insulating layer of air between. Once a custom feature, insulating glass is now obtainable in all styles and stock sizes of ponderosa pine windows and sliding patio doors.

Insulating glass has a number of advantages:

It eliminates the need for storm sash and its resultant periodic maintenance. It also cuts window washing by half (four panes per window with storm sash, two with insulating glass).

It creates a kind of "summer-winter" window. Separate storm sash is generally removed in summer, so its insulating qualities against heat gain are lost. If it is not removed, ventilation is impeded. Insulating glass, however, provides year-round insulation and does not interfere with ventilation.

It provides double-glazing for large glass areas — picture windows, bow and bay windows, patio doors — through which heat loss could be substantial, but where use of separate storm sash would be awkward or impossible.

It helps prevent condensation from forming on glass and sash by keeping window temperature stable.

Annen and Busse welcome Palatine resident to staff

Peter Rodgers, office sales manager of Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors, in their Palatine location, announced the addition of Mrs. Paula L. McComble to his staff of sales associates.

Mrs. McComble, with her husband Michael, are residents of Palatine and long-time residents of the Chicago area. Paula received her bachelor of science degree in psychology and premedicine from the University of Wisconsin. She has been in the real estate field for some time, teaching real estate classes and handling investment properties.

"Paula is well prepared to meet the needs of buyers and sellers in our area and is already making use of the opportunity to be of service," said Rodgers. "We are happy to welcome her to our fine staff and are sure she will be an excellent addition to our entire Annen & Busse organization."

Applies for patent

Gerald F. Fetterer, 1109 Sprucewood Dr., Mount Prospect, of the Switching Laboratories of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake, has applied for a U.S. patent. Fetterer is co-inventor of a system for testing the control equipment of an electronic telephone switching system.

FREE CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT R.A.L. REALTY

We have a Christmas tree, but it is so bare,
We need the children who really care,
To help us decorate it with a flair.

All children under age 12 and accompanied by a parent, may bring in an ornament for our tree, and draw a free gift from Santa's bag.

2 named executives for Sears, Roebuck

Two Des Plaines residents were recently named to executive positions on the staff of Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s new department store in Hawthorn Center in north suburban Vernon Hills.

They are Sandra C. Hagerty, 9122 Lincoln Dr., personnel manager, and William H. Englehart, 381 Marshall St., store controller.

Mrs. Hagerty joined Sears in 1966 as a personnel interviewer in her home-town, Atlanta, Ga. Prior to her recent transfer, she was on the personnel staff at Golf-Mill in Niles.

Englehart, a 1949 graduate of St. Louis University, has been with Sears since 1956. His assignments have included traveling auditor and controller of the State Street store in Chicago.

Brown named to IIT position

Joe N. Brown Jr., 127 So. Hickory, Palatine, has been appointed assistant professor of chemistry in Illinois Institute of Technology's College of Engineering and Physical Sciences.

Brown received his B.S. degree from Texas A. & M. University in 1963, and his Ph.D. from Louisiana State University, New Orleans, in 1972. From June, 1972 to August, 1973, Brown was a postdoctoral research associate at California Institute of Technology.

Brown, an authority on X-ray crystallography, has published extensively in professional journals. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Crystallographic Association and the American Institute of Physics.

Investment firm promotes Albers

Walter H. Albers of Des Plaines has been appointed regional commercial supervisor for the metropolitan Chicago area for Commercial Mortgage Insurance Inc., a major insurer of apartment, commercial and industrial mortgage loans and commercial real estate leases.

For the past eight years, Albers was engaged in joint venture real estate investments with CNA Realty Corp. and in mortgage lending with Continental Assurance Co. in Chicago. A native of Peotone, Ill., he graduated from the University of Illinois and attended John Marshall Law School.

Pickens takes over Marathon station

James H. Pickens, 1305 Baldwin, Palatine, has assumed dealership of the new Marathon service station at Baldwin and Rand roads in Palatine, according to D. E. Moyer, Marathon Oil Co. district manager.

Pickens begins his independent business venture following eight years experience in competitive brand stations. He has completed several automotive servicing courses during three years of night school.

Additional preparation for his new business included two weeks of directed experience in a training station and two weeks of classroom study at Marathon's Indianapolis dealer development center.

Arlington Hts. man promoted by paper

John F. Bottiglieri of Arlington Heights has been promoted to suburban stand sales manager for the Chicago Daily News by Roderick T. Welch, circulation manager.

Bottiglieri, 60, has been with the Daily News for 22 years. He joined the paper in 1951 as a delivery driver and recently has served as a district manager in both city and suburban areas. Before coming to the Daily News he was employed by the Chicago Times, forerunner of the Sun-Times, for two years.

Walter Nohelty named bank vice president

Walter J. Nohelty, 38, recently was promoted to vice president of the Commercial Loan Department at Mount Prospect State Bank.

Walter Nohelty

Nohelty has been a loan officer at MP&SB since 1968 and held the title senior commercial loan officer.

A 1957 graduate of the University of Notre Dame in finance, he has worked in the loan departments at La Salle National Bank, Madison Bank & Trust and City National Bank of Chicago.

Married with six children, he lives in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines man promoted by Burns

The promotion of Donald Subloski of Des Plaines to Central Region sales manager for Burns International Security Services Inc. was announced recently by George H. Buckbee, central regional manager. This is the company's largest region and is headquartered at 221 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

With Burns since 1965, Subloski was instrumental in initiating Burns Special Services, which provides brightly uniformed ushers, doormen, ticket takers, personal guides and hostesses for various large crowd events.

Subloski, previously manager of special services, will now direct Burns Sales Programs in 12 Midwest states.

Subloski attended DePaul University in Chicago.

46-year employe retires from GTE

Clarence A. Hallgren, 2806 W. South St., Rolling Meadows, has retired after 46 years at GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake.

Hallgren, a quality evaluator in the technical services department, joined the communications company as an assembler and later worked as a relay adjuster and inspector.

He is a member of the Independent Telephone Pioneer Association, Rockford Loyal Order of Moose, and American Association of Retired Persons.

He and his wife, the former Grace Voling, have been married 40 years. They intend to "travel around" for awhile, and eventually to move to Southern California.

Shure Brothers promotes two men

Jerry H. Schroeder and Charles R. Asher, both of Des Plaines, have been promoted by Shure Brothers Inc., Evanston, a major manufacturer of microphones, sound systems and related circuitry.

Schroeder has been promoted to assistant manufacturer sales manager. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska in Omaha and has been with Shure since 1968.

Charles Asher is now a regional sales manager in Shure's international sales department. Asher joined Shure in 1971 after receiving degrees at Bradley University and the Thunderbird School of International Management in Phoenix.

Arlington rolls along; explodes early in easy win over Meadows

by KEITH REINHARD

Rolling Meadows was able to contain Arlington's chief offensive threat, conference scoring leader Dan Donahue, "limiting" the 6-9 veteran center to a mere 18 points Tuesday night.

But according to the laws of nature, pressure applied at one point brings about a counter-pressure somewhere else. In this case it was Jeff Cleveland taking up the slack, and pacing his Cardinals to a 74-40 Mid-Suburban League basketball triumph over the visiting Mustangs.

The victory was the third in row in loop play for coach George Zigman's band since absorbing a setback in their opening round. And it was never really very much in doubt after the hosts jumped off to an 18-9 lead late in the first quarter.

"We got off to a bad start," sighed Mustang mentor Ken Arneson, "but that was just half the problem. They're an awfully good basketball team, just as I suspected."

Rolling Meadows allowed Donahue six buckets in the first half and then pretty well slammed the door on the agile senior. They never were able to figure out Cleveland, however, who plunked in 22 points from all over the court, set up half a dozen other scoring plays and was a general menace on the boards at both ends of the court.

The 6-4 Card forward connected on three shots and assisted two others while his teammates were rocketing into their early permanent lead in the contest.

SCORE BY QUARTERS
Rolling Meadows 11 11 15 8-40
Arlington 18 14 15 24-74

The loss was the third in four MSL frays for Arneson's group and evened out their overall log at 3-3. "We started off shooting too much and not setting things up enough and I think our kids were a little off key to begin with, coming right off a game Friday without much chance to practice in between."

If the guests weren't quite prepared for Arlington, the Cards nevertheless came out anxious against the guests. With their full court press applied right from the start they limited the Mustangs to only three field goals through most of the opening period and then broke the game wide open midway through the second quarter.

Tom Holl's fast break layup brought Meadows to within five, 18-13, near the onset of the second stanza. Then it was Cleveland countering with a rebound, Doug Bettors hitting from 10 feet down the base line, and after another bucket by Holl, Donahue collected three consecutive layups, first on a pass from Doug Doppke, then on an inbound toss from Steve Loughman and then with an assist from Bettors.

Reservist Doppke banked in a couple of eight footers after that and Arlington went into the dressing room at halftime firmly in command, 32-17.

"We got a nice boost from the bench," Zigman commented afterwards. "Doppke is gaining a little more confidence every time he plays and I know he's going to help us more and more as the season progresses."

The hosts weren't hurt a bit either when Donahue's younger brother Terry came in later on to spell Bettors and they received a little bonus toward the end of the game when Carl Drake poked through three quick buckets in little more than a minute's span.

"I'll take that kind of action any time. Carl's actually not a bad shooter from out," Zigman noted, adding, "I can't complain a bit about our backup strength this year."

Nine Cards made it to the scoring column all told. For Meadows John Hogan set the tempo with 11 and Pat Geegan contributed 10 more points.

Watching Bears for money; or how to avoid dozing off

O. J. Simpson, move over!

P. A. Logan ended one record streak and set another record Sunday. At least they appear to be new marks.

Both involved the Bears. For six straight weeks prior to last Sunday, the Logans' TV never was tuned to a Bear game. What lucky family can make that statement? No question — it's one for the books.

The second feat might not be. Breaking my string last weekend, I attempted to watch the Bears' finale. Twice I dozed off. As far as I know, accidentally coming back twice from sweet slumber to look at

Paul Logan

Sitting before a color monitor in a screening room just off the video tape room, it was my job to record each play and each replay that took place. Just before the ball was snapped, I would type the time (down to the second), the down, the yardage needed and the yard line. When the play took place, I had to briefly mention what happened.

This is how it looked:
1:08:15 Roder kicks off; returned by Lions' Barney to his own 40.
1:08:40 1-10-40 Munson passes to Farr for 55 yds.
1:09:10 slow motion replay of Bears getting burned.

1:09:20 1-goal-5 Taylor runs for TD.
1:09:33 slow mo of Bear line getting blown out; Taylor untouched.

After about five pages of this single spaced play by play, the game is over and I'm a few dollars richer.

Then the copy is turned over to CBS sports announcer Bruce Roberts.

"I analyze them," says Bruce. "Then I pick out the plays that I want."
"I know that at 12:15:08, for example, Johnny Jones threw for a touchdown. I look at the play (in the video tape room) and see that it's a short TD. So I look for the big play that set it up."

Roberts says he then makes note of it for replaying on the 6 and 10 p.m. news. After viewing the key action, he has enough for a few highlights. And as far as the Bears are concerned, you can usually highlight them in a couple of seconds.

According to Bruce, the CBS spotters help save sports announcers about a half hour with these timed charts.

My rookie Sunday I was tested by the Lions and the 49ers. After another week with the Lions (vs. the Vikings), I was given my bit shot with the Bears.

For four straight weeks I watched Abe Gibrion's 40 flunkies find new ways of losing. All Bear fans (are there any left?) should have the same situation as I had — get paid for watching them. Nothing else could keep my interest.

If you happened to stick it out from beginning to end Sunday, you could understand why CBS didn't want me taking notes. The only highlight Roberts showed was Chester Marcol kicking the ball in the opposite direction after a bad snap.

Thus, I was a no-show spotter. However, it enabled me to possibly set the record for managing to wake up twice during a Bear game. It was a luxury I couldn't afford the previous weeks, even though several times I was just a yawn away from snoring as the Bears sleepwalked across the CBS monitor.

Unashamedly, I feel WBBM-TV should give me some kind of pro spotter medal of honor for hanging in there those final four weeks with the pathetic Bears.

How about it, Bruce?

Radio coverage of 'Sleigh Bells' battle Friday

The oldest basketball rivalry in the Herald area will add another chapter Friday evening, and WWMM-FM will be there.

Arlington will entertain Palatine in the battle for the "Sleigh Bells," a trophy symbolic of varsity basketball supremacy between the schools.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will report the action, starting at approximately 8 p.m. at 92.7 on the FM dial.

There will be no radio game Friday, Dec. 28, but the WM microphones will be at Hersey on Friday, Jan. 4, when the Huskies meet Wheeling. The remaining 1973-74 radio coverage for basketball will be released later by the station.

HAWK LEADER. Dave Schmitt, 32, goes high to deliver two of his 27 points Tuesday night against Olive-Harvey. Harper triumphed, 64-54.

Prospect, Schaumburg meet tonight in league action

The South Division title aspirations of both Schaumburg and host Prospect are on the line this evening when the two schools tangle in the MSL's first Thursday night cage offering of the season.

Both teams are 1-2 in league play, two games behind Conant and Forest View, the stars of Friday night's headliner. The loser tonight at Prospect could be relegated to the also-ran category for the remainder of the conference schedule.

Although Prospect won their first game of the year versus Elk Grove last week, Knight coach Bill Slayton was not overjoyed with his club's showing.

"It was probably one of our poorest games of the year," Slayton opined. "I don't think we played bad basketball, but Elk Grove isn't in the same class this year as a Maine South or a New Trier East."

The Knights are expected to start Mike Quade and Jim Anderson at the guard slots with 6-foot-9 Paul Withey at center. Bob Thompson, Doug Bonthron, and Al Black are all expected to see duty in the corners.

Looking at the Saxons, Slayton is cautious. "They have a couple of guys who've been with them for a few years. They're better than they were, so we expect a good game."

Schaumburg coach Joe Breault is hoping that the Saxons will perform as well as they did against Conant last Friday, a game he said was the Saxons' best of the year. Schaumburg is 3-3 overall this year.

"I really think we're playing Prospect at the wrong time of the year," Breault commented. "They're starting to come around, but we'll be up for it. We've had some close games with Prospect in the past, so I definitely think that this will be a good one."

THE BEST IN Sports

"We could use a win tonight for two big reasons," Breault continued. "First, if we win, we'll have the confidence that we need to go back into MSL play. Second, a win would give us an extra push as we move into the Luther North Christmas tourney."

Schaumburg will start Wayne Morgan and Dave Hill in the backcourt and Ray Kralicek at center. Sophomore John McIlraith will open in one corner opposite either Steve Bengston or Jim Schimbke.

No question, it is a vital game for both teams. The loser will get a painful, but probably accurate, barometer of what's in store in '74.

Area hockey teams fall in Metro division play

The Chicago Metropolitan Hockey League drew its first half season to a close on Sunday with games at the Woodfield Hockey Center and Glenview Park District ice rinks. Second half play will begin on Sunday, Jan. 6.

All local teams were beaten this past weekend. Scores in class AA at Woodfield included Maine South tying New Trier West, 6-6, and Notre Dame tying Glenbrook North, 1-1.

New Trier East defeated St. Viator, 6-2, with Lion goals by Dave Menoni and Bill Thompson. Evanston stopped Rolling Meadows, 6-4. The Mustangs had goals by Randy Voss, Glen Rendeau, Wright and Byrnes.

Class A results at Glenview included Deerfield beating Fremd, 7-2; Lane Tech over Arlington, 5-2; Glenbrook South over Hersey, 5-4; and Prosser over Palatine, 4-3.

Dason had one goal and one assist for Fremd. Gehab scored one goal and Gullett got an assist. Jay McGuire and Walsh scored Arlington goals. Assistants went to Whittier and Olcese.

Bob Brush scored two goals and assisted on a third for Hersey. Kelly had one goal and two assists. Hansey had the last goal and Zasady the other assist.

Langer scored two goals plus one assist for Palatine. D. McSweeney had one goal and one assist.

New Northwest division class AA standings are Maine South 6-0-1, Notre Dame 3-3-1, Rolling Meadows 2-5-0 and St. Viator 0-7-0.

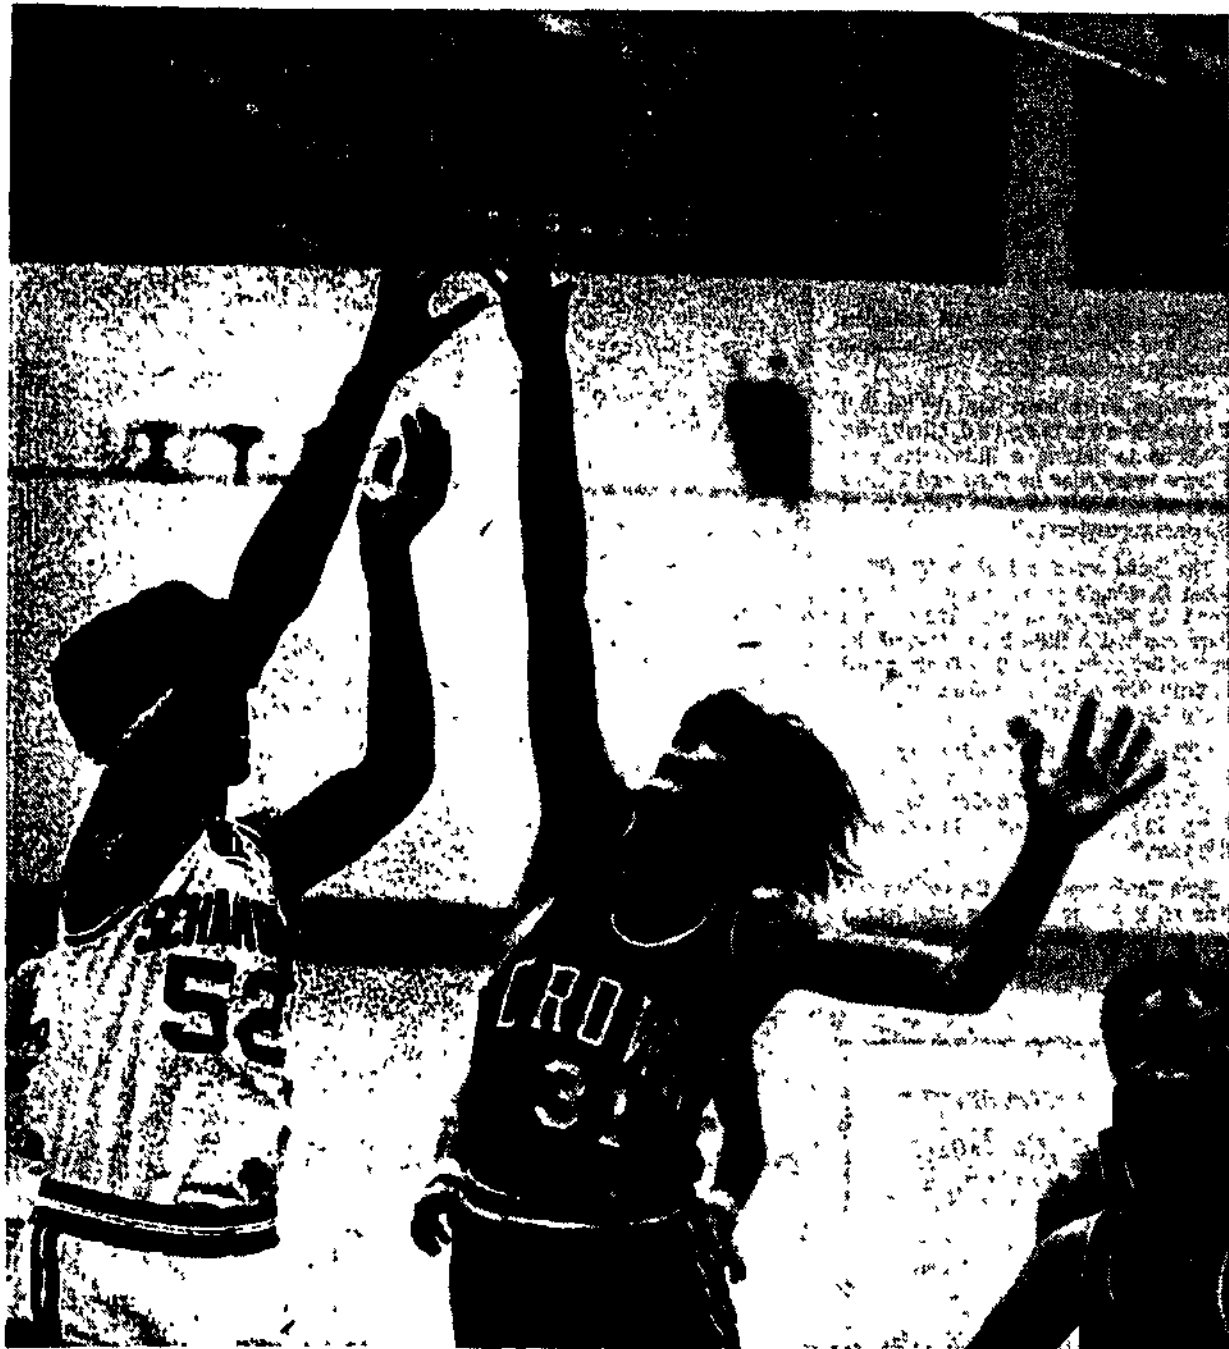

North division class AA standings show New Trier East leading at 6-1-0 followed by Evanston 4-3-0, Glenbrook North 3-3-1 and New Trier West 2-4-1.

New class A standings in the Northwest division are Arlington 3-3-1, Hersey 2-4-1, Palatine 2-4-1 and Fremd 1-6-1. Rankings in the North are Deerfield 6-1-0, Lane Tech 5-1-1, Prosser 3-3-1 and Glenbrook South 3-4-0.

BOARD BATTLE. Olive-Harvey's Charles McCullough pulls down this rebound despite efforts of Harper's Steve Heldt in action Tuesday evening. The Hawks showed a patient offense in 54 victory. (Photo by Bob Finch)

SHOOTING SAXON. Schaumburg's Steve Bengston Bernhard in action Saturday evening. The Saxons had fired a shot over the outstretched hand of Crown's Dale big third quarter in 69-60 victory.

Nordics falter on road

While the Chicago area suffered wintry weather woes this week, the Chicago Nordics traveled far north to Thunder Bay in Ontario, Canada, and Minnesota for four road games in five days and came away winless ... undoubtedly making them wish they remained in Chicago, weather and all, since they were winners in their last two home games.

Meeting the powerful Thunder Bay Hurricanes on Wednesday, Dec. 12, Chicago fell, 12-2. The only bright spots against the Hurricanes were goals by Mark Pellegrini and Scott Cariveau. Chicago was outshot 51-30, with Wes Pierce tending the nets.

The following evening against the same Hurricanes, Chicago fought hard before being over-run again by the bigger Thunder Bay team, 8-5. Chicago scorers were Craig Glander, with two goals, and Bernie Klemm, Bob Cademartori and Bobby Dyer.

Friday night, Chicago faced the Midwest Junior A Hockey League's first place St. Paul Vulcans. A combination of the grueling schedule and superior forces assembled on the Minnesota aggregation resulted in an 8-1 defeat for the Nordics.

Chicago completed the road trip by meeting the Minnesota Jr. Stars in Bloomington on Sunday evening and coming up short on a 10-4 score.

The Nordics return to Chicago for a long rest before their next two home games against Thunder Bay at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, Mount Prospect, on Saturday, Dec. 23, and Sunday, Dec. 30, at 7:30 p.m.

Special prices are in effect for these games for adults attending with a child. Each adult pays the children's price — advance $1.25 per ticket, day of game at the regular children's price of $1.50 each.

Cat wrestlers get three pins; beat Warriors

Pins by Mike Relf, Ken Smith and Ed Wargo produced the majority of points Tuesday evening as Wheeling defeated Maine West, 34-21, in non-conference.

The three wrestlers totaled 18 points for Wheeling. Relf (105) pinned Bob Krusinski in 4:22; Smith (167) pinned Ralph Rolapa in 4:25; and Wargo pinned Dave Dziagwa in 5:34.

Winners by decision for Wheeling were Pat Kamins (98) 11-0, Neal Kendall (118) 13-3, Rich Moran (128) 7-0, Mike Kamins (138) 5-0, and Jay Slezak (145) 4-2.

Maine's Paul Berner (156) pinned Dave Baublitz in 5:00 and Warrior heavyweight Stan Cordis recorded a 3:07 pin. West had a decision victory by Warren Kelleher, 2-1, over Tony Lucente at 132 pounds. Bryan Real (112) won by forfeit for Maine.

Four double duels launch league gymnastics season

by JIM COOK
Gymnastics Editor

The fun is over. Now the business begins.

The fun has been the Mid-Suburban gymnastics teams' 14-9 won-lost dominance over non-conference opponents through the first month of the season.

But the 12-member circuit will buckle down to business tonight when four double-duel meets kickoff the inter-league season that ultimately will crown the MSL champion at the conference meet Feb. 15.

Headlining the opening night festivities is Hersey and Fremd's visit to Rolling Meadows. The Huskies and Mustangs finished third and fourth, respectively, in last year's state meet and both show a wealth of promise again this season.

Elsewhere, Palatine and Conant will be at Schaumburg, Prospect and Forest View are at Elk Grove and Wheeling hosts Arlington and upstart Buffalo Grove, all beginning at 7 p.m.

Using the scores achieved by the local entries against non-league competition as a measuring stick, the 1973-74 season promises to be another banner campaign.

Elk Grove, last year's state runnerup, has posted the top dual meet score of the season by soaring to 133.42. And while apparently endowed with team depth, the Grenadiers also boast top individual talent as exhibited in their record-breaking victory in the prestigious Evanston Invitational.

Conant, Wheeling, Prospect and Arlington have all surpassed the magic century mark while Buffalo Grove, Forest View, Fremd, Palatine and Schaumburg appear on the brink of eclipsing triple figures. Hersey and Elk Grove shared the league title last year as the Huskies captured the dual meet portion and the Grenadiers the conference meet. Each segment counts one-half toward the final conference standings.

MID-SUBURBAN NON-LEAGUE STANDINGS

	W-L	High
Elk Grove	1-0	133.42
Hersey	3-0	132.71
Conant	2-1	121.76
Wheeling	0-1	118.85
Prospect	2-1	117.82
Arlington	0-1	110.44
Rolling Meadows	1-0	97.08
Schaumburg	2-1	94.72
Palatine	1-1	84.35
Forest View	1-1	83.58
Buffalo Grove	1-0	74.98
Fremd	0-2	65.79

Mosconi coming for billiards classic

Willie Mosconi, U.S. pocket billiards great, and Rex Williams of Great Britain, world professional snooker champion, climax a six-city tour in Chicago Jan. 24 in an expected showdown match.

The two are competing in the $20,000 Black Velvet Challenge, a unique tournament which requires each man to play his opponent's specialty game as well as his own.

The Illinois Athletic Club will be the site of the local match with attendance limited by invitation only.

The invitational tournament, sponsored by Black Velvet Canadian Whisky, pits the 60-year-old Mosconi, who reigned as world pocket billiards champion for nearly two decades before retiring from competition in 1957, against the 40-year-old Williams, winner of six consecutive World Professional Snooker titles.

Winner of the Black Velvet Challenge will receive $15,000 of the $20,000 total purse. The 17-day tournament opens Jan. 8 in New York. Other cities on the tour and match dates: Miami, Jan. 10; Los Angeles, Jan. 15; San Francisco, Jan. 17; Denver, Jan. 22 and Chicago.

The tournament represents a first in international billiards with Mosconi competing in snooker, Williams' specialty game, as well as in his own game. Conversely, Williams will be forced to compete in pocket billiards, in which Mosconi excels.

Both games will be played on Championship tables built exclusively for the Black Velvet Challenge by Gandy Industries of Macon, Ga.

The winner will be decided on the basis of a cumulative point system which has been developed expressly for the Black Velvet Challenge. The traditional and official scoring system for each type of billiards game will be used to determine the winner of each game, with the scores being given certain equivalent point values so that the championship is decided in an equitable manner.

Because of the unique system, it is anticipated that the tournament winner will not be decided until the final match in Chicago.

An exhibition star at the age of seven, Mosconi won his first title in 1940. Holder of numerous records, he is considered by many as the finest pocket billiards player in the history of the game.

Mosconi executed the many difficult shots attributed to Paul Newman and Jackie Gleason in the memorable motion picture The Hustler.

Williams made his first mark as English Boys Billiards and Snooker Champion in 1948. He is the only player to have scored the maximum number of points — 147 — in world snooker competition and has accomplished that remarkable feat four times.

A resident of Stourbridge, Worcestershire, Williams recently defended his championship at Chelmsford, England by playing what one British newspaper described as the best billiards seen in Britain in 30 years.

East rallies for deadlock in wrestling

Maine East, reaching back to better days of one year ago, stormed from an 18-point deficit with three matches left to earn a 25-25 tie with Evanston last Saturday in non-conference wrestling.

It was the first meet this year in which George Jurine's wrestlers haven't been defeated. Their first loss this season snapped a win streak of 31 dual meets.

The Blue Demons will take a 0-4-1 record into Friday night's dual at Maine West. Dick Carlini's Warriors are 4-1, their only loss coming Saturday, 34-11, to Proviso East.

Heavyweight Ron Grant assured Maine East's tie with Evanston when he stuck 206-pound Henry Hammel in 55 seconds. It was Hammel who sat on Grant's ankle, forcing him to default, at the Miles East tourney last month. Grant weighs 245.

Younger brother Claude Grant started East's comeback with a 5-21 pin win at 167 pounds. Terry Gilfoy followed with a 3-39 pin win at 185 pounds, cutting the deficit to Evanston 25, Maine East 19.

The Blue Demons' only other winning points were by Kurt Schmidt. Wrestling 105 pounds, Schmidt took a 5-4 decision from Evanston's Son Le.

Maine East's Al Silcroft (112) and Mike Karlins (132) completed team scoring with 3-3 ties. The Demons lost team points at 145 pounds when Joe Anzelone lost, 2-0, after a potentially dangerous hold call went against him.

Brad Bonniwell (132) won by pin at 2:43. Tony Matus (145) took a 4-2 decision and Eric Nickerson (155) had an 8-8 tie for Maine West's only points against Proviso East.

Schmitt's 27 points pace impressive effort

Harper dumps Olive-Harvey for 5th victory

by DON FRISKE

Olive-Harvey, dressed in their green and red uniforms, brought gifts of great joy to the Harper Hawk basketball team Tuesday night.

The Panthers sacrificed the one thing they wanted themselves, a win as Harper gladly obliged by accepting the gift, 64-54.

Harper took the lead on a five-foot shot by guard Mike Millner just seven seconds into the game, a lead they never gave up throughout the entire game.

With seven minutes left in the first half, the Hawks owned a 12-point lead, 28-16.

At 5:43, the Panthers had scored five straight and it looked like the Hawks were going to go into one of their patented slumps.

But Roger Bechtold, the Hawk coach, wisely called a timeout to stop the lapse in its infant stage.

Even though the Panthers did pull within five points with 1:28 left in the half, the timeout helped the Hawks settle down. The Hawks took a 34-27 lead into the locker room at the half.

Bechtold felt that the low score was due to the Panthers' zone defense.

"They were in a 1-2-2 zone defense which slowed down the tempo of the game," said Bechtold. "But we were patient enough to take the percentage shots and look for the open man."

Many times in the game, forward Gary Pemberton was the patient one with center Dave Schmitt playing the role of the open man.

"Pemberton did a good job passing and moving the ball into our center, Schmitt, who went to the basket better than he has all year," explained Bechtold.

This combination helped the Hawks stay ahead of their guests by at least eight points during the second half. Pemberton didn't score any points, but Schmitt, the target he did most of his shooting at, accounted for 27 points to lead all scorers.

Schmitt also had 13 of the Hawks' 41 rebounds, while the Panthers had 31.

Millner was the only other Hawk to score in double figures as he ended the game with 11 points.

Panther forward Joe Hutton kept his team in the game by scoring 15 of his 23 points in the second half before fouling out with less than a minute left in the game.

Harper's biggest lead of the game came with six minutes left to play when forward Steve Schmidt scored from 12 feet out to make the score 57-41.

The Hawks committed seven more turnovers than the Panthers, 28-21. The one gift the Panthers were giving away, the Hawks wouldn't accept.

Usually a good free-throw shooting team, the Hawks sunk only 10 of 24 shots from the line.

With a 5-6 over-all record, the Hawks are off until after Christmas. On December 27-28, the Hawks will be participating in the Highland Classic Tournament held at Freeport.

"I'm very happy with this win and now I'm looking forward to that holiday tourney," concluded Bechtold before going into the locker room to congratulate his team.

No. 1 Congressional news story: adjournment?

WASHINGTON — I've been asked by Roll Call, the Capitol Hill weekly, to take part in a pool to pick the 10 top congressional news stories of 1973.

Here are my nominations:

1. Congressional leaders set Oct. 15 as target date for adjournment.

The importance of this story may not be readily apparent to persons unversed in the ways of Congress. For their benefit let me explain that setting Oct. 15 as the target date is the only way Congress manages to adjourn by Christmas.

Without the Oct. 15 target date, the 1973 session would have stopped over into the first couple of months of 1974, compounding the confusion caused by the mid-winter return to daylight saving time.

2. U.S. SENATE loses its chief presiding officer as Spiro Agnew resigns to avoid going on trial and possibly to jail.

To appreciate the importance of this story one must realize that the Vice President casts the deciding vote when a Senate rollcall ends in a tie.

With Agnew out, the Senate had no way of breaking ties until his successor was appointed and confirmed.

3. Appointment of Agnew's successor delayed as top choices vow they would go to jail to avoid presiding over Senate.

4. Nixon conducts search on Capitol Hill to find loyal supporter as Agnew's successor. GOP members of Congress refuse to rat on each other publicly but several give White House secret lists containing the names of suspected Nixonophiles.

5. Major scandal rocks House of Representatives as GOP leader Jerry Ford pleads guilty to being loyal Nixon supporter. He resigns congressional seat and is sentenced to serve three years as Vice President.

6. Sen. William E. Saxbe, professing desire to return to private life, announces he will retire at the end of next year.

7. Nixon hastens Saxbe's return to private life by appointing him as Attorney General, a post where tenure is likely to be a matter of weeks, depending on what the Watergate prosecutor digs up next.

8. A Senate subcommittee hires pollster Louis Harris to make a survey which shows that the American people have more confidence in trash collectors than they do in Senators.

9. Move gets underway in Senate to bar subcommittees from commissioning public opinion polls.

10. Congress passes far-reaching measure designed to overcome fuel shortages by developing new forms of energy. Research will include projects to harness the energy of the sun, the wind, the ocean tides and Sam Ervin's eyebrows.

Pretty Foxy

Studio rules against second 'cup of Coffy'

by DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — When is a sequel not a sequel? When they use the same character but change the name.

That's what's happening now with an American-International film called "Foxy Brown." It stars Pam Grier as the same sort of rough, tough gal she played in the successful rough, tough film, "Coffy." That was such a hit for the studio they wanted something to follow it up.

But they had had bitter experiences with sequels to "Slaughter" and "Blacula" — the followups didn't do nearly as well as the originals. So this time they got smart. The sequel has the same character but she has a new name — "Foxy Brown." Call it a semi-sequel.

I watched as Foxy Brown took her lumps from a couple of bad guys behind a seedy restaurant. In the alley, she was kicked and socked and threatened with a broken bottle. They told me I should have been there the day before, when it was Foxy's turn — she wiped up a roomful of toughs.

"DON'T GET THE IDEA this is just violence," said the writer-director Jack Hill, but it was too late. I had that idea, after watching an hour of violence.

"No, it's more than violence," Hill persisted. "The film has a lot of social message. You just happened to come on a day when people were hitting each other. But we have a lot to say about the role of blacks in our society." (Hill, incidentally, is white.)

He says he has one message, his own pet message, which he gets across. In his films nobody smokes on camera. He made one exception in this one — one man smokes but he has a horrible cough.

He went back to work to supervise a scene where Pam Grier turned the tables on her attackers and conked one heavy across the back of the head with a trash can.

PAM DOESN'T MIND the violence label. She says there will always be room in our society for what's come to be called "black exploitation" films.

"Our culture loves violence," Pam says, "and likes to see it. It's good that there are other kinds of black pictures now but this kind of movie will always be popular."

She's getting a reputation as a beautiful girl with a lovely figure and a handy gal to have around in a brawl. But that's not what she wants for the long-range future.

"My goal," she says, "is to win an Oscar — and I will. I may be 80 when it happens but I will."

Artistic recognition hasn't come her way yet but she is reaping the financial rewards of success. She says, however, that she hasn't been changed by it. She still gets a $25-a-week allowance from her business manager and says that if she wants something, she has to save for it, $10 at a time.

But she pointed out her new Corvette with pride. She said she used to have a Porsche but it wasn't powerful enough to pull her horse trailer, complete with her purebred Arabian. She isn't suffering.

Dear Santa: bring TV stars a gift—some have been good

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Herewith our Christmas wishes for the occupants of television:

For "The Waltons": A Cadillac.

For "Mannix": An introduction to Frank Sinatra.

For David Carradine of "Kung Fu": A good Chinese dinner.

"The Brady Bunch": A medal for sheer nerve.

"Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice": Four tickets to a swap meet.

"Needles and Pins": An award for extraordinary uselessness.

Jean Stapleton of "All in the Family": Every prize possible.

"The Brian Keith Show": A low-sugar diet.

"Adam's Rib": A better fate. It was canceled by ABC-TV. Why doesn't CBS-TV, which knows what to do with a comedy show, take it aboard?

Howard Cosell: A night on the town with "Maude."

"Columbo": A suit from Joe Namath's tailor.

Amanda Blake of "Gunsmoke": Some Chanel No. 5, a black negligee and whatever else it takes to wake up Marshall Dillon.

"Mannix": A suit from Columbo's tailor.

Jack Lord of "Hawaii Five-O": At least one more expression. That would make two.

Rod Cameron: A million thanks to this vastly underrated actor for all those terrific low-budget movies of his that constantly show up on the home screen.

Vera Miles: A night on the town with me, or, if I'm tied up, Cary Grant.

"Calucci's Dept.": At least one rating that doesn't send the cast and the crew home crying.

Johnny Carson: A solo guest appearance on the Dick Cavett show.

Tony Randall and Jack Klugman of "The Odd Couple": More recognition for the high level performances they turn in each week.

Redd Foxx: Dinner with Alfred Hitchcock and Robert Morley.

"Shakti": Some scripts that aren't so hesitant to show the black private eye hero as flamboyant.

William Conrad: Dinner with Vera Miles and me.

Network executives everywhere: Fewer meetings and more consulting with your own intelligence and instinct. Otherwise, no matter what your title, you're just another guy in another job in another office.

Sandy Duncan demands the 'right' role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sandy Duncan, the diminutive waltz whose network television show sank without a trace last year, owes Paramount Pictures another series but doesn't know which way to turn.

Two bombs in a row could obliterate her career.

A smash hit would make her a super star. Caught between these two possibilities, tiny Miss Duncan is treading gingerly.

"I've been given a good many script ideas for a new show," Sandy said, "but you can't make any judgments on a single story line. When you ask to see several typical scripts they won't show them to you."

Sandy became a national figure when her "Funny Face" series was interrupted for surgery. Her left eye was removed in an operation for a tumor. She heard from tens of thousands of sympathetic persons, many of whom had never heard of her before.

Somewhat Sandy feels she has let her fans down.

"I DON'T CARE what kind of character I play in a new series so long as she is believable and vulnerable. And I'd rather not do a straight comedy."

Sandy is as bright as she is talented. She knows the world is not holding its breath for another situation comedy. Especially one starring a young woman.

"I realize it's almost impossible to write a series for a girl in her early or mid-twenties," she said.

"What problems does a 25-year-old girl have that could possibly interest anyone else — even other 25-year-old girls? With the world in the state it's in I should think people are more concerned about other matters.

"Realistically, how many problems can a young, attractive girl have who is just starting out in life? Even so, who cares?"

"Marlo Thomas was successful in 'That Girl.' But television has grown since those days. Viewers have become more sophisticated and mature. I don't think viewers could accept that show if it was starting today."

"Mary Tyler Moore is successful, but she is playing a woman in her 30s who is on the verge of winding up a splinter. That's different from the kind of role I would have to play."

"THERE'S ANOTHER thing going for Mary, one of the greatest supporting casts I've ever seen on television."

Sandy is content for the moment. She and Bill Bixby are starring in a Bell System Family Theater, "Married Is Better," beaming Jan. 9.

"In this show I play a married woman and a mother," she said. "I even get in bed with my husband. That may not be a television first, but it's the first time I've had a chance for a mature role."

Next April Sandy returns to the world of fantasy. She will be seen on the tube in "Sandy in Disneyland."

"It's being sponsored by McDonalds, the hamburger chain," she said, displaying a dazzling array of white teeth. "How American can you get?"

'I am an alcoholic'

Dick Van Dyke unsure how his past will affect future

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Dick Van Dyke staggered around the location site, his eyes bleary and his speech blurred in his role as an alcoholic for a television drama.

"If I look believable it's because I am an alcoholic," Van Dyke said.

Van Dyke's admission was rare among Hollywood performers with drinking problems. And he's admittedly gambling his future with his candor.

"I don't know how this decision to make public my alcoholism will affect my career," he said. "Most people think alcoholics have no will-power. They think of them as weaklings, but that's not true."

"WHEN THEY SENT me the script for this show (The Morning After) I wept. I know exactly what this character went through."

"I didn't think I drank all that much when I was drinking. But I was putting away a fifth of whiskey a day. You could say I've been rehearsing for this part for 20 years."

Van Dyke, a one-time pillar of the Presbyterian church, stopped drinking in August 1972, and except for four quick slugs — which made him sick — last spring, hasn't had a drink since.

"I never drank when I was working," the actor said. "But the minute we quit at 5 o'clock I headed right for the bottle."

"The trouble was my wife, Marjorie, began drinking too. Just to keep me company. We'd sit up until three or four in the morning, talking and drinking at the bar in our home. We both became alcoholics."

MARJORIE FLEW to Hollywood from their Arizona home during shooting of "The Morning After" to lend moral support to her husband. He found the going tough, reliving some of the nightmares he himself had experienced.

"I thought this picture would be traumatic for Dick," Marjorie said. "But we shared the same pain. It helps to have someone at your side."

Both Van Dykes entered a clinic in Phoenix, Ariz., to dry out and begin their long climb back.

"For the past two years of my drinking splurge Marjorie was physically ill," Van Dyke said. "She couldn't drink, so she began to take tranquilizers and other pills instead. The drugs were worse than the liquor."

Marjorie nodded agreement. Now she is free of the prescription drugs which had been given her by doctors, too.

"WHEN WE WERE staying up all night drinking and talking we thought we were growing closer, really communicating," Van Dyke said. "Well, we were kidding ourselves. We were just using one another as an excuse to drink every night."

"Now we are living one day at a time," Marjorie said. "We know we will never be able to drink again. Neither of us want to."

"We have that additional strength of helping one another," Van Dyke said. "Now, for the first time, we are really communicating. And in a sense, that's what this television movie is all about."

"The real reason I'm doing the picture and talking about my own problem is that if it helps steer one person away from alcoholism, then it all will have been worth it."

BIT PARTS: Henry Darrow and Stefanie Powers will costar in "Petrocelli" for NBC-TV. . . . Lorne Green and John Davidson will appear on "Sandy Duncan in Disneyland" . . . Liv Ullman will star in "Madame Bovary" for Dino De Laurentiis.

Would ya believe Helen Hayes on TV?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — When Helen Hayes first walked on a stage nobody had ever heard of movies, much less television, but the grand lady of the theater is now starring in a TV series.

She and Mildred Natwick co-star in the mini series, "The Snoop Sisters." They play a couple of mystery writers who also solve real crimes.

The two distinguished ladies met at a Chinese restaurant during their lunch break from Universal Studios the other day. No one appeared to recognize them as they sipped tea and put away a platter of shrimp with the gusto of a couple of longshoremen.

"The series is a bit of a romp," said Miss Natwick, "but it's also very hard work physically."

"HEAVENS TO Betsy," said Miss Hayes. And those were her very words. "They have us climbing over the tops of automobiles. We even jumped into a bobbing little boat."

If these dowagers produce as much charm on screen as they do off, the new show could be the surprise hit of the season.

"I don't know how realistic it is," Miss Hayes said. "At my age I wouldn't want to be out chasing down clues and murderers. Neither would you, Mildred."

Miss Natwick thought a moment and said, "I don't know. I might."

"Well, it's far-fetched," said Miss Hayes, sticking to her guns.

"We started out as a detective show, but we're doing more comedy now," Miss Natwick said. "We are only doing four episodes this season. They haven't told us how many we may do next year."

They looked at one another meaningfully, as if to say that four such shows a year would be sufficient.

"Television has become a sanctuary for character actors who can become detectives and can't do much of anything else," Miss Hayes said, including herself in a group of a dozen leading men who are playing such roles weekly on the tube.

THE TWO DENIED the suggestion that they might be playing the same sort of characters as the two elderly women in "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Miss Natwick shook her head. "Oh, no. I don't think so."

"Not at all," said Miss Hayes. "They were very daffy and old fashioned. The Snoop sisters are very hip. We even go jogging in Gramercy Park. The series is set in New York, you know."

TV commercials can be absurd at Christmastime

HOLLYWOOD — Television absurdities at Christmas-time: All those ads for electricity-using luxury items at a time when the energy crisis is bearing down and people are faced with worrying about necessities.

All those embarrassingly second-class commercials for supposedly first-class perfumes.

All those ads arguing the great issue of whether one electric razor shaves a little closer than another. It certainly is attractive to see some stubble on the home screen.

All those toy commercials that are done with a come-on opulence and sales-oriented fantasy effect that would win the admiration of P. T. Barnum.

ALL THOSE brassiere advertisements, which certainly lend a lot of class to the stations that carry them.

All those ads in which women tell us that, even though they may be doing other things at the moment, they are also simultaneously cleaning their toilet bowls you see, the product actually is doing the job, and isn't it wonderful that these ladies are so happy?

All those new car sales pitches that, with relatively few exceptions, emphasize luxury and trivia, and blithely ignore the question of mileage despite the fact of the fuel shortage. There is a sort of Alice-in-Wonderland aura to these come-ons.

All those commercials about electric shavers for women's legs, and the charming atmosphere these ads bring into the living room, especially if you see them while having something to drink or eat.

ALL THOSE game shows with money-hungry contestants who seem just a little bit on the unkind side during the Christmas season.

All those news programs offering relatively newsworthy Christmas stories because it's the season to be something or other. Bah, humbug!

All those used car sales pitches that try in vain to insert some Christmas flavor and succeed primarily in giving the season a very rare quality of sleaziness.

All those advertisements for inexpensive appliance items that can do no end of household wonders. If they're so wonderful, how come we don't see commercials for them steadily the year round?

All those deodorant ads with their wondrous sprays that will make the Christmas season smell better. These ads are particularly effective if a viewer happens to be having a snack. Along with the commercials for brassieres, feminine napkins, toilet bowl cleaners and electric shavers for women's legs, the deodorant advertisements succeed in making American television truly unique in the world. Merry Christmas.

The battered child

Abusive parents help themselves in PA

by DOROTHY OLIVER
(Second of two parts)

"The first time you go to a Parents Anonymous meeting, you say 'I abuse my kid' and tell what form it takes. After that you damn well better tell us that something bad has happened and you didn't abuse your kid."

Marilyn Collins, 26, a volunteer professional sponsor of the Des Plaines chapter of Parents Anonymous (PA), works with adults who want to stop beating their children. She is on call 24 hours a day if they need someone to talk to. She leads their weekly three-hour groups. She often spends five or six hours a day combating child abuse. And she does it for no pay because she believes PA works.

Mrs. Collins, a Naperville mother working on a doctorate in social psychology, deals in the day-to-day reality of a chronic national problem. Sitting across from her during a meeting or on the other end of the phone may be a person who says, "I'm going to kill my kid."

"IF YOU HAVE A PA meeting on Monday night, you have to give people something to keep the child safe Tuesday morning. We give them something immediately because they can't wait until next Monday to get help," she said.

The Des Plaines group is one of 49 chapters in the United States and Canada. PA began four years ago as Mothers Anonymous and was formed by Jolly K., a California mother of two, herself an abusive parent seeking help.

PA operates on a self-help technique similar to Alcoholics Anonymous. One important difference is that each PA group has a professional sponsor who is a non-abuser and who offers support, reinforcement and therapy to the members.

Ten people are in the local group. More are seeking help and Mrs. Collins is beginning a second chapter.

PA is attractive to child abusers who want to change because it affords anonymity and treatment rather than punishment.

"WE ARE NOT A threatening organization," Mrs. Collins explained. "We won't take your child away from you and we don't care what your last name is."

"PA is not a place to go and say 'I abuse my kid' and then have everyone say that's terrible. Instead we say, 'We are going to rehabilitate you and you're never going to abuse your child again.'"

PA uses a premise that "although we can't change you, we can change your response to a stimulus." By offering a parent alternatives to express his anger and frustration, he can react to a child with laughter or love rather than physical abuse.

"PA's techniques are very simple. A mother has a difficult time at breakfast. Her children dawdle around, she gets angry and the kids end up getting hurt. The more she hits the more she has to hit. We tell her to walk in the kitchen, set the timer for 20 minutes and say, 'Okay kids, when the bell rings I'm clearing the table.' She has set a limit for herself and her children. When the bell rings, she has controlled the stimulus," Mrs. Collins said.

IN CHILD ABUSE the problem is the parent, not the child, she added. The parent doesn't set the timer for the child as much as for himself.

"An abusive parent has the attitude that life is lousy. Everything's wrong. What's the use of trying. I can't get my kid to eat. I'm a rotten parent," she said. "Very small situations become monumental problems."

"We give them alternatives that will convince the parent that it is possible to make life sweet for someone else. Then it becomes sweet for them too."

Parents who join PA have a desire to overcome their problem. The group won't accept backsliding from a member. Each week some improvement must be shown or a PA rule says the parent has to leave the group. Mrs. Collins has never had to enforce that rule.

"THEY ARE SAYING, 'Help me. Guess what I do to my kid? Guess what I do to myself? Help me with that guilt, that hurt, that sick gut feeling."

"I've found many of the parents I've worked with never received a sufficient amount of mothering. I turn out to be the mother in the group," Mrs. Collins said. "They are arrested adolescents. They respond as a young teenager to a situation. They have extreme needs and no one to turn to."

Any time of the day or night they can turn to Mrs. Collins (357-2232) or other group members.

"It takes time for them to trust that I will be there. If they need me. At first they'll test me, call at 3 a.m. just to make sure. Everytime I'm there they don't have to test as much again," she said.

ONCE THE trust is established, people form deep relationships within the group. "There's a great reluctance in a person to leave. The reinforcement they receive is a great thing. The group becomes an extended family for each member — something they have never had before. It's a love relationship."

Mrs. Collins' research and personal experience have convinced her that PA offers a treatment that's right for an abusive parent — a treatment that works.

"I did a great deal of research in the courtrooms of Cook County," she said. "What I found is a parent accused of being an abuser. His child is taken away and the parent is instructed to go to a mental health center for an exam."

"Then that's that. Everyone rallies around the kid," she continued. "They make the kid the problem but the real problem, the parent, just walked out the door. Three months later the child is returned. But the parent has received no support, no instruction in parenting."

"The courts remove the child from the home in hopes that the parent will fly right, will learn to parent without their child. It's protective for the child, but not supportive for the parent."

Child abuse is a family problem, she said. Instead of hiring social workers to drag a family into court, they should be hired to go into the home and do what PA tries to do, to be there, give support, teach parenting, provide a good example.

Child abuse isn't a legal problem or a medical problem, she said. "The medical profession has literally usurped the problem from everybody else. The parent has a socialization problem — all the medicine in the world, all the court rooms in the world won't help the abusive parent. A doctor is competent when it comes to X-rays, but he can't get into the needs of the parent and the child. It's the same with the courts."

PA also goes against some of the basic psychiatric theories in treating child abusers. Mrs. Collins explained an abusive parent needs immediate help. He needs someone who cares, someone who is there when he's in a crisis.

"HE CAN'T WAIT two weeks for an answer. In analysis they give and don't get."

"With psychiatry it takes time to change. They want to remove the parent or the child from the home until change is made. In PA we rarely recommend the parent or child be removed. We say, 'Get your stuff together and work on that relationship — starting now.'"

"A parent doesn't learn a damn thing about parenting when the child is out of the home. He can't learn to feel good by not abusing his child if the child isn't there. He can't break the pattern because the pattern isn't the same."

Mrs. Collins doesn't mind the time and effort she puts into PA. Although she has a family of her own, she intends to stay with it "because it works."

"WE DON'T HAVE RECORD keeping. We have no data to provide a measurement of success."

"Every parent I've dealt with who's come in contact with PA has decreased abuse in his household tremendously. If there was a way to convince people that you don't need a bar graph to measure success, this group would blossom all over the country."

State works to control problem of child abuse

More cases of child abuse are being reported now than ever before. The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) received 1,160 reports in the last fiscal year — an increase of 20 per cent.

The number is expected to increase substantially now that a new Illinois law makes it mandatory that nursery school and day care workers, school personnel, teachers, nurses, law enforcement officials, social workers and public aid workers report cases of child abuse. Prior to the law's passage only doctors and hospitals were required to alert DCFS to a suspected child battering.

Within 24 hours after a report is turned in to DCFS through a round-the-clock hot line number, an investigator will be in the home, interviewing the family and making a determination as to what is needed.

IN EMERGENCY cases, where a child's life may be at stake, the investigator can be out in a matter of hours. If the child is to be removed from the home, the police are involved and the child is placed in an emergency foster home.

DCFS can go to court within 36 hours of taking custody to seek an order making the child a ward of the state.

According to Jim Walsh, acting section supervisor in the DCFS follow-up unit, about 40 to 50 per cent of all cases wind up in Juvenile Court which is not a criminal proceeding. The custody of the child is decided in Juvenile Court and, if the parent's offense is serious enough, the child will be removed from the home.

Parents face criminal charges only if an arrest is made by the police. Walsh said it is rare for a parent to receive more than a two-year sentence and that is usually imposed only if the child was killed.

DCFS DIRECTOR Jerome Miller has labeled response to child abuse the department's No. 1 priority. He said the department was critically concerned with 46 reports last year involving children previously reported to the agency.

These reports suggest some misfiring of the plan to protect the child — poor diagnosis of the family problem, lack of sufficient medical evidence to support removal of the child from the home, failure to obtain custody of the child or a host of other possibilities, he said.

Miller set a 1974 objective to minimize repeat abuse reports.

The new reporting procedures, he said, have caused as much as a fivefold increase in case reports in other states. DCFS is concentrating on a "redeployment" of staff in anticipation of an increase.

ACCORDING TO follow-up supervisor Walsh, his staff has been doubled in the last 12 months. Still the 26 social workers and six supervisors he is in charge of are not enough. Each person's case load increases daily, he said. Social workers make the investigations, prepare cases for court, become involved in child custody and help foster parents.

"Attempts are made to counsel parents, but there are so many new cases coming in that the new one takes precedent over the one before it," Walsh said.

After three months cases are transferred to district offices where rehabilitation for parents finally takes place. Walsh said almost all his cases wind up in the district offices.

DCFS is plagued by its scandals, most recently the death of 7-year-old Johnny Lindquist in Chicago. The agency deals in life and death situations and any mistake can stir up the wrath of public indignation.

REALISTIC people in the department admit they can't and don't help everyone. Time and lack of staff are the most important factors in its inadequacy.

DCFS is committed to the control of child abuse. Knowing his agency can't do it alone, Miller has asked his staff "to work diligently to make sure other professional practitioners and community agencies provide maximum assistance."

Alpha Gams play Santa to family

While Santa is busy finishing up the toys to be delivered to children throughout the world, there is one family whose gifts are already wrapped in bright paper and ribbons, thanks to members of Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Club of Alpha Gamma Delta.

This is the 11th year that the club has adopted a family recommended by the Chicago Easter Seal Society, at whose center at least one member of the family is currently undergoing treatment.

The Christmas project for the Alpha Gams began at the November meeting when Mrs. Thomas Podjasek, altruistic chairman, read a letter from Easter Seal describing this year's family. The grandparents and four children, who range in age from five months to 10 years, were identified by first name, age and size. Then the club members volunteered to shop for one member of the family.

MANY CHOSE TO buy for a child similar in age to one of their own. Others accustomed to shopping exclusively for girls found it a perfect chance to shop for a little boy.

Mrs. Podjasek supplied each shopper with money from the altruistic fund which was raised by the Alpha Gams' annual sale of Christmas cards.

At the December meeting the alumnae showed one another the many gifts they had purchased, among them warm gloves, a winter jacket, checker set, road racing set, a doll, blanket, cologne and baby bibs. Members were happily surprised at how far their dollars stretched while shopping.

THEN IT WAS wrap-up time for the alumnae, with everyone joining in the fun of concealing the gifts under holiday paper and ribbons. Canned goods, staples, good used clothing and used toys, along with a gift certificate at a grocery store, will also be delivered to the adopted family.

This Christmas project is a favorite of the alumnae because it gives everyone a chance to bring a special family happiness on Christmas morning.

HELPING THEIR MOMS load up Christmas gifts are Mark Smith, 5, and Jason Payne, 2, of Mount Prospect. Mrs. James Smith and Mrs.

James Payne are among AGD alumnae who adopted an Easter Seal family for the holiday.

Soroptimists offer award

To recognize and reward outstanding contributions of youthful citizens in the northwest suburban area, the Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines is seeking applicants for its annual Youth Citizenship Award.

In announcing rules for the 1974 competition, Carolyn Krause, Mount Prospect attorney, and Eleanor Rohrbach, city clerk of Des Plaines, co-chairmen, stress that this is not a scholarship or award for scholastic achievement, but rather a cash prize of $100 to be presented to a senior boy or girl in the area to recognize and reward unselfish service in home life, school, church and community activities.

In addition to the $100 presented by the local Soroptimist Club, the winner will also be eligible to compete with other local club nominees in the Midwestern Region of Soroptimist Federation of the Americas, Inc. for the regional award of $1,000, and the 17 regional winners will then compete for a $1,500 finalist award. Thus a total of more than $2,500 will go to the top winner of the Soroptimist Foundations Youth Citizenship Award.

TO BE CERTAIN that adult leaders of youth service activities in the Northwest suburban area know about the award in time to nominate senior boys and girls deserving of this honor, letters outlining requirements, and copies of the official application form have been sent by Mrs. Rohrbach to the counseling office of each high school in Dist. 207 and Dist. 214.

Letters have also gone to area hospital volunteer coordinators, YMCA, Boy and Girl Scout headquarters. Application forms may be obtained at the office of attorney Carolyn Krause, 401 E. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect, 394-1418, or from City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, 1522 Miner St., Des Plaines, 824-2012.

The official application form, completed in the candidate's own handwriting, includes a brief statement on the subject of "My responsibility as a citizen in the family . . . in the community . . . and in the world," and must be accompanied by substantiating letters written by three adults, not related to the candidate, as evidence of the young person's service, character and good citizenship.

ALL APPLICATIONS will be read and voted on the local level by a panel of citizens known for their interest and activity with youth in the northwest suburban area.

Territorial boundaries of the Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines have recently been expanded to include the northwest suburban area bounded by the Tri-State Tollway on the east, Palatine Road on the north, Route 53 (Rohwing Road) on the west and Devon Avenue on the south.

"Because of our desire to contact all eligible youth in this large area, deadline for acceptance of completed entry forms has been extended to Jan. 11," Mrs. Rohrbach said.

To qualify, the applicant must be a senior boy or girl living within the area described above, in good standing with his or her school.

Mature woman speaks for feminists

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — The short, matronly woman in the purple pantsuit moved to center stage and proceeded to challenge what she called "old husband's tales" about men and women. The young college audience laughed, clapped and gave her a standing ovation.

Wilma Scott Heide, ardent feminist and president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), concedes that she doesn't always get such a reception — but that reactions to the "women's movement" are changing.

"I've noticed from the letters I get and people I meet a difference in attitude. There's a lot less nervous, self-consciousness among most men and women. The questions being asked are more serious. There's still a lot of ridicule and fun being made, too — but things are changing."

WHO IS THIS spokeswoman (woman, that is) for the 30,000-member organization, who's not sexy like Steinem or shrill like Friedan? Mrs. Heide (pronounced Heidi) is 47, articulate and tough-minded. She says she's a radical — "but in the literal sense of getting to the root cause." She's also the mother of two teenage daughters and a recent divorcee. ("We're still good friends. We just decided not to pick up the annual option on our marriage this time.")

She's been a feminist — "I think always" — but she didn't join NOW until her husband called the group to her attention six years ago. The whole family signed up at once; Mrs. Heide took over the presidency in 1971.

Now in her second unsalaried term, (NOW picks up her expenses), Mrs. Heide devotes most of her waking hours to the cause of equal rights for women. It's no secret that some of the movement's toughest opposition comes from middle-aged, middle class women — women like Wilma Heide herself — who say they don't need "liberating." That's O.K. with her, but she wants every woman to ask herself: "Am I all that I'd like to be and am capable of being?" That question may result in new awareness and reevaluations, she thinks.

ASK MRS. HEIDE what she'd like to see NOW accomplish before her presidency is over next May, and you'd get a very long list. But high on her list of priorities: ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment by state legislatures, expansion of child care facilities, new credit laws for women and more women in decision-making positions.

She knows she has her work cut out for her. "No other movement examines so many important relationships between men and women. That's why it so excites — and threatens — people," she says. But, she adds, "I'm forever optimistic, and we've hardly begun to clear our throats."

Blind date led to altar

A blind date two and a half years ago started a romance for an area couple, Cynthia A. Schalla of Mount Prospect and John M. Jakymiw of Palatine.

They were married Nov. 24 in a 3:30 p.m. ceremony in St. Raymond Catholic Church. It incorporated the Ukrainian Catholic Byzantine rite with the Roman Catholic Nuptial Mass in which Father Poorman of St. Joseph's Church, Chicago, performed the wedding service and Father Klepura of St. Raymond's the Mass.

Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schalla, 203 N. Fairview Ave. She graduated from Prospect High School in '71, then attended Harper College and is a secretary for Kemper Insurance Co. in Long Grove.

John is also employed at Kemper's in Long Grove in the computer facilities. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jakymiw of 1055 N. Grove Ave., Palatine, he graduated from Gordon Tech High School, Chicago, and attended the University of Illinois.

HE AND CYNTHIA exchanged vows and rings in an ivory, gold and avocado setting.

The bride wore an ivory silk organza gown topped with a beaded Alencon lace bodice and lantern sleeves. Appliques of the lace dotted the A-line skirt which ended in a sweep train.

She completed her attire with an elbow-length butterfly veil and a Juliet cap of lace studded with seed pearls. Her cascade bouquet contained three white orchids surrounded by yellow and white roses, baby's breath and greens.

Cynthia's attendants appeared in gold and avocado. The matron of honor and two bridesmaids wore gold crepe Victorian gowns trimmed with ivory lace ruffles on the bib front, the high neck and leg of mutton sleeves. They wore matching gold Juliet caps and carried colonial bouquets tied with avocado ribbon. Their flowers were yellow Snowdrift mums, bronze pompons and gold daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jakymiw

THE TWO LITTLE flower girls wore avocado crepe dresses trimmed in ivory lace and carried the same variety of flowers as the adult attendants but in baskets tied with gold streamers.

The groom's sister, Irene, 5, and Kris Mularie, 7, of New Brighton, Minn., were flower girls.

Barbara Donahue, childhood friend and neighbor of the bride, was matron of honor, with Mary Jakymiw, the groom's sister, and Cheryl Mularie of New Brighton as bridesmaids. Cheryl is a former resident of Mount Prospect.

John chose William Klebovic of Lake Zurich for his best man and Ken Schalla, Cynthia's brother, and Michael Leskiw, Chicago, as ushers.

A dinner reception followed at Nielsen's Restaurant, Rosemont, for 130 guests, after which the newlyweds left for a week in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania.

They are making their home in Mundelein.

The poinsettia that wouldn't fire

Sometimes, it's harder to kill a plant than it is to grow it.

I found that out when I casually noted to a neighbor that she could try to make her rather spindly-looking poinsettia co. into bloom. "Put it to bed in a closet every night for three weeks at 8 o'clock and take it out again at 8 a.m. faithfully. It may fire (turn red) for you," I told her.

"You do it," she said, sloughing it off on me. I was so startled I had put my foot in my mouth that I found myself going home with the thing.

Afterwards, I took a good look at it. I hadn't seen anything as gangly as that poinsettia since the junior high school sock hop.

Suddenly I realized that my neighbor probably expected me to bring this mess into bloom for Christmas. Next Christmas — maybe — with a miracle, but ... for the most part, it was a hopeless case. I PUT THE poinsettia in the closet for five days, conveniently neglecting to bring it out at all. All this time I didn't water it and added another unwatered week to its death sentence for good measure.

The next time I looked the rascal was still hanging on to dear life. I was so happy when I heard the temperature was dipping to 20 degrees, and I found a nice drafty place for the plant to rest (in peace, I hoped) in my unheated garage.

Expecting to see it cut down by the cold the next day, I went to the garage only to find it gone.

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

"Oh, I forgot to tell you, Mommy," my daughter said, I found this nice plant out there so I brought it in the house last night."

So I tried again the following night, hiding it under the car so the little darling wouldn't find it.

NEXT MORNING my husband came running in the house, after I thought he had pulled his car out of the garage and taken off for work. "Judy's plant is out there," he wailed, "and it's DEAD!!!!!!"

"You don't say?" I replied. I've just come home from the dime store where I purchased a replacement poinsettia that looks as close to Judy's as I could find — it set me back $1.97. In fact, the new one is a shade better-looking for $1.97 than Judy's plant ever was in its prime.

When I give her the little blooming cheapie on Christmas, Judy will think I'm a 21-day wonder — super-gardener — and don't you tell her different! Merry Christmas!

Chauffered in a Rolls-Royce

Following their Nov. 10 wedding JoAnne Werling and Lawrence D. Krol rode off in a chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce, vintage 1948, the year in which JoAnne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Werling, Rolling Meadows, were married.

The Werlings reside at 2712 Dove St., and Lawrence's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Krol, are also Rolling Meadows residents at 3805 Bluebird.

The 4:30 p.m. candlelight, double ring service was held in Community Church of Rolling Meadows with Pam Kenny, McHenry, as matron of honor, and the couple's sisters, Kathy Werling and Linda Krol, as bridesmaids. Beverly Vignati, St. Albans, W. Va., and Jeane Holman, Escondido, Calif., were also bridesmaids, and JoAnne's cousin, Karyn Kohlmeier, 2, Longwood, Fla., was flower girl. Karyn's 5-year-old brother, John, was ring bearer. The children's mother was flower girl for the bride's parents.

TOM HAGEDAL, Arlington Heights, was best man, and ushers were Gary Heidt, Rolling Meadows; Paul Coddington, Buffalo Grove; Glenn Moyer, Wheeling; and Stan Krol, a cousin from Palatine.

A reception was held at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Palatine, after which the newlyweds left on an eight-day honeymoon at Disney World.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Krol

Both JoAnne and Lawrence are 1970 graduates of Forest View High School. The groom is with Industrial Die Mold, Elk Grove Village, and the newlyweds are residing in Bloomingdale.

Missouri graduates married Nov. 24

Karen A. Sigfusson and Gregory S. Bates, both graduates of Prospect High School and the University of Missouri - Columbia, were married Nov. 24 in Kenilworth and have returned to their jobs in Kansas City. Karen received her degree in elementary education and is with North Kansas City School District. Greg received a degree in history and political science and is with the law firm of Shook, Hardy and Bacon.

Daughter of Benedict Sigfusson, who has recently moved from Mount Prospect to Hinsdale, Karen and Greg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bates, 1317 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights, were married in Kenilworth Union Church in a 1 p.m. double ring, candlelight service.

Karen chose an eggshell crepe dress with fitted lace and beaded bodice, bishop sleeves, full skirt and short train. Her matching headpiece held a long illusion veil, and she carried white roses with daisies, poms, ivy and stephanotis.

DONNA SIGFUSSON, Mount Prospect, was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Connie Foster, Mount Prospect; Jan Lauer, St. Louis; and Mrs. Edward Zajonc, Klamath Falls, Ore.

The girls wore screen print gowns in harvest colors. Donna was in gold, the others in orange, green and brown. They carried wheat-colored baskets with tangerine-colored roses, bronze and butterscotch daisy poms, baby's breath, pepper grass and eucalyptus.

The groom chose his brother, Thomas of Arlington Heights, as best man, and Paul E. Lutgen, Columbia; Sidney Heeter, Jefferson City, Mo.; and C. Bruce Pfander, Springfield, Mo., as groomsmen. Ushers were the couple's brothers, Paul B. Sigfusson and Jeffrey C. Bates, Wellesley, Mass., and Jim Bob Wilson, Columbia.

The couple greeted friends at a reception in the Kenilworth Club.

Chicago auto dealers cool on consumer action panel

As noted recently in The Consumer, public confidence in the quality of consumer products has plunged in the last 10 years. Among the categories of products which consumers feel have declined most in quality are household appliances and, of course, automobiles.

It will be interesting to see whether this attitude changes any in response to the consumer action panels (CAPs) being created by various industries. So far there are four such panels in operation, including the household appliance and automobile industries.

AutoCAP was organized this year in 12 states by local and state chapters of the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA).

However, Illinois does not have such a panel and apparently never will unless there is a change either of heart or of administration in the Chicago Automobile Trade Association (CATA).

THE 600-MEMBER CATA, which is the local representative of NADA, "hasn't even considered" setting up a consumer action panel, according to the group's public relations director, Len Green.

Green at first explained to this reporter that "we have an agreement with the newspapers ('action line' sections) to send complaints on cars to us and we take it up with the manufacturer."

However, when asked if people could be informed of this arrangement so they could send their complaints directly to CATA instead of to newspapers, Green gasped. "No! We don't want people sending complaints to us. The only reason we handle these (action line complaints) is to keep it out of the papers. We don't want publicity. And we don't want the NADA thing (consumer action panel)."

But what, then, should Chicago area

The consumer

by Monica Wilch

and other Illinois car owners do when they cannot resolve problems through the dealer or manufacturer?

"I don't know what people should do," was Green's impatient reply. "The important thing is to keep publicity out of the paper — this is detrimental."

So much for AutoCAP. THE MAJOR Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP), which was begun in 1970, recently issued a report on its first two years of operation. According to the report, MACAP handled 626 complaints in that time, resolving 53.1 per cent; 46.9 per cent were closed unresolved, and 6.7 per cent are pending.

Of the unresolved cases, MACAP said 62 per cent were unjustified; in 16.4 per cent of the cases, consumers refused the MACAP recommendation, and in 8 per cent, the company involved refused the MACAP recommendation.

The MACAP record, while not perfect, nevertheless is a step in the right direction toward improving consumer experience with household appliances. Their address is 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606.

The other CAPs are CRICAP (Carpet and Rug Industry), Box 1568, Dalton, Ga. 30720; and FICAP (Furniture Industry), Box 951, High Point, N.C. 27261.

Lima bean flour good sub for wheat in allergy diet

Dear Dorothy: I've been on a wheat-free diet for almost 50 years so have been cooking with lima bean flour as I've found it thickens best. Health food stores carry this flour. When cooking a pot roast, I brown it — add parsley, sliced celery and onion, but no water. I do the whole thing in an electric fry pan very slowly. For the gravy, I put all the juices in the blender (from the fry pan), add the water from the separately cooked vegetables (like green pepper, small white onions, carrots, celery and so forth) and then add about one-half cup of lima bean flour and a few drops of Worcestershire and the popular vegetable coloring and seasoning. I let the whole thing whirl in the blender and then cook it for a few minutes on top of the stove. The gravy is never lumpy. More water can be added if it's too thick. —Nell Leake

This might be the ideal thing for all those heading into holiday dinners holding misgivings because of wheat allergies. It may work around here, too, and for a change his nbs may accept gravy over the turkey. Many thanks, Nell.

Maid to bow at Cotillion

Seven young women from the northwest suburbs will be presented to adult society when the pageantry and drama of Cotillion VIII unfolds Friday, Dec. 28, at the Continental Plaza Hotel, Chicago.

The Cotillion Room of the hotel will be the stage for the annual event sponsored by the auxiliary of Holy Family Hospital. Funds raised by the cotillion, the only one of its kind in this area, will be used to purchase additional diagnostic and care equipment for the hospital.

Each debutante will have two escorts in addition to her father. For weeks, dads and debs have been practicing the waltz, cotillion figures and the grand march under the direction of Mrs. Karl Ohlson, Des Plaines, and Mrs. Richard Golden, Mount Prospect, who share the duties of choreography and dance instruction.

AS THE FATHERS escort the debutantes across the room, a vignette, prepared by Mrs. John McMahon, Mount Prospect, will be read by Art Roberts, well-known radio and television personality.

The debutantes will be presented to the Most Rev. Thomas J. Grady, auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of Chicago. He will receive the girls individually and present each with a certificate and a medal to commemorate the occasion.

Floral creations and decorations for Cotillion VIII will be prepared by Morgan O'Brien florist shop, Des Plaines. David Mall and his orchestra will provide music for figures and dancing, alternating with a rock band.

DEBUTANTES TO be presented at the cotillion are: Joan Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Murray, Arlington Heights; Susan Bonaguidi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bonaguidi, Des Plaines; Noreen Jakacki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jakacki, Des Plaines; Chris Marconi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Marconi, Des Plaines; Carol Silvka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Silvka, Des Plaines; Linda Szarynski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Szarynski, Des Plaines; and Janet Trapani, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Trapani, Mount Prospect.

Co-chairmen for the event are Mrs. Paul McCall and Mrs. William Sim, Mount Prospect. Seating for the cotillion will be at tables of 10 and advance reservations are required. Further information is available by calling 394-2477 or CL 9-2666.

Next on the agenda

BUFFALO GROVE NEWCOMERS

The Madrigal Singers will present the program tonight when Buffalo Grove Newcomers meet at the Willow Grove Club House, Old Willow Grove Road, Wheeling.

The 8 o'clock program will also include a cookie exchange.

ONES

The Ones Club, composed of single people over 21 years of age, will meet at the First Congregational Church, Marion and Graceland Avenue, Des Plaines, at 6:30 p.m., Sunday to go Christmas caroling. Warm-up refreshments will be served afterwards.

The following Sunday, Dec. 30, the group will get together at the church at 7 p.m. for a pizza preparation party and rap session. A charge of $1.50 will be made to cover ingredients and beverages.

Information about activities or membership may be obtained by calling 292-5561.

PALANOS PARK GARDENERS

Dinner at The Lancer Restaurant,

Schaumburg, opened holiday festivities last Thursday for members of Palanosi Park Garden Club. After the meal the women returned to the home of Mrs. Hubert Hamilton on Linden Avenue for a gift exchange. The gifts were all hand-made by the members.

Jellies and jams were collected at the November meeting to be given to the Park Ridge School for Girls.

Infant Welfare has four new members

Four new members attended their first meeting of the Palatine Center of Infant Welfare Society of Chicago, in the Plum Grove home of Mrs. John Driscoll. President Mrs. Edwin Bruning welcomed Mrs. James Daly, Inverness; Mrs. Ronald England, Plum Grove; Mrs. Richard Klotz, Plum Grove; and Mrs. Henry Rojas, Palatine.

At the business meeting following the annual buffet luncheon, plans were discussed for a spring benefit.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in December to:

1. Make a gingerbread house trimmed with candy. Use boiled white frosting to put it together.
2. Try to identify the tiny tracks which you see in the snow.
3. Investigate the self-service drying cleaning establishments and the do-it-yourself car washes.
4. Support the community Christmas programs being given by your locality.
5. Skip television for one entire day; turn on the radio instead.
6. Decide if the words — gay, enthusiastic and magnetic could be used to describe YOU!
7. Write a Christmas letter expressing praise, appreciation and love for each member of your household.
8. Note this idea by Bacon: "A wiseman will make more opportunities than he finds."

Rosemarie graduated from Forest View High School and is employed by Mykroy, Inc., Arlington Heights. Kenneth is employed by Super-Cut, Inc., Chicago.

Advertisers told: Sell citizenship

by GAY PAULEY

A famed motivational researcher calls on the billion dollar advertising industry to sell more than its products — also sell good citizenship.

The suggestion couldn't come at a better time.

As the researcher, Dr. Ernest Dichter puts it, "We may all know how to recite the pledge of allegiance, on how many presidents there were, but living in a democracy, as our Watergate hearings show, demands something entirely different."

"How many of us have really learned to combat prejudices within ourselves? How many have learned to accept criticism, to live with a president they did not vote for, to react not emotionally to the issues, but in an intelligent and rational way?"

DICHTER, HEAD OF the Institute for Motivational Research, Inc., Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., says that "billions of dollars are spent on advertising and a good portion of it now is devoted to fulfilling the task of social responsibility."

But he indicates there's room for much more awareness in the business community. For one, he will tailor a citizenship test for a client — he's already devised one for one corporation.

Writing the current "Findings," Institute publication, Dichter tells some methods by which good citizenship can be sold.

"For example," he says, "In asking people to decide between one brand and another, they could very well teach them at the same time how one makes decisions altogether, which of course is an extremely important process in voting, and is not being taught at present in elementary or high schools."

"The advertiser could be of great help and do something worthwhile, both for his product and for the improvement of our democratic institutions."

"The advertiser also can sell the public on awareness of one's emotions and often lack of control over them."

DICHTER TELLS how. "The advertiser could refer to a particular product or service and say, 'Be aware that you may well be guided . . . by your own emotions.' In other words, we are not trying to put one over on you. Of course we're playing on your desire to be more beautiful . . . the innate desire that most of us have for safety or for security. That's why we write the ads and the commercials the way we do, trying to sell you insurance."

"But instead of using any kind of subversive approaches, we are telling you about it quite openly . . . you are being influenced much more than you think by emotion. For example, you may vote for a candidate just because he is good looking or because he has a nice voice, but he may really not be the right kind of public servant."

Dichter says advertisers should be honest in their claims and honest with the reader or listener in what the advertiser is doing.

A commercial for a garment could also carry the message, be guided by your own beliefs even though your friends may tell you the garment is not right for you — "Have your own standards and don't just bend with the wind. That's the kind of citizen who will not be too easily influenced by rhetoric or false propaganda."

In other words, says Dichter, with such sales approach, "It might be possible to instill . . . another lesson in democratic living."

Try cones in wreaths

What kinds of plant materials do you need to make Christmas decorations? Cones are one big item. For a tailored wreath, you'll need cones that are as uniform in size and shape as possible.

If you're going to make a free-form wreath, collect as many different sizes of cones as possible. Cones are attractive either right side up, sideways or upside down. (UPI)

Greenery for trim

For greenery when making natural Christmas decorations, use any available branches. Try to cut the branches just before using them to keep them in shape as long as possible.

If cut in advance, keep the branches in water until you're ready to work with them. (UPI)

Clearbrook House has yule spirit

Residents of Clearbrook House, Arlington Heights, spent a recent evening making gifts for friends and tree ornaments for the first Christmas tree in their new home.

Eight members of the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club brought ideas and materials to help as part of the continuing program aimed at aiding these mildly retarded young adults make their own way in the community.

For safety's sake

Check lights before putting on the tree. Discard any with frayed wires.

Turn off tree lights when leaving house.

When the Christmas tree begins to shed needles, it's time to discard it — for safety's sake.

Be sure decorative holiday lighting does not overload electrical circuits.

Use only off-the-tree lighting on metal trees. This guards against the danger of shock if tree light cords become frayed.

See that Santa sets up the Christmas tree in the coolest part of a room. That is, away from radiators, heaters and fireplace. (UPI)

Colorful goods

Colorful gourds in combination with leaves, dried flowers, cat tails and driftwood can add touches of individuality to arrangements in your home. To prepare gourds for decorative uses, wash them in soapy water and rinse in clean water, to which a household disinfectant has been added. Each one should be carefully dried. (UPI)

Data link smoking, arterial thrombosis

The first direct causative link between cigarette smoking and arterial thrombosis, the process which leads to heart attack, stroke and peripheral vascular disease, is the subject of a report in the medical journal, Circulation.

Dr. Peter H. Levine, a physician at the Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston, presents data showing that smoking of only one standard filter tipped cigarette has a striking effect on the reactivity of the blood platelets. Blood platelets are one of the cellular components of the blood. They are small cells, much smaller in size than red blood cells. Their major function is to initiate the blood clotting system.

Dr. Levine's demonstration of markedly enhanced platelet function following cigarette smoking may explain why cigarette smokers have higher documented rates of heart attack, stroke, occlusive peripheral vascular disease and sudden death than do non-smokers. (UPI)

Ginger stars as lingerie designer

by HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

Ginger Rogers has it made. At 77 — she won't tell her age — she has a successful screen career behind her. She was named by Nureyev in a Christian Science Monitor feature article as a superb dancer, she's done "Dolly" on Broadway, "Mame" in London and toured as "Coco." All this after years of unbelievable fame achieved in the era of the movie spectacular as Fred Astaire's dancing partner — a team that never came up with a bomb.

And now she's a fashion consultant and lingerie designer (she's rarely without a sketchbook these days) for the J.C. Penney Stores. She seems busy and happy and looks fantastic.

When asked why she decided to become a fashion consultant and designer, she answered simply, "It's like being asked how I came to dance with Fred Astaire. He asked me."

"I'VE ALWAYS wanted to do something like this because I have designed for myself for a long time. I have designed just for me — never professionally.

"When I was asked to do it as a career, it was like when a friend who serves a lot of caviar asks you to dinner. You say, 'I thought you'd never ask.'"

How come this lady who wore and could always afford couture clothes was willing to be fashion consultant and design lingerie for J.C. Penney?

"Well," said Ginger, "the reason I decided to design at all came about years ago. I was teed off when I wore an expensive dress to a party. It was made for ME by Irene."

"I got there first. But minutes later Marlene Dietrich showed up in the same dress."

"I never would have thought she would go for the dress. It was all ME," said Ginger.

"BUT THAT WAS an expensive lesson and I vowed it would never happen to me again — at that price anyway."

"At least when you design for a non-couture house you don't expect your customers to feel they have originals. So they may run into a few duplicates. But at least at those prices they can't be angry."

Once before she was offered a commercial job in fashion. She was asked if she would agree to let her own designs — the ones she made for her movie career — to be copied and sold as a line. But her manager wouldn't let her do it — "He said it would cheapen my clothes."

Now, not copying her own wardrobe at all, she brings her expertise to the fashion consumer who can't afford tremendously expensive clothes but who has a flair for fashion.

Ginger has had a varied career since her Fred Astaire days. She has written and published three songs. And she paints.

"AFTER DOING 'Dolly' all week and getting home at 2 a.m. I would get up at 9 a.m. and paint until the sun went down."

"I have a whole roomful of canvases," she said. "I haven't had time to get them out and hang them."

As fashion consultant for J.C. Penney she gives publicity tours and in-store appearances to get questions from her audiences.

"Hey, you out there," she says, "what do you want that you're not getting?" And as a result of this kind of approach the firm is getting into large sizes that are fashionable.

Her lingerie designs take both good looks and comfort into consideration. There are vents in sleeves, pants, sides of sleepshirts. And low-cut round necklines go over rollers.

Others of her lounge designs can interplay as evening wear.

GINGER HAS BEEN invited to lecture at the Parsons School of Design and the New School for Social Research in New York. And she has spoken before fashion groups across the country.

She exudes enthusiasm over her new career. "I love beautiful fabrics," she said. "Invariably I start from there. Once I've got the fabric, I make sketches and try to develop a coordinated unit of, say, a lined coat, dress to match the lining and another to pick up the color of the outer coat, plus a skirt and usually two belts." A tall order? Not for Ginger who says, "I want to design sportswear."

She'll make it in whatever she wants to do in fashion. She's good and she's enthusiastic. An unbeatable team — as was Rogers and Astaire.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

DESIGNS FROM Ginger Rogers' new lingerie line for J. C. Penney may be worn for lounging at home or for entertaining. Ginger is now lingerie designer and fashion consultant for the firm.

THE MAVERICK FROM HAMMOND

The Maverick gives you instant involvement with its amazing autochording... the feature that lets you play with a lazy left hand. And the Maverick has everyone's favorites: ten orchestral voices including trumpet, violin, clarinet and a strumming banjo, seven automatic rhythms and a host of other features including an inbuilt cassette and the colorful Hammond Touch, a programmed approach to learning music while having fun.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Herald Newspaper does not knowingly accept HELP WANTED ads that indicate a preference based on age from employers covered by the
AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT.
HELP WANTED headings directed specifically toward either men or women are used merely for the convenience of our readers, to let them know which jobs have historically been more attractive to persons of one sex than the other. The placement of an ad under a heading is not in itself an expression of a preference, limitation, specification or discrimination based on sex.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

In the midst of high speed, busy world, an old-fashioned holiday season brings peace, contentment and happy merriment to all. Handfashioned decorations are all around the house. Cards are designed by the most artistic with everyone helping to make, write and send them. There's a Christmas tree bright with strings of cranberries and popcorn and glistening tree ornaments created imaginatively — right at home.

Christmas dinner is old-fashioned, too, although many of the foods today are more conveniently prepared and provide a simple way of life for the cook as well as her holiday diners. Duckling as the main course for four (or a brace of duckling for eight people enjoying Christmas together) couldn't be easier or more delectable.

Stuffed with a truly old-fashioned stuffing, the duckling bakes two and one-half to three hours, requiring hardly a peek in the oven. The Spicy Fruit Cocktail Sauce teams the combination of five fruits with such flavors as cinnamon and cloves to make a sauce superb. It's served over the golden brown duckling.

Highlight of the Holidays

Pirouette Holiday Torte is almost sinfully delicious, as pretty and as irresistible as the holiday season itself. Two different kinds of cookies are the important "crust" of the Torte. Pirouettes (from which the dessert gets its name) and sugar cookies alternate to circle the torte in a spring form pan. Sugar cookie crumbs form the bottom layer. A cluster of pirouettes stands straight up to garnish the very center of the Torte, along with peach slices.

Sliced peaches go inside the Torte and unflavored gelatin sets everything nicely as whipped topping and beaten egg whites puff it to a frothy delight.

Served buffet-style from a sideboard or on the dining room table, the Christmas menu becomes an unforgettable highlight of the happy holiday season.

Old Fashioned Roast Duckling with Spicy Fruit Cocktail Sauce

- |   |                                  |
|---|----------------------------------|
| 1 frozen duckling (4-12 to 5 pounds), defrosted | 1 egg, well beaten               |
| 1 teaspoon salt                                 | 1/2 cup hot water                |
| 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped onion               | 1 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning |
| 1 1/2 cups diced celery                         | Dash of pepper                   |
| 1/2 cup butter or margarine                     | Spicy Fruit Cocktail Sauce       |
| 4 cups toasted bread cubes                      |                                  |

Wash, drain and dry duckling. Sprinkle 1/2 teaspoon salt over neck and body cavities. Cook onion and celery slowly in butter until tender but not brown. Pour vegetable mixture over bread cubes. Add egg and hot water; mix gently. Add remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, poultry seasoning and pepper; mix well. Fill neck and body cavities loosely with stuffing. Skewer neck skin to back. Cover opening of body cavity with aluminum foil and tie legs together loosely. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in 325 degree oven until drumstick is very tender, about 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Serve with Spicy Fruit Cocktail Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Spicy Fruit Cocktail Sauce

- |                                  |                                |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail | 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon          |
| 2 tablespoons sugar              | 1/4 teaspoon cloves            |
| 1 tablespoon cornstarch          | 1 tablespoon lemon juice       |
|                                  | 2 teaspoons grated orange rind |

Drain fruit cocktail; save syrup. Combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon and cloves. Add syrup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Add drained fruit cocktail, lemon juice and orange rind; heat. Serve over duckling.

Pirouette Holiday Torte

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 9 pirouette cookies                                    | 1/2 cup kirsch (cherry liqueur)                 |
| 9 sugar cookies  | 1 tablespoon grated orange rind                 |
| 1 1/2 cups fine sugar cookie crumbs (about 15 cookies) | 2 envelopes (2 ounces each) whipped topping mix |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted                    | Garnish   |
| 2 cans (29 ounces each) cling peach slices             | 1 (2 ounce) whipped topping mix                 |
| 1/4 cup sugar  | 7 pirouette cookies                             |
| 2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin         | Red maraschino cherries                         |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt                                      | Green maraschino cherries or candied pineapple  |
| 3 eggs, separated                                      | Mint sprigs or holly                            |

Alternate 9 pirouettes and 9 sugar cookies around edge of buttered 9-inch spring form pan, standing them upright in pan. Combine cookie crumbs and melted butter; mix well. Press crumbs into an even layer over bottom of pan and against bottom of cookies. Chill well. Drain peaches well; save syrup. Set aside 18 peach slices for garnishing top of torte; cover and chill until finishing torte. Add water as needed to reserved peach syrup to make 2 cups of liquid. Combine 1/2 cup sugar, gelatin and salt; mix. Stir in liquid and egg yolks and mix well. Cook, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved and mixture hot. Cool and stir in kirsch and orange rind. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and continue beating until egg whites are stiff and glossy. Fold into gelatin mixture. Prepare 2 packages of whipped topping mix as directed on package label. Fold into gelatin mixture. Spoon 1/2 of gelatin mixture in an even layer into chilled crust. Top with remaining drained peach slices. Spoon remaining gelatin mixture over peach slices. Chill until firm. Garnish torte just before serving. Prepare remaining whipped topping mix as directed on package label. Mark off top of torte into 6 equal wedges using a thin strip of whipped topping put through rose tip of pastry tube or by spooning it on with teaspoon. Arrange 3 peach slices in each section. Garnish with red and green cherries or pineapple. Stand 7 pirouettes upright in center of torte, tree fashion, and top with a mint or holly sprig, if desired. If desired, edge base of torte with whipped topping mix and garnish with red and green fruit. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

MRS. ROBERT MARKHAM'S two children, Strausie and Bill, add cutout pastry shapes to a whipped cream garnished Pumpkin Chiffon Pie. Joyce Markham makes the Christmas cutouts from pie dough then adds colored sugar.

Mrs. Robert Markham

She cooks holiday roast outside

by LOIS SEILER

Something different to serve for Christmas dinner or anytime during the holidays is a delicious garlic-flavored beef roast prepared on the grill.

It is a favorite of Bob and Joyce Markham of Mount Prospect, who enjoy it year 'round. They feel it's worth donning the goulashes to cook outdoor because of the flavor bonus, and once the roast is on the grill it needs little attention other than to check for doneness. If the weather happens to be too inclement, Joyce reluctantly resorts to using the oven. With either method, the roast is always a success.

Joyce learned how to prepare this roast from her mother-in-law. Preferring a sirloin tip, she simply cuts rows of slits in the meat and inserts cubes of cheese coated with garlic powder. As the cheese melts, the garlic flavor permeates the beef.

"There is no cheese flavor at all, although I think it helps to tenderize the meat," Joyce said. "The roast is a nice change from turkey, and leftovers are great for sandwiches."

As an accompaniment she suggests a Macaroni Cheese Bake which complements the beef and especially appeals to men.

"If the roast is done on the grill, there is no gravy," Joyce remarked, "so the macaroni is a good substitute for potatoes."

THIS UNIQUE casserole is very light and soufflé-like in texture, with cheese and onion giving it lots of zest. "It's easy, too, because there is no last-minute fuss," Joyce said. She also recommends serving it with other roasts and chops.

For the vegetable, sliced zucchini squash can be baked in the oven right along with the macaroni. Joyce seasons it with several herbs and lots of Parmesan cheese. A molded salad also goes well with this dinner.

This good cook's choice for dessert is a light and luscious Pumpkin Chiffon Pie.

"It has the traditional pumpkin flavor, but goes down a lot easier after a heavy meal," she said. "If you want to gild the lily, you may garnish it with whipped cream."

The pie also appeals to youngsters and is favored by the Markham children, Bill, 4, and Strausie, 2.

A recipe clipper, Joyce loves trying new dishes and belonged to Newcomers Couples Gourmet for two years.

Garlic Beef Roast

1 5-to-7-pound rolled beef roast (sirloin tip preferred)
1/4 pound Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons garlic powder
Salt and pepper to taste
Make four rows of slits about one inch long and 1/2-inch deep lengthwise across the roast. There should be a row on the top, bottom and each side.

Cut cheese into cubes 1 by 1/2-inch in size. Roll cubes in garlic powder and insert into slits. Salt and pepper roast. Place in Weber grill with gray coals banked on each side, or on a rotisserie. Do not place directly over coals. For medium-rare, cook to 135 degrees on meat thermometer. For the oven method, place roast on rack fat side up and roast at 325 degrees about 26 minutes per pound.

Macaroni Cheese Bake

1 cup cooked macaroni (elbow or shells)
2 cups extra-sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
1 cup milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons grated onion
Combine all ingredients and mix lightly. Turn into a greased, 1 1/2-quart baking dish. Place dish in a pan containing one inch of hot water.
Bake at 350 degrees until mixture doesn't adhere to knife when inserted in center, about one hour. Remove and serve on dinner plates garnished with parsley. Serves 6.

Baked Zucchini

3 medium zucchini
Oregano
Basil
Thyme
Rosemary
Salt and pepper
Parmesan cheese
Butter
Paprika
Wash zucchini and slice each one lengthwise in two pieces. Place in baking dish and sprinkle with herbs and lots of Parmesan cheese. Dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Pour 1/2-inch water into bottom of dish. Bake at 350 degrees about one hour. Serves 6.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie

1 9-inch pie shell, baked
1 envelope unflavored gelatin

1/4 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup water
3 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
1/4 cup granulated sugar

Mix gelatin, brown sugar, salt and spices thoroughly in saucepan. Stir in milk, water, egg yolks and pumpkin. Mix well. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Mixture should be heated thoroughly, but do not boil. Remove from heat; chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

Beat egg whites until stiff; beat in granulated sugar. Fold gelatin mixture into stiffly-beaten egg whites. Turn into baked pie shell and chill until firm. If desired, garnish with whipped cream. Serves 8.

How to beat high cost of food

FLEXIBLE EATING

Higher prices in the food market may be the undoing of the pampered, finicky eater. One way to save money or at least stretch one's food budget is to plan less expensive meals around a variety of foods. Buying fruits, vegetables, canned goods, certain meat cuts when they are on sale or at lower prices eases out the yearly food budget. As family income increased in recent years, many gave up a protein-rich dish of ham bone and beans, for example, for an expensive cut of beef. Others only accept cold cuts — which can be most expensive — for sandwiches rather than a homemade, less expensive egg salad, chicken salad, leftover meatloaf, peanut butter-jelly combination. This is a good time to experiment with foods of all kinds. Have eating fun and save money, too.

Recipes from Allgauers complement holiday menu

As one partial to fresh vegetables, I was duly impressed with a generous portion of Wilted Spinach Salad at a recent dinner at Allgauers Fireside in Northbrook. And thanks to maitre d' Tom Maltese, I've had the good fortune to enjoy the salad — many times since, for he was kind enough to share the recipe. It's definitely worth finding a supermarket which carries spinach year 'round and quite suitable for "at home" preparation.

Allgauers' new dining room offers an impressive Continental menu with a variety of salad, entree and dessert options. Modern, but none-the-less charming decor complements the excellent food and service.

Strawberries Romanoff is one of the dessert offerings on the menu. Prepared tableside or in your home it's one dessert that's worth every calorie.

If you're of the opinion that food always tastes better in a restaurant, the following recipes will come very close when properly prepared. Either will truly enhance even the most traditional Christmas dinner menu.

Wilted Spinach Salad

4 or 5 cups spinach leaves
1/4 cup bacon, diced
1/4 cup mushrooms, diced
1/2 cup onions, diced
Sugar to taste, about 4 teaspoons
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch dry English mustard
1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup vinegar

Cut the roots and tough stems from the spinach. Wash it quickly in several waters until it is free from sand and soil.

Salad substitute for holiday meal

Brussels sprouts and orange salad makes a good substitute for a hot vegetable at holiday meals. It's light in flavor and lower in calories than sauced vegetables.

GRATE 1 teaspoon peel from a navel orange. Juice the orange, and reserve 3 tablespoons of juice for dressing. Cut a thin crosswise slice from the center of two more navel oranges and reserve slices for garnishes. Remove sections from the two oranges to use in the salad. Blend the peel, juice, 2 tablespoons of salad oil, 1 teaspoon of sugar and 1/4 teaspoon of ground nutmeg in a bowl. Add 2 10-ounce packages of frozen brussels sprouts, cooked and drained, or 1 pound of fresh ones, cooked and drained, plus the orange sections and 2 medium onions, peeled, thinly sliced and separated into rings. Toss to combine and coat with dressing. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chill, covered, several hours. Makes 4 servings.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

Place spinach in large salad bowl. The bowl should be large enough so that the skillet used to cook the dressing can be used as a lid to cover it. Cook bacon, onions and mushrooms in the skillet, adding oil. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Pour hot ingredients on top of the spinach leaves with the hot skillet turned over as a cover. Let stand for 3 to 5 minutes before serving on salad plates.

Strawberries Romanoff

1/2 pint fresh strawberries
1 1/2 ounces Grand Marnier
1 ounce brandy
2 tablespoons sugar
Juice from 1/2 lemon
1/2 cup honey
1 cup whipped cream
1/2 to 1 pint French Vanilla ice cream

Prepare in a double bowl chilled on ice. (Fill a large bowl with crushed ice and place a slightly smaller bowl on the ice.) Mash half of the strawberries in the chilled bowl and cut the other half in pieces, saving one large strawberry to place on top of each serving. Add cut strawberries, Grand Marnier, brandy, sugar, lemon juice and honey to the mashed berries. Fold in half of the whipped cream and all of the ice cream. Fold slightly and serve in stemmed champagne or dessert glasses. (The glasses may be frosted in the freezer, if desired.) Top each serving with remaining whipped cream and place strawberry on top. Makes about four servings.

Household hints

Florida citrus growers produced 52 per cent of the world's grapefruit during the 1972-73 citrus season, according to statistics from Florida Citrus Mutual.

The Florida grapefruit production during the season totaled 45.4 million boxes. Start frozen food in a cold oven instead of a preheated oven, says the consumer affairs department of Con Edison, a New York utility company. Solidly frozen food in a preheated oven may overcook on the outside before the inside is thawed.

You may save fuel by covering pans of water to be brought to a boil, for spaghetti, soup and other foods that require a lot of hot liquid. A little pressure builds up, which hastens boiling.

Shop last for groceries, particularly meat, eggs, and frozen foods, to help prevent growth of bacteria which might cause food poisoning.

Most meat prices increased this week while average cost of broiler-fryer chickens declined 12 cents. Ground beef increased five cents per pound and a two-cent increase was recorded for pork chops and ocean perch fillets.

Eggs went up three cents from a week ago, but butter declined three cents.

Fruit and vegetable prices show only minor variances from Dec. 10. Exceptions are lettuce which increased six cents and frozen orange juice concentrate, down four cents. Remaining prices are close to stable.

Food prices are based on average obtained from four supermarkets on Monday of each week to record general price trends.

Celebrate a merry Mexican yule

by AILEEN CLAIRE

Each family has its special way of celebrating the Christmas holidays. Usually this is a melange of little personal things a parent remembers doing as a child when Santa Claus was still a wonderment in all his ho-ho-ho, roly-poly red and white glory. There also are many interesting holidays things to do drawn from our broad ethnic heritage.

For example, those who grew up in the southwest include many Spanish customs in their holiday plans. One that children particularly enjoy is the custom of beginning the Christmas season December 16. In Mexico this is the first day of Las Posadas, "the Inns."

Each evening for nine days before Christmas, neighbors join in an age-old religious ceremony, symbolizing the hardships of Mary and Joseph before the birth of the Christ Child. One group waits in the living room near the Nativity, or manger scene, while outside another group with lighted candles asks to be invited in. They ask many times and are denied, but eventually the doors are opened and the group enters.

After a prayer, the hostess serves hot coffee and bunuelos — thin, crisp pancakes. And now everyone takes a whack at the toy and candy-filled pinata. More formal posadas include a many-course meal.

Another tradition from Mexico, the poinsettia, finds its way into millions of American homes.

According to legend, a small boy with no present to give Christmas Eve knelt to pray in the snow outside a village church where others placed gifts before the creche. Where he knelt, a beautiful plant with scarlet leaves immediately grew and he gave this gift to the Christ Child.

The Flower of the Holy Night was later named after Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett, first U.S. minister to Mexico, who introduced the flower to the United States in 1828. This most popular of Christmas plants finds its way into all forms of house and table decorations, even on plastic-coated paper plates and cups that make serving a Mexican Christmas buffet a pleasure for the hostess.

The Mexican yuletide does not end Christmas Day. January 6, Epiphany, the date when the Wise Men reached the manger in Bethlehem, there are more parties and gift-giving. A traditional treat is a Three King's Cake, baked with tiny trinkets hidden in it. Whoever gets the trinkets must hostess a celebration on February 2, Candlemas Day.

MEXICAN CHICKEN

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup blanched almonds
- 1 can (1 pound, 4 1/2 ounces) pineapple

Versatile 'chop suey'

Whether it's beef, pork, chicken, turkey or ham you're feasting on this holiday, planned-over meats make delicious comebacks in "chop suey" dishes. Shred 2 cups cooked meat and saute lightly in salad oil in which 1 clove crushed garlic has been browned and removed. Stir-fry about 4 cups vegetables cut into strips about 2 minutes. Add a mixture of 1 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce, 1 teaspoon each salt and sugar, 1 1/2 cups meat stock and 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch; bring to a boil. Just before serving, toss in 1 cup coarsely broken toasted California walnuts. Accompany with hot rice or crisp noodles.

- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon and cloves
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1/2 avocado, cut in wedges

Sprinkle chicken with salt. Melt butter in large skillet. Add chicken pieces and brown on both sides, about 20 minutes, turning once. Add almonds last 5 minutes browning time. Drain pineapple. Measure 1/2 cup of pineapple. Measure 1/2 cup of the syrup. Add to chicken pieces with pineapple juice and lemon juice. Stir in Tabasco and spices. Cover; simmer 30 minutes. Remove chicken; keep warm. Add drained pineapple chunks to skillet. Blend together cornstarch and water, add to skillet, stirring rapidly. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and comes to a boil. Spoon some of the sauce over chicken. Pass remaining sauce. Garnish chicken with avocado wedges. Makes 8 servings.

KING'S RING

- 2/3 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 6 tablespoons shortening
- 2 package active dry yeast
- 2/3 cup warm water
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 7 cups all-purpose flour
- Cinnamon-sugar
- 1 cup dried candied fruits
- 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts

Scaled milk, stir in sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in water. Add milk mixture. Stir in eggs, then 3 cups flour. Beat smooth. Stir in enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Knead until smooth and elastic. Put in well-greased bowl, turning greased side to top. Cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1 1/2 hours). Punch down. Put on floured board; divide. Roll each half into oblong 14x12-inch. Brush with melted butter. Sprinkle oblongs with cinnamon-sugar, mixed fruit and nuts. Hide two tiny foil-wrapped trinkets in dough. Roll into two ropes 1 1/2 inches in diameter. Form each into ring in greased 10-inch rings molds. Brush with butter. Cover; let rise until doubled (about 1 hour). Bake at 375 degrees 1/2 hour. Cool. Frost and decorate. Makes two rings.

HORS D'OEUVRES TACOS

- 1 package taco shells (12 shells)
- 1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pinto beans, drained and mashed
- Salt and Tabasco
- 1 pound ground chuck
- 1 small onion, grated
- 1 clove garlic, mashed
- 1 cup canned taco sauce
- 2 cups shredded iceberg lettuce
- 2 tomatoes, chopped
- 2 cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese (8 ounces)

Place taco shells separately on a cookie sheet and toast in a preheated 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. In a saucepan mix mashed beans with salt and Tabasco to taste. Stir over low heat until beans are very thick and dry. In a skillet cook beef until brown and crumbly. Drain excess fat and stir in onion, garlic, 1/2 cup of the taco sauce and mashed hot beans. Simmer until thick. Spoon mixture into taco shells. Spoon over remaining taco sauce. Sprinkle each taco with shredded lettuce, chopped tomatoes and shredded cheese. Serve at once with pickled cherry peppers. Makes 12 servings.

GREEN RICE

- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 cups converted rice
- 1 can (4 ounces) sweet green chiles, drained and chopped
- 2 cans (13 1/4 ounces each) chicken broth
- 1 cup coarsely chopped parsley
- Salt

In a large skillet heat olive oil. Sauté garlic and onion until golden. Add rice and saute until rice is golden. Stir in chiles and chicken broth. Cover and simmer until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Stir in parsley and salt to taste. Makes 6 servings.

MEXICAN FRUIT SALAD

- 1 head romaine
- 2 avocados, peeled, seeded and diced
- Lemon juice
- 6 navel oranges, peeled and sliced
- 2 green peppers, cut into rings
- 2 red onions, cut into rings
- 1 jar (4 ounces) pimiento, drained and chopped
- Dressing
- 1 cup oil
- 1/3 cup lime juice
- 1/4 cup honey
- 2 teaspoons salt

Trim romaine and tear into bite-size pieces. Place into a salad bowl. Mix avocados with lemon juice to prevent darkening. Arrange avocado, oranges, green pepper, onions and pimiento in a pretty pattern over greens. Cover and chill. Combine salad dressing ingredients in a glass jar with a tight fitting lid. Shake until well blended. When ready to serve, shake dressing again and pour over salad. Toss to coat all pieces. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Grocery theft: Are you guilty?

If supermarket and trade association spokesmen have their figures right, the chances are about 50-50 that you at some time or other have sneaked an item from a store shelf without paying for it. Forty-eight per cent of supermarket customers have done so, they said.

Every part of the country suffers from this type of thievery but Los Angeles comes close to being the champ. According to trade association figures, Los Angeles steal four times as much in supermarkets as their filching colleagues in Cleveland and Chicago.

Some other unhappy supermarket theft statistics: Supermarket carts cost $30-$42 apiece and 10 to 15 per cent of a store's total cart inventory is stolen every two weeks.

A professional female shoplifter with a long skirt can carry as many as six sepaately wrapped steaks out of a store between her legs.

The favorite loot for shoplifters are health and beauty aids, vitamins, pate, expensive cheese, meats, cigarettes and liquor.

Enough food is stolen annually to feed everybody in San Francisco and Boston for a year.

Even more employees steal from their stores than do customers. One Los Angeles executive estimated that 58 per cent of his store's workers purloin an apple or a pack of cigarettes now and then.

Drug addicts who steal to support their habit are a prime factor in pilferage.

One young checkout clerk recently rang up a $15.05 charge on the cash register for two friends who were pushing a cart through his station with items worth $217.98.

A Holiday-Land Of Everyday Savings With True Discount Prices

True Discount Prices

True Discount Pricing is the lowering of the cost of everyday supermarket needs without sacrificing quality on an everyday basis. Eagle's storewide savings is based on discounting every item the law allows. This includes household and variety items, health and beauty needs and even pre-priced items such as greeting cards and magazines.

U.S.D.A. Grade A Poultry

All whole bodied poultry, fresh or frozen, sold at Eagle is USDA Grade A, the government's highest standard for poultry. Many markets handle a lesser grade marked "USDA Inspected" which only means it is fit for human consumption. For your holiday feast or any meal, you're guaranteed the finest in poultry at Eagle, USDA Grade A.

Compare Eagle Any Time

At Eagle, you get plain, honest-to-goodness savings every day, any day you shop. Eagle's discount prices are always in effect throughout the store. We invite you to compare Eagle's prices any time because we're confident when it's all added up at the checkstand, your weekly supermarket bill will be lower because savings is an everyday thing at Eagle.

Traditional ingredients for a sweeter Christmas

Dates, nuts, oranges and mincemeat are natural parts of the wonderful world of eating at Christmastime. Here are three recipes which will make your occasion a little sweeter.

Date and Nut Bars are easy to make and very tasty — perfect for a snack or dessert served with whipped or ice cream. In a large bowl of your mixer cream ½ cup butter or margarine with 1 cup sugar, then add 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until fluffy.

Sift 1½ cups flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder and add to mixing bowl. Stir in 1 cup finely chopped dates and 1 cup chopped pecans. When well mixed, grease a baking pan (15x10x1-inch) and spread mixture evenly.

Beat 2 egg whites until stiff, then add gradually 1 cup brown sugar. Spread this over the top. Place in a preheated 350 degrees oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Remove from oven and place on a rack. When cool cut into bars and store in a cannister.

ORANGE BALLS can be made in a hurry since they're no bake and mighty handy to fill a sweet tooth. Allow a small can of frozen orange juice to thaw. Roll fine a 16-ounce package of vanilla wafers.

Blend together a stick of softened margarine and a pound box of powdered (confectioners') sugar. Add the orange juice, undiluted. Mix in the vanilla wafer crumbs and mix thoroughly. Form into balls about the size of a walnut and roll in chopped nuts or shredded coconut, or a mixture of both. Ready to eat.

Unusual are these Mille Rose Mincemeat Bars. Beat ¾ cup sugar with 2 eggs, ¼ cup soft butter, add ½ teaspoon salt until creamy. Stir in 1½ cups mincemeat, and 1 cup nuts.

Mix 1½ cups sifted flour with ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, and ¼ teaspoon soda. Stir dry ingredients into first mixture. Blend.

Bake in a lightly greased 15x10-inch jellyroll pan at 350 degrees until firm. They won't rise much. While slightly warm, frost with a mixture of powdered sugar and bourbon. Teetotalers can substitute fruit juice or rum flavoring. Makes 50 bars.

Merry Christmas!

Put cranberries inside the bird

The festive holiday season will soon be here, and everyone is looking forward to the enjoyable tradition of the huge family meal. It includes nearly everyone's specialties, from beginning to end — but this year here's a little different suggestion for the delectable stuffing inside your turkey.

To make enough stuffing for a 12-pound turkey, start with 14 cups of soft bread cubes. That's about 14 slices of bread. Toast cubes in the oven at 300 degrees for 15 minutes. Then toss them with 4 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine.

To that add one 16-ounce can of whole cranberry sauce, ½ cup raisins, ¼ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon. Toss together until it is well mixed.

To stuff the bird, first rinse and pat it dry. Open the wishbone cavity, and fill it with stuffing, then close it by skewering the neck skin to the back. Salt the large cavity next, and lightly spoon in the stuffing. If the opening has a piece of skin across the tail, push the drumsticks under; if not, tie them to the tail. The turkey is now ready to go into the oven. There are many ways to cook the turkey; if you don't have a favorite, any good cookbook can give you suggestions.

Turkey with cranberries is a holiday favorite, and stuffing made with cranberries is just that much better.

Make-ahead mushrooms

If you're trying to think what to serve guests at parties and buffet suppers or stand-up cocktail parties, why not start with Crab-Stuffed Mushrooms? You can make the filling a few hours before the event and fill the mushroom caps, topping them with buttered bread crumbs. Tuck them in the refrigerator and pop them into a moderate oven just before they are to be served.

Mushroom Vegetable Antipasto can be served either as a sandwich accompaniment or as a first course when there's to be spaghetti or a hearty casserole. This is a real prepare-ahead tidbit since the vegetables should remain in their marinade for several hours, or, better still, several days.

CRAB-STUFFED MUSHROOMS
1 pound large fresh mushrooms
Oil
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
½ cup minced onion
1 package (8 oz.) frozen crab meat, thawed, drained and flaked
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 egg, lightly beaten
2 cups soft bread crumbs, divided
2 tablespoons chopped dill or parsley
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms. Chop sufficient stems to make 1 cup (save any remaining stems for soups, stews, etc.) Brush caps with oil; set aside. In a medium skillet melt 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add chopped mushrooms and onion; sauté for 4 minutes; cool. In a medium bowl combine mushrooms and onion mixture with crab, sour cream, egg, 1 cup of the bread crumbs, dill, salt and black pepper; mix lightly. Spoon into mushroom caps, mounding slightly. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add remaining 1 cup bread crumbs; mix lightly. Sprinkle over top of each stuffed mushroom. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 15 minutes or until hot. Serve immediately. Yield: about 18 stuffed mushrooms.

MUSHROOM VEGETABLE ANTIPASTO
1 pound fresh mushrooms
1 cup bottled Italian salad dressing
2 cups diagonally sliced carrots
4 cups sliced cauliflower

Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms; set aside. In a large saucepan heat salad dressing to boiling point. Add carrots; return to boiling point; reduce heat; cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Add cauliflower. Cover and simmer for 3 minutes. Add reserved mushrooms. Cover and simmer for 3 minutes. Pour mixture into a large bowl; cool for at least 2 or 3 hours before serving. If desired, cover and marinate in the refrigerator for 2 or 3 days or longer. Yield: 6 cups

Stuffed gouda fit for a party

Party dips are high on the list of foods to consider as part of the holiday season shopping budget. One dip that goes well at a party and also makes a good sandwich spread if there is any left over is a Stuffed Baby Gouda.

It sounds exotic and slightly indecent but it basically is a mix of gouda cheese, chicken spread, scallions and other seasonings. Make this ahead and keep refrigerated until ready to use. Serve crackers, toasted bread triangles or bread sticks with this.

STUFFED BABY GOUDA
1 7-ounce or 8-ounce Baby Gouda cheese
3 tablespoons light cream
1 4½-ounce can chicken spread
¼ cup minced scallion
1 tablespoon minced pimiento
½ teaspoon lime juice
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Cut ½-inch slice from top of cheese. Using a teaspoon, scoop out cheese, leaving firm shell. Place cheese and cream in a blender cup and whirl at high speed, scraping occasionally until cheese has formed a smooth paste. Spoon into a bowl and stir in remaining ingredients.

Pile lightly back into cheese shell. Chill and serve with your favorite crackers.

(Note: Instead of using a blender, cheese may be finely grated and mixed with cream.)

Worldly traditions meet for Christmas dinner

America contributed the turkey to holiday feasting. But why not borrow from the British this time and serve your traditional turkey with squares of delicious Yorkshire pudding?

Use the turkey drippings in a separate baking pan to flavor your fluffy Yorkshire pudding. It's not a sweet pudding, but a tasty side dish, beloved by the English at holiday time. Watch it rise in the oven to amazing heights. Then cut into squares and serve with the turkey. Add a dollop of Spiced Nutty Cranberry Relish for color. It's a blend of pineapple, orange, cranberries, prunes and candied ginger.

For dessert, take your cue from the French and try the traditional Christmas cake baked and rolled up like a jelly roll to resemble a yule log. Ours is a chocolate version, filled with coconut and pecans, sprinkled with powdered sugar to look like snow. It's a sweet conclusion to your holiday entertaining and showstopper on the buffet table.

The "electric look" is big with interior decorators right now, so why not do the same thing with Christmas cooking? Mix and match until the feeling is right and borrow the best from around the world. Varying traditions can mingle beautifully with a little ingenuity from the creative cook.

YORKSHIRE PUDDING

1 cup minus 2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1/2 cup water
1/4-inch hot turkey drippings (approximately 1/2 cup)
Sift flour and salt into a bowl. Make a well in center, pour in milk. Beat well. Beat eggs until fluffy. Then beat them into the batter. Add water. Beat better until large bubbles rise to the surface.

Pour turkey drippings into a hot 10x10 or 9x12-inch baking pan.

Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes, then at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cut into squares and serve at once. Yield: 6 servings.

CHOCOLATE YULE LOG

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup chopped pecans
1 1/3 cups flaked coconut
1 15 1/2-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
3 eggs
1 cup sugar

3/4 cup unsifted flour
1/3 cup cocoa
1/3 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/3 cup powdered sugar

Line a 15x10-inch jelly roll pan with foil. Melt butter in pan over low heat. Sprinkle over butter, pecans, coconut and condensed milk.

In a mixing bowl, beat eggs at high speed for two minutes until fluffy. Gradually add sugar, continue beating two minutes. Add flour, cocoa, water, vanilin, salt and soda to mixture and blend one minute at low speed.

Pour cake evenly into pan and bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from oven, sprinkle powdered sugar over cake in pan. Cover with towel. Place cookie sheet over towel; invert. Remove pan and foil. Start with 10-inch side, roll up jelly-roll fashion using towel to roll cake. Leave wrapped until serving time. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

SPICED NUTTY CRANBERRY RELISH

1 9-ounce can crushed pineapple
1/2 cup pineapple juice
1 medium orange, cut into eighths
1 cup sugar
2 cups fresh cranberries
1/2 cup chopped prunes
3 tablespoons chopped candied ginger
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup brandy (optional)
Drain pineapple. Place pineapple syrup, pineapple juice and orange in blender bowl and blend until orange rind is in small pieces.

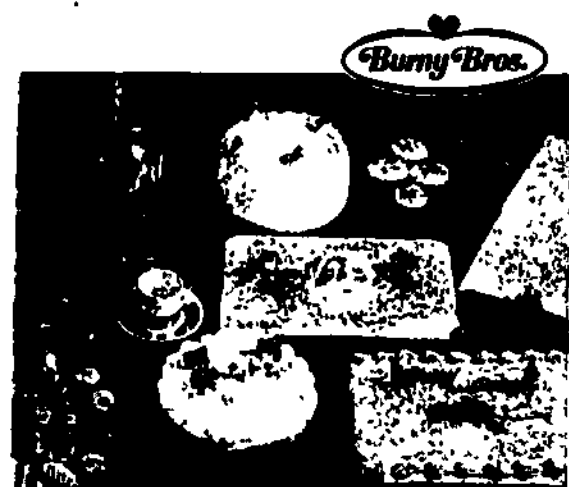

Pour pineapple-orange mixture into a saucepan; add sugar, cranberries, prunes and ginger and mix well. Cook and stir until mixture is as thick as desired, about 15-20 minutes. Remove from heat; add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill. If desired, relish may be thinned with additional pineapple or orange juice before serving. Yield: about 3 1/2 cups.

Fruit with bounce

The cliché saying that all cranberries are alike — that when you see one you've seen 'em all — must go back to the factory for overhaul.

There are many varieties of cranberries, and according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), they are harvested fresh and in abundant supply right now.

Only a few of the varieties, however, are of commercial significance. Of these, the Early Black is most important in terms of acreage, and it consistently produces large yields of fine quality fruit. This cranberry is almost round, medium sized, and the color ranges from light to dark red. Early Blacks are generally first to reach the market in early September.

Second in production is the Late Howe, harvested from late September to late October. This is a large cranberry, medium red and shiny.

The McFarlane, named after the native Cape Codder who introduced the species to Oregon in 1885, is round, relatively large, and dull red. Produced principally in Oregon and Washington, it is ready for market in late October.

Still another variety is the Searles Jumbo. Its large oval shape is bright red, and the fruit ripens between late September and early October.

Other cranberry varieties gaining in popularity are the Ben Learns, the Pilgrims, and the Stevens.

While differing in most respects, all varieties share a common characteristic — the ability, if they are ripe, to bounce. This test comes after harvesting when the cranberries are put through a machine which blows the chaff away. Mechanical separators give each berry seven chances to bounce over four-inch barriers.

Good firm cranberries will bounce; "bounce-less" berries are discarded as being unfit for marketing.

Pound cake in festive dress

Most of us lose our dieting self-control during the holiday feasting time. Helping breakdown resistance is an attractive, and tasty Holiday Show Cake. This basically is a simple pound cake dressed up with apple sauce and marzipan fruits.

HOLIDAY SHOW CAKE

2 packages (16 ounces each) pound cake mix
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups apple sauce
1 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Marzipan fruits
Place cake mix in a large bowl. Add eggs. Stir to blend ingredients. Beat, using an electric or rotary beater, about 1 minute. Gradually add apple sauce and continue beating about 2 minutes. Pour into a greased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 1 hour and 30 minutes. Cool. Combine and mix together sugar, salt and enough lemon juice until mixture is smooth enough to drizzle over top and side of cake. Decorate top of cake with marzipan fruits. Makes one 10-inch cake.

Deviled eggs deluxe

Give new flavor and texture dimensions to deviled eggs this way.

Mash, hard-cooked egg yolks with mayonnaise, liverwurst and chopped: toasted California walnuts. Season with taste with dry mustard, onion salt and pepper. Mix well. Mound filling generously into hollows of egg white halves. Garnish with a sprinkling of chopped walnuts and a sprig of parsley. These are great additions to an appetizer tray or a vegetable salad plate. Serve with creamed soups, too. Extra filling can be used for celery stalks.

Hot Spiced Wine - A Swedish Tradition!

GLOGG

Yield: 2 1/2 quarts (20 punch cup servings)
Large covered saucepan Prepare one day in advance

- 3 whole cardamom seeds
- 6 whole cloves
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 4 inch strip of orange rind
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup blanched almonds
- 1/2 cup golden raisins
- 1 bottle (24 oz.) dry red wine
- 1 bottle (24 oz.) Port
- 1 cup brandy
- Sugar to taste

Tie cardamom, cloves, cinnamon and orange rind in a cheesecloth bag. Place in water and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add almonds and raisins, simmer 10 minutes longer. Add red wine, Port and brandy and bring to a quick boil; then, remove from heat. Cool and store covered overnight. At serving time, remove spice bag. Heat Glogg but do not boil. Add sugar to taste. Serve in heated mugs or glasses, with a few almonds and raisins in each glass.

Cookies with built-in convenience

Variety is a must when it comes to making holiday cookies. As you plan your baking this season, here are some tasty ideas with built-in convenience that you'll want to include.

Each features a short-cut secret — refrigerated slice and bake cookie dough.

Peppermint Refreshers start with any flavor cookie dough (Swiss-style chocolate chunk is a special favorite) which is sliced then baked in a square pan. When warm from the oven, top with a peppermint-spiked meringue and sprinkle with bits of peppermint candy. Then, return to the oven for about 10 minutes.

Another easy idea which can be made by the youngsters in the family is Chocodiles. Here the baked cookie base is spread with a delicious combo of chocolate pieces, cornflakes and peanut butter. This is a real winner for sweet tooth snacks anytime of year.

Date-Orange Toppers is an attractive holiday idea with a semi-hidden date-nut filling. Before baking these quick-to-fix cookies are sprinkled with grated orange peel for an added flavor bonus.

PEPPERMINT REFRESHERS

- 1 roll refrigerated slice-and-bake cookies, any flavor
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon peppermint flavoring
- 2 tablespoons crushed peppermint stick candy

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 8 or 9-inch square pan. Slice cookie dough 1/4-inch thick and overlap in bottom of prepared pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. (Cookies will be puffy when removed from oven.) Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Stir in peppermint flavoring. Spread over baked cookie dough; sprinkle with crushed peppermint candy. Return to oven and bake for 10 minutes. Makes 24 bars.

CHOCODILES

Brussels sprouts make a different beef Stroganoff

A different beef Stroganoff combines Brussels sprouts with sautéed meat and mushrooms, served over hot buttered noodles. The appetizing combination is topped with a sour cream-wine sauce for a special and lower cost mid-week family dish.

BEEF 'N SPROUT STROGANOFF

- 1 1/2 pounds boneless sirloin steak, about 3/4 inch thick
- Butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 2 cans (3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 2 packages (10 ounces each) California frozen Brussels sprouts
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon basil leaves
- 8 ounces medium wide noodles (about 4 cups)
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 1/2 cup white wine (optional)
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups dairy sour cream

Slice steak diagonally into slices 1/8-inch thick. Place slices between two pieces of waxed paper or foil and pound with rolling pin until very thin. Cut into 3-inch strips. Set aside. Melt two tablespoons butter in large skillet. Sauté onion until crisp-tender. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add 1/4 cup water, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, Brussels sprouts, pepper, salt and basil. Cover and simmer another 15 minutes or until sprouts are tender. Add more water if needed. Meanwhile, add noodles and one tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil.

Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender, drain in colander. Transfer to serving dish and mix with one tablespoon softened butter. Spoon meat-Brussels sprouts mixture around outside edge of serving dish, piling noodles in center. Cover and keep hot. Add wine to drippings in skillet. Bring to boil and simmer about 30 seconds. Add milk and heat almost to boiling. Remove from heat and blend in sour cream. Spoon sauce over meat noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Entertaining ease

Holiday entertaining is made special with hot cheese appetizers. For 20 toast squares or rounds, beat until soft 6 ounces of cream cheese, then blend with 1 cup (1/4 pound) shredded Provolone cheese, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1/2 teaspoon oregano, 1/8 teaspoon garlic salt, 1 tablespoon, each chopped pimiento and chopped green pepper. Spread on toast; broil 1-2 minutes or until lightly browned.

- 1 roll refrigerated slice-and-bake cookies, any flavor
- 1 6-ounce package (1 cup) milk chocolate or semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1 1/2 cups crushed corn flakes
- 1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 8 or 9-inch square pan. Slice cookie dough 1/4-inch thick and overlap slices in bottom of prepared pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until lightly brown. (Cookies will be puffy when removed from oven.) Cool slightly. In medium saucepan, melt chocolate pieces. Stir in corn flakes and peanut butter. Spread over cookie base. Cool. Makes 22 bars.

DATE-ORANGE TOPPERS

- 1 cup chopped dates
- 1/3 cup water
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup chopped nuts
- 1 roll refrigerated slice-and-bake cookies, any flavor
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In small saucepan, combine dates, water and sugar. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat; add nuts. Set aside. Slice cookie dough into 36 slices 1/4-inch thick. Place 27 slices on cookie sheets. Place 1 teaspoon of date-nut mixture on top of each. Cut remaining 9 slices in thirds. Place each 1/3 slice on top of date-nut mixture. Sprinkle tops with orange peel. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 13 minutes until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet; cool. Makes 27 cookies.

Blending World-Wide Christmas Traditions

Recently a young couple asked me what they might do to give a Christmas party that would be different. Could a dinner party be unusual, fun for the guests, easy, and stay within their budget?

Yes, a holiday dinner party can be all these things. An international dinner featuring traditional Christmas foods of many countries could provide stimulating conversation as well as a delicious menu. Either prepare the menu yourself (with as much do-ahead preparation as possible) or ask each guest to bring one of the items. You can either be specific and provide the recipe or merely designate the country and what part of your menu.

The Following Menu Divides The Course According To Countries: Scandinavian appetizers:

Herring
Sausage
Crisp rye crackers

Swedish meatballs
Cheese
Glogg (hot spiced wine)

French onion soup
cheese toast floats

English roast beef au jus
Yorkshire pudding
Brussels sprouts and chestnuts

Mexican red and green salad
Guacamole (avocado) and cherry tomatoes on Bibb lettuce

American dry red wine (many layered chocolate cake filled with apricot jam, chocolate iced)

Austrian Sacher torte
Brazilian coffee or Italian espresso

Everything on this menu is in good supply and not unusually expensive. If you're busy, you may select most of these foods completely or partially prepared. Yorkshire pudding is the only one you would have to make from scratch, and the recipe is included on these pages. Also, you'll find recipes for Swedish meatballs and glogg.

And, whether you have a traditional turkey dinner or an international menu like the one above, I do hope your Christmas will be a happy one!

Walnut and cheese combo especially for entertaining

Put walnuts and Cheddar cheese together in a special recipe for entertaining and you have a winner. It's Walnut Cheese Slices, a pastry base that's spread with a walnut Cheddar cheese filling and baked quickly until browned.

WALNUT CHEESE SLICES

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
½ cup shortening

¾ cup grated sharp

Cheddar cheese

Cold milk (about 1/3 cup)

Walnut Cheese Filling

Sift flour with salt and cayenne. Cut in shortening. Add cheese and mix lightly with a fork. Add milk to make a stiff dough. Shape into a roll about 9 inches long, by rolling with the palms on a lightly floured board. With rolling pin, roll to a rectangle about 9x15 inches. Cut into 3 strips lengthwise and transfer to baking sheet. Spread Walnut Cheese Filling down center of each strip. Fold edges over filling, bringing them almost together and pressing them down lightly into filling. Bake at 450 degrees for about 12 to 14 minutes, until browned. Cool, then cut into diagonal slices to serve.

Walnut Cheese Filling: Mix ¾ cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese with 2 tablespoons heavy cream. Blend in ¼ cup finely chopped toasted California walnuts. Makes about 4½ dozen slices.

Yams suitable for stuffing

Yams make a wonderful stuffing for poultry and other meats although most of us in regions other than the South rarely use them in this way. For the holidays, treat dinner guests to Yam Stuffed Pork Chops. Season the Stuffing with onion, orange rind and chopped apple and tuck it into a pocket cut in each thick chop. Bake extra stuffing in a dish. Yams are in good supply (especially from North Carolina) now through April and are very good boiled or baked as you would an Idaho potato and seasoned with butter. You can also hash brown them.

YAM STUFFED PORK CHOPS

2 cups mashed cooked yams (4 medium)
¼ cup butter or margarine, divided
¼ cup chopped fresh onion
1 apple, pared, cored and diced
1 teaspoon grated fresh orange rind
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 cup soft bread crumbs
6 double cut pork chops, with pocket for stuffing

To prepare yams, bake in 350-degree oven 40 minutes or cook in boiling water to cover for 20 minutes, until soft. Cool, peel and mash until smooth in large bowl. In small skillet melt 2 tablespoons butter, add onion and cook until tender; add yam mixture. Stir in apple, orange rind, parsley, salt, pepper, thyme and bread crumbs. Spoon into pockets of pork chops. Place any remaining stuffing in a small baking dish and bake, covered, along with chops. Close pork chops with stuffing pins or wooden picks. In large skillet melt remaining tablespoons butter, add chops and brown on both sides. Remove to a baking dish, cover and bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour or until chops are tender. Makes 6 servings.

PECAN STUFFED SWEET POTATOES

6 medium sweet potatoes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup chopped pecans

Wash sweet potatoes and bake in 400-degree oven until soft, 35 to 40 minutes. Cut a slice from the top of each. Scoop out inside, being careful not to break shells. Mash potatoes and add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Fill shells. Bake in 400-degree oven 15 minutes or until puffed and lightly browned. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

HASH-BROWN YAMS

4 medium yams
2 medium onions, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons bacon drippings or salad oil

Pare and finely dice raw yams. In bowl, mix yams, onion, parsley, salt and pepper. Heat bacon drippings or oil in large skillet. Spread yam mixture evenly over skillet and press lightly with a broad spatula. Cover and cook slowly over low heat without stirring until browned on under side, about 15 minutes. Turn and brown on other side, about 5 minutes. (Add more bacon dripping or oil, if necessary.) Makes 4 servings. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Homemade rolls are popular fare

Coming back to a homemade, oven-warm bread is a pleasure after all the parade of ready-to-eat, brown 'n serve and packaged mix products, especially if your choice is Walnut Oat Rolls.

The physical creation of breadmaking is satisfying to many cooks. It's also fun conjuring up a product you can call your own. There's no suspense to yeast breads, except, perhaps, the fascination of the dough slowly ballooning up to the desired size. By following the directions, even a novice cook can have perfect results. Remember that yeast loves a warm, cozy temperature free from drafts. When you knead, stay with it until your dough looks full and rounded and is satiny smooth.

As with other breads, direct from oven to table is the best way to go but if these rolls do cool, you'll find they refresh easily, foil covered, in the oven. Or place them in a bun warmer. You can serve them with flair in a napkin-lined basket, bringing the napkin corners up over the rolls. An attractive pan like the one in the photo is another great way to show them off but heat the pan first, taking the rolls out at the last minute when they're piping hot.

These fragrant rolls combine well with sweet flavors like jams and jellies but they're equally delicious spread with just butter or margarine and served with non-sweet stews and soups.

WALNUT OAT ROLLS

½ cup California walnuts
1 cake or package yeast
1¼ cups water
1 cup uncooked quick-cooking oats
¼ cup brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour

Melted butter or margarine
Chop walnuts medium-fine and set aside. Soften yeast in ¼ cup warm water, letting stand while preparing remaining ingredients. Heat remaining 1 cup water to boiling and pour over oats. Add sugar, the 2 tablespoons butter and salt. Mix well; cool to lukewarm. Add yeast mixture, then blend in flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto floured board; knead lightly, until dough rounds up.

Knead in walnuts. Return dough to mixing bowl, brush top with melted butter and cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Punch down. Shape into 12 small rolls and place close together in greased 9-inch layer cake pan. Brush tops with butter. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for about 25 to 30 minutes, until nicely browned. Turn out and serve warm or cool and reheat before serving. Makes 1 dozen rolls.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

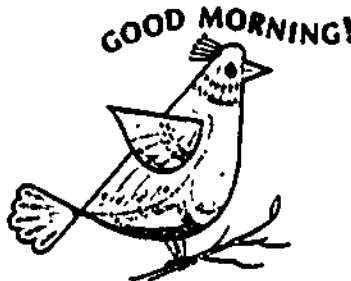

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1 1/2 inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

Project won't be ready by fall: schools

Snow delays construction of junior high additions

The onslaught of heavy snows has slowed construction on the new additions to the three junior high schools in Dist. 21. School officials predict the entire project will not be completed by next fall as originally planned.

The $1.8 million additions are to provide extra classrooms besides accommodating new vocational education programs at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said workmen were able to install the foundations for the additions before the snows came last week, but further progress this winter will depend on the weather.

"We'll keep going, but if we continue to have storms like this, we won't be able to make it," Gill said.

A PRIORITY has been placed on completing the addition to Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove first because the new classrooms will be needed in September. The building is operating at near capacity now.

Plans for the new vocational arts program have not yet been finalized, but the superintendent said a coeducational curriculum is being studied.

Courses will be probably be offered, he said, to acquaint girls with carpentry skills needed around a home and cooking classes for boys likely will be available.

"We'll probably set it up to give students exposure to general home arts the first year and offer specialized courses the second year," Gill said.

The Watson Construction Co. began work on the additions the first of November.

THE NEW facilities are being financed with funds remaining from the 1970 Dist. 21 referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools, both completed this year, and to construct the vocational education wings at the junior high schools.

Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated to the district by builders, about $300,000 in referendum funds remain unused.

The special education monies may be used for the junior high additions because the new wings will include some classrooms for special education students.

Centex tells village 'no' to annexation fee request

by JOE FRANZ

Centex Homes Corp., which has proposed building 940 units on the Hank Farm, does not plan to pay Buffalo Grove a $100-per-unit annexation fee, thus the village will lose $94,000 in revenue.

The fee has been paid by almost all recent builders annexing property into the village. Morton Kaplan, an attorney for Centex, told the plan commission Tuesday night the fees are "outside the realm of reasonableness."

The number of units proposed, Kaplan said, would make the cost to the developer prohibitive. If the village insists on collecting the fees as a condition for approving the annexation, Kaplan said Centex may decide to build the project in unincorporated Lake County instead.

The project has already been approved by the Lake County Board, thus the developer could build the project under county zoning should Buffalo Grove reject it.

WITH THE exception of the Hawthorn development, which was approved last spring, Centex is the only developer that has refused to pay the annexation fees. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the village is not legally required to collect the fees and the village board can waive them at its discretion.

In the case of the Hawthorn development, which calls for 1,234 units, Larson said the fees were waived because the developer could have annexed to Wheeling if Buffalo Grove had turned the project down. If the fee had been paid the village would have received $123,400.

Larson said the fees are only a guideline and the village negotiates with developers in an attempt to obtain them. Since Centex has already received approval from Lake County, he said the village's negotiating position is weak.

"They have put themselves in a very strong position because they can build the project whether we (village) approve it or not," Larson said.

IF THE VILLAGE insists on the fees and the developer builds under county zoning instead he said the development could turn out to be a liability for Buffalo Grove. Even though the project would not be in the village, it might still be called on for some services, he said.

In addition to the annexation fee question, Centex also does not plan to conform to the village's resolution that asks for donations to local schools and parks.

The owner of the Hank Farm, prior to giving Centex an option to buy, agreed to donate $39,000 to Aptakisic-Tripp School Dist. 102. Centex, however, refuses to pay an additional $71,000 to $76,000, estimated to be the amount required for schools under the resolution.

MICHAEL DI VINCENZO, superintendent of Dist. 182 said Tuesday night since Centex is seeking annexation, the village should require the firm to conform to the resolution. When the agreement for the $39,000 was made two years ago, Di Vincenzo said the school district (Continued on page 5)

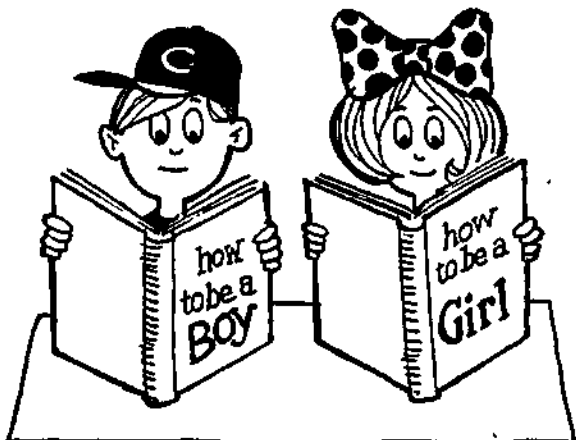

Jaycees, St. Mary's selling Yule trees

Time is running out for Buffalo Grove residents to purchase Christmas trees.

Residents can purchase their trees from the local Jaycee chapter or from St. Mary's Church between now and Dec. 24.

The Jaycees are selling trees at the Ranch Mart shopping center, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads, and St. Mary's is selling them in the parking lot next to the rectory at 78 N. Buffalo Grove Rd.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoption in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

OK height variation for Cambridge

A height variation for the final building at Cambridge-on-the-Lake in Buffalo Grove has been approved by the zoning board of appeals.

The zoning committee approved the variation Tuesday night. The matter will now go to the village board for its review.

The developer, Richard J. Brown Inc., requested a variation because the building cannot be built to conform with the village's height ordinance. Village ordinances state a multi-family structure, such as Brown has proposed, should be a maximum of 45 feet, or four stories, whichever is less.

Zoners will recommend the board approve a variation allowing the developer to go to a maximum of 49 1/2 feet. According to law, the zoners can grant the developer a 10 per cent variation.

Earlier, Brown requested permission to make the building slightly taller than 50 feet. Chief Building Inspector William Dettmer said because that large a variation could not be granted, the developer agreed to put the parking level deeper into the ground.

PRIOR TO the zoning board's request, the parking level was more than half above grade, which officials said constituted an additional story. Because the building has four residential floors, with the parking it became a five-story building. Now that the parking has been put more than half below grade, the building is considered only four stories.

Although the final building will be somewhat lower than the existing structures in the development, officials said it will not be readily noticeable because it is being built on somewhat higher ground.

The taller structures are not in violation of building codes because the more restrictive height ordinance was passed after they were built.

Last summer the village board approved a change in the final phase of the development. The new plan calls for a building about 600 feet long that will consist of 80 condominiums. Originally, the final phase was to consist of two six-story buildings, about 400 feet long.

The change in the development will reduce the number of units from 612 to 392. The developer said the original plan called for mostly small units, while the new plan will have all larger units. The change was requested because the larger units were selling better, the developer said.

Applications coming in for hospital board seats

At least one dozen Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents have applied for a seat on the board of directors of the proposed satellite of the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon yesterday said he has received applications from three Buffalo Grove and nine Wheeling residents. "I do have a number of names that have been submitted, and have been holding off until after the holidays," he said.

After the first of the year, Scanlon said he will call a meeting of the applicants. He said a representative from the hospital will explain the duties of a director, and then the applicants will be able to decide if they want the position.

According to Scanlon, there will be no screening committee choosing the board of directors. He said the applicants will be able to decide among themselves how to fill the seven seats on the board.

THREE OF THOSE seats are to be filled by Buffalo Grove residents, with the remaining four directors coming from Wheeling. This division is designed to represent the population that will primarily be served by the proposed 223-bed hospital facility.

The board of directors is expected to become actively involved in the planning for the proposed hospital. Developers of the satellite branch are now preparing feasibility studies on the project, but will need the directors before plans are presented to the state for approval.

Since the hospital is proposed as a satellite facility, the board of directors will be overseen by a larger board governing the operation of both hospitals.

SCANLON SAID he had little problem finding applicants for the hospital board. In fact, he said he ran out of application forms.

The Buffalo Grove applicants were recruited through St. Mary's Church, while Wheeling residents were told to pick up application forms from the village clerk.

Scanlon declined to release the names of the applicants, saying he could not remember who had applied. He said more information will be available after he meets with the applicants.

Volunteer school helpers racking up the man-hours

Parents in School Dist. 21 are donating hundreds of hours of their time each week to work regularly as volunteer helpers in local schools.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

A recent survey shows volunteers put in an average of 1,138 hours per week. They serve as classroom aides, library helpers, room mothers, "motor moms," "picture ladies," learning center aides and perform a variety of other tasks in the schools.

The greatest amount of regular volunteer hours is put in by parents of children at Poe School in Arlington Heights, Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove and Kilmer School, also in Buffalo Grove. Volunteers at these schools all work an average of over 100 hours per week.

Volunteer participation at other schools in the district is also high except at Holmes and London junior high schools.

OVERALL, DIST 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he believes that the number of volunteers working at buildings is "tremendously large" for a school district the size of Dist. 21.

Commenting on the parent service to the schools, Gill said, "I guess they're just nice people who really want to make a contribution to the community and the school district. They are very generous with their time and most of them are very very competent."

Gill stressed that the recent survey of volunteer hours contributed to the district does not include the great amount of time and effort donated by local PTA and PTO groups.

Actually, the superintendent said, the organized volunteer program began with the efforts of members of parent-teacher organizations.

The organized volunteer program was set up with a half-time paid volunteer coordinator about five years ago. Prior to that, Gill said, PTA and PTO members served in the schools and coordinated activities without pay.

The current volunteer coordinator for Dist. 21 is Betty Chase. Her office is located in the district administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

School news notes

Kindergarten students in Jo Simpson's class at Whitman School, Wheeling, are truly giving of themselves this Christmas.

The children recently presented their parents with a decorated grab bag containing the names of seven jobs they were willing to perform.

Chores included in the grab bags were dusting furniture, shoveling snow, drying dishes, picking up toys, making beds and a special job card allowing parents to assign the children a job of their choice.

In turn, parents have been visiting the school, taking part in art, math, singing, motor and reading activities.

Sixth grade students at Riley School, Arlington Heights, have been collecting Campbell soup can labels since the beginning of the school year in hopes of earning a tape recorder for the school.

The Campbell Soup Co. offered to donate the tape recorder if the student could collect 2,330 labels by Dec. 15.

Students reached their goal and have mailed the labels to the soup company.

It is not known when the tape recorder will arrive, but students are already making plans to use the machine in their classroom for varied activities, including recording original stories they will write.

As part of the schedule of holiday activities at Longfellow School, Buffalo Grove, fifth graders in LaDonna Stonerock's social studies class are researching the Christmas customs of people around the world.

The children are studying the customs of many ethnic groups, particularly those of their own nationalities.

As resource materials, they are using books, film strips, records and most importantly, their parents and grandparents.

A group of students at Whitman School are planning a special Christmas program for their parents scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Friday at the school.

Children in Maria McClurkin's kindergarten class and Vickie York's first grade class have invited their parents to come to school and sing songs, play games and enjoy cookies which the classes baked themselves.

Parked autos slow snowplows

Wheeling residents are asked to observe village parking regulations and keep their cars off streets during heavy snowfalls.

Village Mgr. George Passolli yesterday said the snowplows had some problems clearing the streets because of parked cars.

"There were a lot of cars parked on the streets. The plow has to go around them and you plow them in, and you wind up with the streets not properly plowed," he said.

Passolli said the police had to travel through subdivisions and use the public address system to ask people to move their cars.

Village ordinance prohibits parking on any streets at any time within 12 hours of a snowfall of three inches or more.

"It is against the law, and it would help speed up the snow plowing operation if the citizens would remember to keep their cars off the street at this time," Passolli said.

Jaycees seeking nominees for awards week celebration

The Wheeling Jaycees are seeking nominations for their annual Jaycee Week awards to be presented at the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast Jan. 26.

Miko Moran, breakfast chairman, said Wheeling residents are invited to make nominations for the distinguished service award. "Anybody somebody feels has done a lot of service to the community is eligible," he said. "It's just based on service to the community."

Traditionally, the Jaycees have also honored teachers in School Districts 21 and 214 with an outstanding young educator award. This year, however, a new award for an outstanding law enforcement officer will take its place.

MORAN SAID THE education award is being dropped "primarily because the school district goes beyond the village limits. So many of the teachers are not residents of the village. We just thought we'd do this as a change," he said.

Nominations for the law enforcement award should be based on "dedication of service and personal involvement with the community," said Moran, who is a member of the village police and fire commission.

All nominations will be reviewed by a Jaycee screening committee which will make the final decision on the awards.

ACCORDING TO MORAN, the awards are designed "to honor the unheralded people who are making contributions to the community and to emphasize the importance of community involvement by the local citizenry."

The breakfast chairman urged residents to participate in the nominating process so the awards would be truly representative of the community.

Last year the distinguished service award was presented to Wheeling Park Dist. Supt. Dave Phillips. The outstanding young educator award was given to Frank Dobler, Wheeling High School's choral director.

This year's awards will be presented at the prayer breakfast at 10 a.m. Jan. 26 at the Fireplace Restaurant, 604 N. Milwaukee Ave.

All nominations should be sent to the Wheeling Jaycees, Post Office Box 7, Wheeling.

Centex: 'no' to fee request

tried, but was unable to get additional money. The village has more "legal leverage" than the school district, and might be able to get more money, he said.

In response to Di Vincenzo's remarks, Kaplan said, "There is no room to pay that demand. An agreement was reached and I think he (Di Vincenzo) is taking advantage to try to get more because we are planning to come to the village."

Centex has said the tax money generated by the development will be more than adequate to support the schools. However, because of a tax lag, it can take six to 18 months for the school districts to get the needed money to meet initial operating expenses.

Park Director Stan Crosland said Tuesday night that under the resolution Centex would be required to provide 17.55 acres for recreation. Centex' plan designates only 10.17 acres for this purpose, none of which is set aside for preschoolers.

WHILE THERE may be additional recreation areas, Crosland said the plan does not show them. He has requested that Centex submit a detailed plan of all park areas.

Several members of the village board recently said the project should not be annexed unless Centex agrees to the additional donations. Other members, however, said while they favor negotiating with the developer for the donations, they will not vote against annexation should Centex continue to refuse.

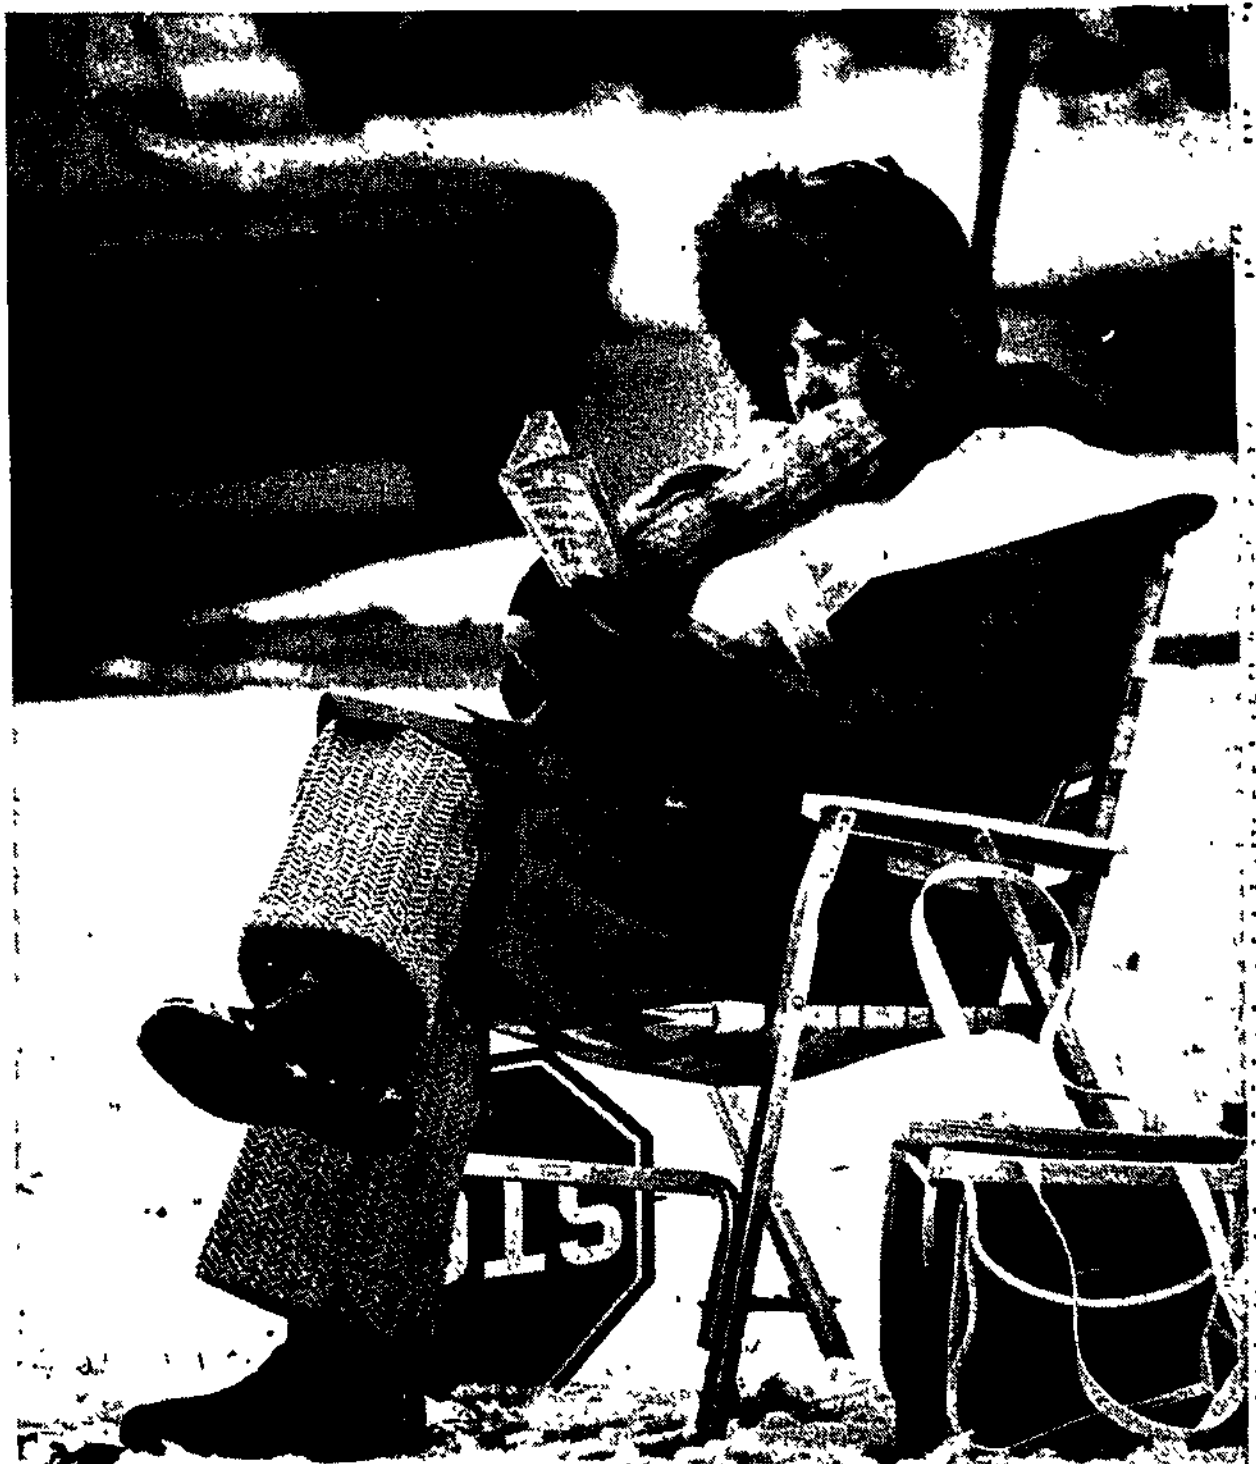

The Hank Farm is north of Chevy Chase Country Club and will consist of 580 townhouses and 380 condominiums. The project, called Winston Park North is expected to generate more than 3,000 persons.

After the plan commission makes a recommendation on the project, it will go to the village board for its review.

Lions donate $350

The Wheeling Lions Club has donated $350 of its Candy Day sales to the Hadley School for the Blind in Winnetka.

Candy Day proceeds are also used to support other programs for the blind, including Leader Dogs for the Blind, Dialogue, Illinois Camp Lions and the Illinois Society for the prevention of blindness.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurtle through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

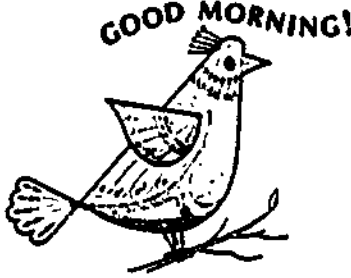

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1 1/2 inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

Present temporary location and Central Road site

Oakton authorities narrow site possibilities to two

by WANDALYN RICE

Oakton Community College has taken a step toward resolving its three-year-long quest for a permanent site.

The college board of trustees Tuesday agreed to choose between two sites at its Feb. 19 meeting. Assuming the decision is made on schedule, Oakton officials will appear at the March 22 meeting of the Illinois Community College Board to seek approval for its choice.

The two sites to be considered between now and Feb. 19 are the college's current, temporary site on Oakton Street at the border between Niles and Morton Grove and a site on Central Road east of the Des Plaines River in unincorporated Des Plaines.

Oakton trustees said reports on land values, traffic flow and other factors involving the two sites will be available in January and will be discussed with officials of Des Plaines, Morton Grove and Niles. In addition, the board will hold public hearings on the two sites in February and will consult with the citizens' committee which has been studying possible college sites.

THE TIMETABLE was proposed by board member Ray Hartstein who said it will "assure thorough consideration of all options."

Board member Thomas Flynn urged the board to speed up its timetable in order to make a decision in time for the February meeting of the ICCB. Flynn said that would enable district officials to go to the Illinois General Assembly with a special request for funds for the site which would then be available in July.

College Pres. William Koehnline said college officials will move as quickly as possible on getting information on the site decision, but said, "I think it's quite unrealistic to think we'll get on the agenda of the February ICCB meeting."

Oakton has been looking for a campus for the past three years and has selected two previous sites, only to withdraw them after public protest. Site considerations for the last few months have been held up while officials waited for a decision from the ICCB about whether high school districts on the North Shore would be added to the Oakton district.

The Oakton board sent a letter to the ICCB in October asking that the North Shore be annexed to the college district. College officials had said the North Shore has several possible sites or the college.

Last week, however, the ICCB approved a staff recommendation that the North Shore high school districts of Evanston, New Trier, Highland Park, Deerfield and Glenbrook be allowed to form their own college district.

THE BOARD in the past has discussed a number of advantages and disadvantages involving the two sites under consideration. The site on Central Road is 122 acres and owned by the Chicago Archdiocese, which has indicated willingness to sell. However, part of the land is in the Des Plaines River flood plain and residents in the eastern part of the district have said they will oppose the site because it is not centrally located.

The site of the temporary campus, which is centrally located, has just 27 acres and would require design of high-rise buildings for the college, officials have said. The land is in an industrial area and has a number of owners, some of whom have indicated an unwillingness to sell to the college. In addition, Morton Grove village officials have said they oppose location of the college there because of the amount of property which would be removed from the tax rolls.

Whatever site is selected by the Oakton board must be approved by the ICCB and the Illinois Board of Higher Education. The state will provide 75 per cent of the cost of the site.

Mount Prospect takes land claimed by city

The ongoing boundary dispute between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines was extended to yet another front when Mount Prospect village trustees annexed a 37-acre parcel previously annexed by Des Plaines.

In the latest in a series of land tugs-of-war, the Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday night by a 4-to-2 vote forcibly annexed a chunk of commercial and multi-family property north of Algonquin Road and generally east of Elmhurst Road.

Trustees Richard N. Hendricks and George B. Anderson dissented. Hendricks said he considered Elmhurst Road and the natural east-west border between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines south of Golf Road, and objected to the village's venturing east of Elmhurst.

MAYOR Robert D. Teichert and Trustees O. T. Gustus, Patrick J. Link and E. F. Richardson voted in favor of the annexation. Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten was absent.

The property includes The New Waterfall and the Terranova restaurants, Colonial apartments and a service station.

It had been annexed by the Des Plaines City Council on Nov. 19, but according to Mount Prospect officials, the Des Plaines move was not valid because of a mistaken legal description of the property.

The seesaw border dispute is likely to wind up in court, along with a nearby boundary disagreement.

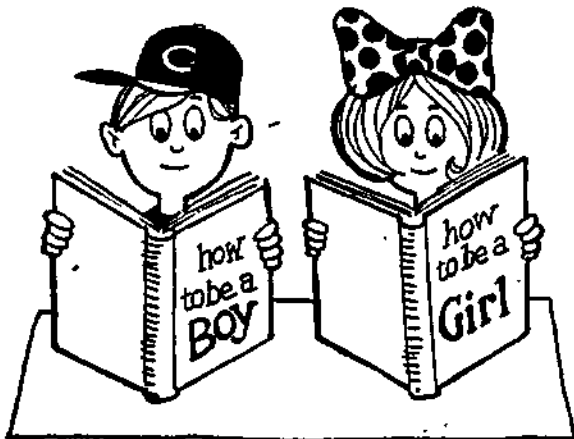

Des Plaines is expected to contest Mount Prospect's annexation Nov. 29 of a 12-acre parcel at the southwest corner of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads. That property, too, had been annexed earlier by Des Plaines, but Mount Prospect officials contend the annexation was improper because the property was not surrounded by municipalities.

IN ANOTHER dispute, Mount Prospect on Oct. 26 was awarded annexation of the former Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street by a Cook County Circuit Court judge. The earlier annexation of the property by Des Plaines was thrown out by the judge because of a legal technicality, but Des Plaines city aldermen have indicated they will probably appeal the ruling.

The latest parcel of property to become embroiled in the boundary controversy — the 37-acre tract at Elmhurst and Algonquin roads — was in unincorporated Elk Grove Township prior to being grabbed by both towns.

Both Mount Prospect and Des Plaines are anxious to annex it in order to reap the property and sales tax benefits.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

City officials to hear talk on stadium

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there.

The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team.

Stephens' offer came after several Des Plaines aldermen raised questions regarding the impact on the city. Both 6th Ward Aldermen, Ewald Sanson and Carmen Sario, asked how Rosemont plans to handle traffic control and flooding problems that may be created by the stadium, which will be located at Mannheim Road and Lunt Avenue, north of the Northwest Tollway.

STEPHENS SAID there are current plans for 4,200 parking spaces at the stadium and there is additional space for another 700 to 800 parking spaces.

He added the village plans to double the size of its police force to handle stadium crowds. A brochure prepared by C. F. Murphy Associates, the architects for the $11.5 million facility, indicates the stadium will be used about 250 days each year.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Fund to help needy

A special collection organized by several employees at Baniam Books in Des Plaines has collected more than $2,000 in cash, food and toys for needy families this Christmas.

The funds were raised by Diana Stanford, Oscar Garza, Elizabeth Kratchy and Rose Jarmond for seven needy families in the Northwest suburbs and in Chicago. The items and cash will be distributed to the families this week.

Fire destroys store in Elk Grove

A spectacular blaze last night destroyed a 100-year-old barn used as a retail store by Berthold's Nursery on Devon Avenue in Elk Grove Village.

The fire, which began about 4:50 p.m., quickly consumed the aged structure, causing an estimated $150,000 damage.

Flames from the fire were visible for some distance from the nursery night. No injuries were reported.

Law limits youth drinking

Nineteen and 20-year-olds won't be able to drink beer and wine where liquor is sold in Schaumburg — or will they? Village officials have passed a law preventing anyone who is 19 or 20 from drinking in an establishment that also sells hard liquor. But the state liquor control commission says the law is illegal. It's an attempt to "deny rights granted by the legislature," said commission official Thomas Murphy. "Our position is that the state law granting 19 and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allows them to buy these beverages (beer and wine) wherever they are sold," he said.

C&NW backing transit plan

The Chicago and North Western Ry. yesterday began its own campaign for passage of the March 19 Regional Transit Authority referendum. C&NW commuters were given leaflets headlined "A message to our riders concerning the Regional Transportation Authority." It described the RTA as "a good bill (that) . . . once it is in operation, will serve the interests of all citizens in the six-county metropolitan area — including you, our riders." The C&NW also urged riders "to keep an open mind on the RTA and to be certain that you have the facts necessary to make a judgment that is in your own interest as a user of public transportation."

Council supports RTA

The Council of Governments of Cook County, an association of local governmental agencies, also endorsed RTA yesterday. Council chairman Edgar Vanneman, the mayor of Evanston, said the group favors the RTA proposal even though it would have liked to see a larger RTA board for more suburban representation and establishment of a separate transit planning agency — Sec. 2, Page 2

Airline pickets tomorrow

Airline pilots will post "informational" pickets at O'Hare Airport tomorrow to protest federal fuel policies that have forced cutbacks in airline jobs. Robert Rubens, regional vice president of the pilots' union, said the picketers may also object to the airlines' mutual aid pact that provides funds to airlines whose employees are on strike.

Appeal to commerce commission

Voters' group asks telephone service rate cut

by LEA TONKIN

The Independent Voters of Illinois launched a surprise attack on Illinois Bell Telephone Co. on Thursday afternoon, calling on the Illinois Commerce Commission to slash telephone service rates by $24 million dollars.

A brief filed with the ICC by the IVI and Ellis Levin, IVI consumer affairs director, cited examples of Bell's accounting and operating practices in its request for lower service rates. A commission ruling is expected this week on the telephone company's bid for $81.4 million in higher service rates.

ARAM HARTUNIAN, attorney for the IVI, charged that Bell made several undisclosed campaign contributions to political candidates. Bell gave preferential treatment to the favored officials, and tried to write the expense off to the public, according to Hartunian.

"During the (ICC) hearings, IVI attempted to obtain the details of these contributions from Illinois Bell, without success," Hartunian continued. "The commerce commission refused to require Bell to disclose this information."

Hartunian said a $15.2 million cut in Illinois Bell service rates is justified "for a number of reasons." He listed advertising expenses and prices paid to the supplier Western Electric as among the costs.

The total service rate cutback should amount to $24 million, said Hartunian. "It is based on our view that Bell failed to comply with the court order for providing a $7 million item," he said. This item is the licensing fee paid to the parent firm American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T). He referred to an Illinois Supreme Court decision in October which disallowed Bell expenses for charitable contributions, lobbying activities and company-sponsored memberships in civic clubs for rate-making purposes.

"THE LOBBYING expenses Bell reported to the Commerce Commission are about one tenth of what has actually been spent to get Illinois Bell the government support it has wanted," said Madeleine Rueckberg, IVI director.

Windfall profits paid to Bell suppliers cost the Illinois telephone users more than $6 million annually, the IVI brief states. The group charges that the advertising and public relations expenses have little justification. Advertising costs are more than six times higher than necessary to meet Bell's objectives, IVI charges. The group also criticized Bell's charitable donations.

A spokesman for Illinois Bell was sharply critical of the IVI announcement. "Having had its day in court, the IVI has now decided to go public with the same bunkum it has already presented to the ICC," the spokesman said.

"To do a rerun of this nonsense on the very eve of the commission's decision is nothing but a ploy — and a brazenly improper one at that." The ICC has held more than 70 public hearings over the past 13 months on Bell's rate increase bid, the spokesman continued. "In the final analysis, rhetoric is no substitute for evidence, and you can count on the public to spot the difference," he said.

College crew films program in action

'A bit of everything' aids social studies students

by LINDA PUNCH
Fifth- and sixth-grade students at Adlai E. Stevenson School recently went before television cameras to teach educators about education. Camera crews from Northeastern Ill-nois University invaded the classroom of teachers Janice Weiner and Anne Klowden earlier this month to film students at work in a social studies program. The film will be used in comparative education classes at the university.

Subject of the film is a social studies curriculum based on the study of man, according to Mrs. Klowden. The program, in its third year at Stevenson School, is used in several other Dist. 63 schools.

The year-long course is designed to teach youngsters what "makes man human," according to Mrs. Weiner.

"The kids are learning about different animals and what makes us different from a salmon or baboon," she said. "They also learn about the similarities — about instinct and innate and learned behavior."

THE COURSE of study ranges from the life cycle of a salmon to the culture of Alaskan Eskimos, according to Mrs. Klowden.

"We continually compare the animals to man and ask how man can become more human," she said. "For example, when we discuss aggressiveness, we look at baboons because baboons don't kill their own kind."

The social studies course includes "a little bit of everything — anthropology, sociology, economics and political science," according to Mrs. Weiner.

"When we have discussions on Africa, we try to point out that western culture might not be right for everybody. We try to show the students that we shouldn't necessarily accept our way as the only right way," she said.

WHILE THE subject matter of the course is innovative, the method of instruction also differs from the traditional, according to Mrs. Klowden. Students work with filmstrips, booklets and class projects rather than textbooks and teacher lectures, she added.

"The key to the whole thing is that all ideas are encouraged. There is no single right answer to any question," she said. "The kids are encouraged to ask questions and to talk things over with their friends."

On the day of the filming, half the students sat in one corner of the room viewing a movie on baboons while the rest of the group sprawled on the floor "reconstructing the environment of Africa."

"This is the typical type of project where students actually get in and do something," Mrs. Klowden said. "The nice thing is there is no chance for problem kids to cause problems — they have too many things to do."

Burglars take tires out of railroad car

Burglars forced their way into a railroad car and stole an undetermined amount of auto tires owned by Kelly-Springfield Tire, 301 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines police said yesterday.

The car was left outside the company building when police said the burglars struck, probably Monday.

The break-in was discovered early yesterday, according to reports.

Park survey shows residents are 'satisfied'

Most respondents to a survey of Mount Prospect Park District residents are "pretty satisfied" with the district, according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation.

Caldwell said most of the 150 persons who completed questionnaires distributed by the district indicated they were content with the park facilities and programs.

"We are getting sporadic requests for new facilities," he said, "but there's no mandate for a referendum."

Among the facilities being sought by residents are indoor ice skating rinks and tennis courts, outdoor tennis courts and swimming pools.

However, Caldwell said not enough residents are interested in a particular facility to warrant a referendum.

Two chief complaints are listed in the preliminary responses to the questionnaire: classes get filled quickly and they are mainly in the Lions Park Recreation Center, rather than in neighborhood parks.

Caldwell said "there's always a possibility" of holding classes in neighborhoods, but he added that it is not economically feasible because the school districts whose buildings are used for park programs must pass on maintenance and electrical charges.

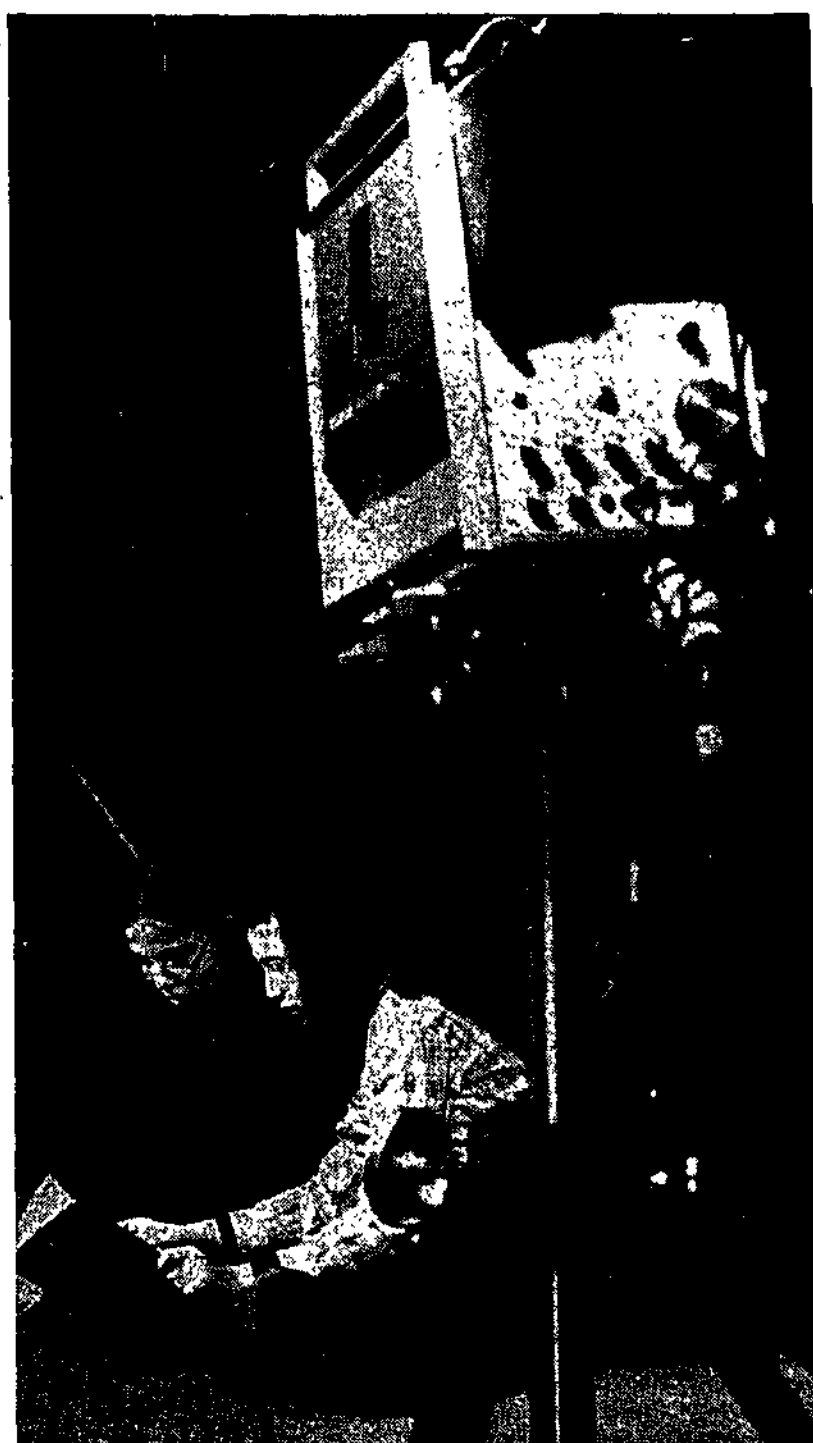

Caldwell is hoping more residents respond to the questionnaire, which asks residents to rate programs and facilities. Some 14,000 have been mailed, with copies of the winter "Fun Talk" program.

Oakton to offer discounts for elderly

Residents of the Oakton Community College district over 60 years old are now entitled to enroll in college academic and vocational courses for half tuition.

The Oakton board Tuesday approved the half price tuition for persons 60 years old and older for all courses except those under classified as "general studies." Most general studies courses are offered by MONACEP, a cooperative adult education program run by Oakton and the Maine and Niles township high school districts.

Full tuition at Oakton is $10 per credit hour.

Chicago man's auto stolen in Des Plaines

Thieves stole an auto owned by a Chicago man after the car was left outside Interstate Steel Corp., 401 Touhy Ave., said police.

The victim, Jerome Patano, 4929 Wal-ten told police he left the auto, a 1965 Ford in a parking lot at the Touhy Avenue address about 1 p.m. Tuesday and noticed it stolen when he returned several hours later.

City council wrapup

Council panels hibernate 2 weeks

With the Christmas and New Year holidays approaching, city council committees will begin their annual two-week hibernation. All meetings will be held after the dawn of the New Year at the Des Plaines City Hall.

Four council committee sessions are scheduled for Jan. 2 to review a variety of matters. The municipal development committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. to deal with recommendations for zoning cases. Among the items will be an annexation petition from Niedert Trucking Co., 2300 Mount Prospect Rd.

A proposed increase in city water rates to reflect a recent rate hike by the city of Chicago, which supplies a portion of Des Plaines' water, and a water system improvement program will be reviewed by the water and sewer committee. The committee will also look at the tentative contract for the purchase of property at Central and Wolf roads for a water pumping station, reservoir and site of the city's fourth fire station. The committee will also meet at 7:30 p.m.

The city code and judiciary committee will meet at 8:30 p.m. to discuss several proposals aimed at expediting city council meetings and other proposed governmental revisions.

The building grounds and parking lots committee will review a proposal submitted by the Central Telephone Co. for phone service for the new city hall. The committee will meet at 9 p.m.

On Jan. 3, the council's civil defense and beautification committee will begin listing proposed projects for 1974. The committee session will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Both the police and fire committees will meet 45 minutes before the next regular city council meeting Jan. 7. The police will review an agreement between the city and Maine Township High School Dist. 207 for police regulation of high school parking lots.

The fire committee will review the annual contract with the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District for fire service.

Parking token shortage

The Christmas shopping rush and a delivery delay has caused a near shortage of parking tokens distributed by downtown Des Plaines merchants to shoppers.

City Comptroller Duane Biletz said the city has been able to avert any real shortage by making more frequent collections from parking meters.

Local merchants distribute the tokens to shoppers to provide free metered parking in the downtown area.

Biletz said the city has more than 32,000 tokens in circulation, but they had not been coming back to the city to meet the demand.

He explained the situation should be eased in the next week or two when the city gets a new shipment of tokens which have been on order for several weeks.

"We have managed to keep up with the demand, but we are hard pressed to explain where all the tokens have gone," he said.

O'Hare cab fare cut?

Local officials hope to ask Chicago airport officials to include the city's name in a list of communities that are contiguous to O'Hare International Airport, so that persons taking cabs to Des Plaines can receive a lower fare.

Currently persons who take cabs from the airport to Des Plaines are charged one and one-half times the meter rate.

Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) said cabs are given a list of towns which are contiguous to the airport and persons who take cabs to these towns are only charged the regular meter rate.

Bolek noted that since Des Plaines is contiguous to the airport at several points, the city should attempt to get the same consideration other towns receive. City officials plan to write to airport officials and ask for an examination of the matter.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 96 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 26 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

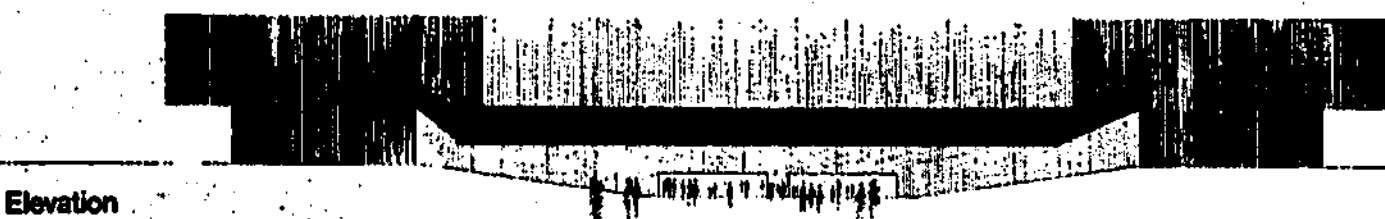

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.
- Number of illustrations of males and females.
- Number of stories which depict children involved in activity play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.
- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.
- Are boys allowed to show emotion?
- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?
- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?
- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?
- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?
- Are babysitters depicted in stories?
- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1½ inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

100-year-old structure gutted

Fire destroys Elk Grove Village building; estimate $150,000 damage

by BOB GALLAS

Fire, apparently caused by an electrical short, completely destroyed a 100-year-old barn at Berthold's Nursery and Garden Center in Elk Grove Village last night.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out about 4:50 p.m. Owner Al Berthold tentatively set the damage at $150,000.

According to employees inside the building when the fire erupted, the fire was first noticed when lights in the two story building went out. Employees going to check found fire going up the wall of the boiler room near the electrical panel, according to Berthold.

"They (the employees) tried to put it out with fire extinguishers, but once it got going in that wooden building there was just no stopping it," said Berthold. The building was engulfed in flames by the time Elk Grove firemen arrived on the scene a few minutes after 5 p.m.

BERTHOLD SAID most of the loss would be in the contents of the building. About 15 employees had been inside, making up flower arrangements for Christmas when the fire broke out. Besides other flowers being prepared for delivery, Berthold said 2,000 poinsettias scheduled to go out over the next few days were destroyed.

"We'll be back in business within a few days," said Berthold as he stood by. Berthold has been doing business at his 434 E. Devon location since 1948.

Smoke from the fire, blown by steady winds, could be seen for several miles. Elk Grove firefighters, were assisted by Wood Dale and Bensenville companies at the scene. Eleven pieces of equipment were at the scene for over four hours.

Large groups of spectators stood by while firefighters fought the blaze in below-freezing temperatures. An adjoining trailer, as well as another warehouse and Berthold's house, were not damaged by the fire.

Berthold said the loss was "partially covered" by insurance.

THE MAIN building at Berthold's Nursery on Devon Ave. burned yesterday, causing an estimated $150,000 damage. The fire broke out early yesterday evening, apparently caused by an electrical failure. Elk Grove Village firemen fought the blaze but the structure was gutted by the flames. (Photo by Jim Frost)

Burglars grab safe, stereo from rug mart

A safe and stereo set were reported stolen from the Value Rug Mart Inc., 600 Pratt Blvd., early Monday morning.

According to Elk Grove Village police, the building was broken into by cutting a padlock and kicking in a door. No value was reported for the stolen items.

Police said whoever broke into the building apparently knew where valuable items were stored.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

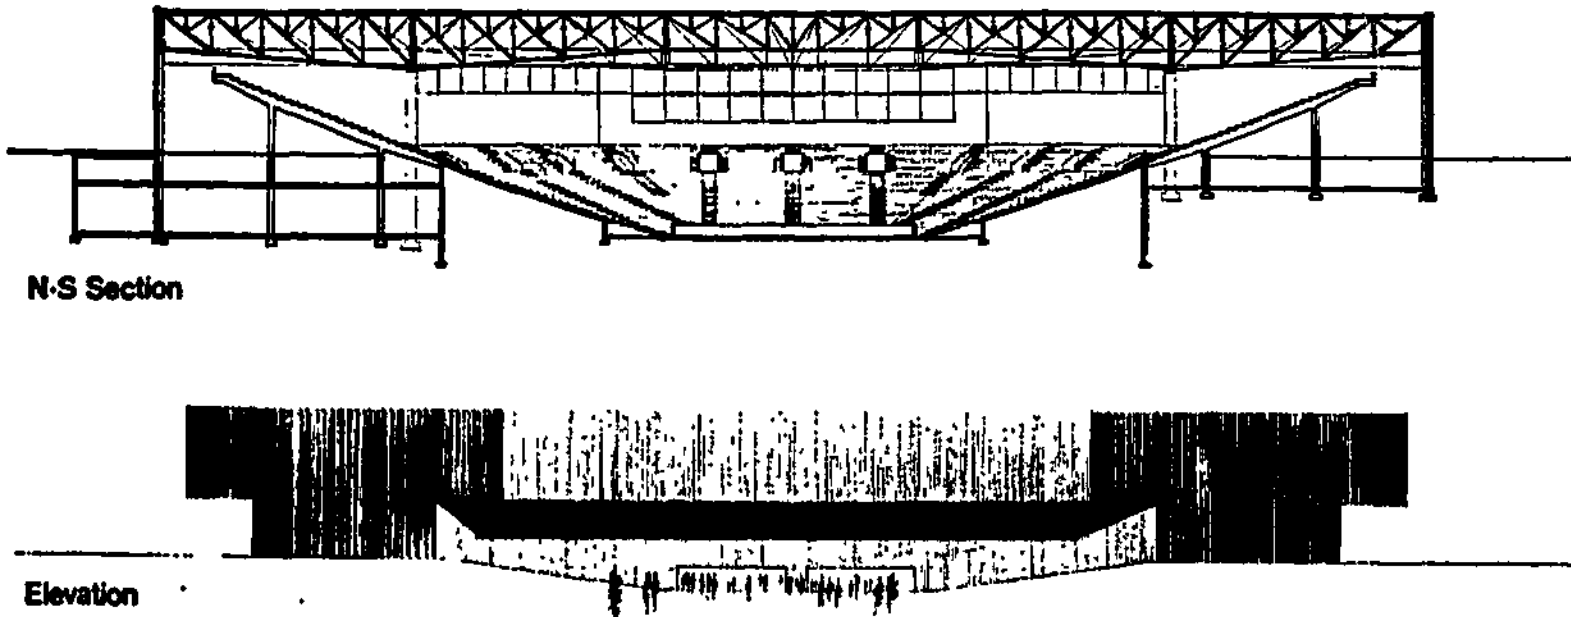

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

INSIDE AND OUT — Preliminary architect's plans for the proposed 18,000-seat sports stadium to be built in Rosemont shows how spectators in the $11.5 million arena will have an unobstructed view of the action. The arena will front Mannheim Road and will be bordered by Lunt and Morse avenues in Rosemont.

City to hear Rosemont mayor speak on proposed stadium

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there.

The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team.

Stephens' offer came after several Des Plaines aldermen raised questions regarding the impact on the city. Both 6th Ward Aldermen, Ewald Sanson and Carmen Sarlo, asked how Rosemont plans to handle traffic control and flooding problems that may be created by the stadium, which will be located at Mannheim Road and Lunt Avenue, north of the Northwest Tollway.

STEPHENS SAID there are current plans for 4,200 parking spaces at the stadium and there is additional space for another 700 to 800 parking spaces. He added the village plans to double the size of its police force to handle stadium crowds. A brochure prepared by C. F. Murphy Associates, the architects for the $11.5 million facility, indicates the stadium will be used about 250 days each year.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Mannheim Road and Lee Street and that no access to Touhy Avenue is planned. Rosemont officials have been trying to get a tollway interchange built at the stadium site to ease traffic flow. Stephens also indicated Rosemont plans to seek more than $1 million from the federal government to widen Higgins Road which runs just south of the stadium site. The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

Schaumburg Township boasts roomier offices

Roomier quarters now house the Schaumburg Township offices of the clerk, assessor and youth committee in The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

"We still don't have a township building, but this rented suite of offices is a far cry from the old days of operating in our homes," said Mrs. Kathleen Wojcik.

Mrs. Wojcik, clerk since 1968, reminisced about her first year in office, "when the only way persons could register to vote or contact the township was to call on me at home."

The township rented three small rooms in the front section of The Buttery in 1969 and business was conducted from then until July when a new wing was constructed and the township moved in.

The 1,900-square-foot suite boasts a large conference room where public meetings are held. There is also a storage room for records and office equipment. Offices for the clerk, assessor, collector and youth committee. A reception area and space for social workers and office clerks also are provided.

The offices are open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily except Wednesday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

The Committee On Youth operates a youth employment service from the conference room and the Salvation Army uses the clerk's office for counseling Schaumburg Township residents.

Orange shag carpeting is the only color accent in the airy white rooms with colonial windows. Mrs. Wojcik said the township officials pay $750 a month rent for the offices.

Schaumburg law restricts liquor rights of youths

by PAT GERLACH

Nineteen and 20-year-olds can't buy wine and beer where hard liquor is served in Schaumburg, village officials say.

Yes they can, argues a spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Liquor law revisions adopted in Schaumburg this week prohibit 19- and 20-year-olds from being served beer or wine in restaurants serving hard liquor.

But, the revisions are illegal, said Thomas Murphy of the ILCC.

"Our position is that the state law granting 19- and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allow them to buy these beverages wherever they are sold," he said.

THE SCHAUMBURG ordinance is an attempt to "deny rights granted by the state legislature," he added.

Even though Schaumburg is a home rule community, those powers do not permit a municipality to "deny rights allowed by the state," Murphy said.

Neither Jack Siegel, the village attorney, nor Mayor Robert O. Aicher were available for comment yesterday.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the ordinance will be enforced as part of regular spot checks the police department makes of liquor-serving establishments.

There will be a lot of self-policing by license holders too, Conroy said, adding, it was the people who hold full liquor licenses who wanted these restrictions.

The ordinance was written after a meeting of proprietors from businesses holding full liquor licenses.

THE UPDATED village ordinance allows 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase beer and wine in places where only those alcoholic beverages are sold as well as in package liquor stores. But persons under 21 cannot buy or drink beer or wine in establishments where hard liquor is served.

The law also prohibits persons under 21 from entering a tavern unless accompanied by a parent or other adult and does not allow them to purchase either beer or wine.

The ordinance, however, does not restrict those under 21 from entering restaurants or other businesses whose principal purpose is other than serving liquor.

Persons 19 and 20 years old will be able to serve all types of alcoholic beverages, it was added.

Salvation Army kettle drive tops $440 here

The Salvation Army kettle drive in Elk Grove Village has collected more than $440 in the past two weekends.

Kettles will again be placed, for the last time this season, in the village on Friday night and all day Saturday. Volunteers to be "bell ringers" at the kettles are still needed. Anyone willing to volunteer may call Trustee Nanci Vanderweel or George Coney, director of finance, at the village hall, 439-3900.

Volunteers are asked to work for at least an hour, but they may stay as long as they wish.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts can't afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 96 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 26 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.
- Number of illustrations of males and females.
- Number of stories which depict children involved in activity play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.
- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.
- Are boys allowed to show emotion?
- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?
- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?
- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?
- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?
- Are babysitters depicted in stories?
- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

TOYS FOR TOTS were collected by workers at Sperry Rand Univac, 2121 Landmeier Rd. Denise Nichols and Juanita Hubbard helped collect the toys.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1 1/2 inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

$17,200 collected by volunteers

Crusade of Mercy drive now 15% over $15,000 goal

The best year ever for the Palatine Crusade of Mercy is drawing to a close with contributions 15 per cent greater than the organization's $15,000 goal.

Latest figures show $17,200 collected by volunteer solicitors, compared to the 1972 contributions totaling $11,500. Crusade of Mercy Pres. Charles H. Foss credits the results to an increased number of volunteers working on the campaign and better leadership in the organization.

Another factor may be the name change in the campaign. The Community Combined Appeal became the Palatine Crusade of Mercy this year, which is possibly a better known name to area residents.

Totals in individual campaign areas are: residential, $9,578; business, $3,816; employees, $3,443; and medical and professional, $360. Dr. Edward Laskowski headed the campaign effort.

Each dollar raised locally is matched with a $2 contribution from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy to meet the estimated $45,000 needed by the area's 13 social service organizations supported by the donations.

Organizations which receive money from the Crusade of Mercy include the Santa Teresita Church day care center, Countryside Center for the handicapped, Clearbrook Center, Northwest Mental Health Clinic, Camp Reinberg, Salvation Army welfare fund and community service, Northwest Suburban YMCA, United Servicemen's Organization, Homemakers, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

Parks to offer new recreation programs

Several new recreational programs for residents of Palatine Township will be offered beginning in January by the Salt Creek Park District.

A special five-month weekend pass good at the Arlington Park Towers indoor swimming pool and Health Club is available for families. Passes will be honored any Saturday or Sunday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Wednesdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Cost of the special pass is $7.50 for residents, $14 for nonresidents per family.

Plans for family tennis lessons at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club are being prepared by the district. The lessons will start in January for beginners, advanced beginners and intermediates. Cost will be $28 for adults, and $22 for children for six one-hour lessons.

On Friday, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. family trampoline lessons will begin. Cost is $10 for any four-member family, with at least one adult.

For women in the district, a belly dancing class for beginners and intermediates will be offered starting Jan. 10. Residents may enroll for $6.50 and nonresidents for $8.50.

Lessons also will be available for children in tumbling and trampoline, dance, tennis, skiing and swimming beginning in January. The preschool classes held in the district also will accept new students in January.

For information on any program or to register for a class, call the district at 259-6890.

Office zoning on agenda again

A request for a contractor's office, shop and supply area west of Palatine is coming up for a second time before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

No date has been set for a public hearing on the rezoning application made by Frank Gehard of Chicago. On Nov. 30, Gehard's project was scheduled for discussion when the zoning officials met in the Palatine Village Hall, but the request was withdrawn shortly before the hearing. The property is 4 1/2 acres on the northwest corner of Quentin Road and Wood Street.

The original request asked for a zoning classification that allows mostly commercial development, but would not allow the truck traffic that would be expected with a contractor's yard, according to Secretary Paul Marcy of the county zoning board. The latest request is for M-1 zoning, which allows light manufacturing uses such as a contractor's yard, where supplies and trucks would be stored.

Another rezoning request will be considered by zoning officials, for a restaurant on 1 1/2 acres west of Smith Street, on the north side of Baldwin Road. Michael F. Maude of Barrington has applied for the zoning change.

Park district Yule party Saturday

Cartoons, refreshments, games, a piñata break and Santa Claus will all be part of the annual Salt Creek Park District Christmas party Saturday.

The party will be held from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in the Arlington Park Race Track enclosed grandstand. Children living in the district may attend the free party.

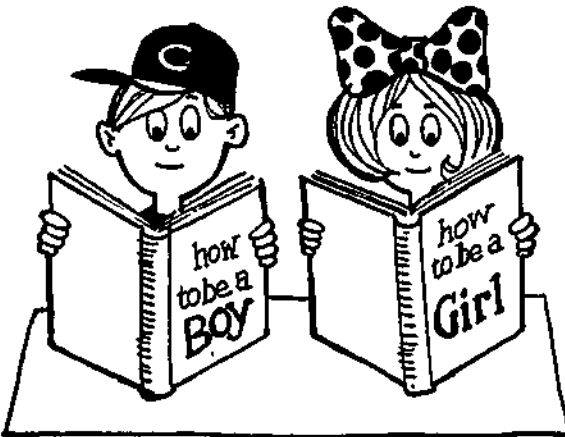

Another place to eat

Swiss Bavarian Village, a restaurant featuring fondue entrees, opened recently in the Palatine Mall, on Hicks Road north of Northwest Highway.

The restaurant is open from 11 a.m. to midnight daily, and is owned by Al Walton. It features various fondues, a salad bar, wine rack, and a Student Prince bar and lounge.

Another Swiss Bavarian Village franchise is scheduled to open in Schaumburg in March.

Sexist texts?

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

Centner legal fees exceed village budget

The cost of attorneys paid by the Village of Palatine in its public hearing against former police chief Robert R. Centner has already exceeded the village's budget as the hearing moves into its fifth day.

Village taxpayers are financing two of three attorneys in the case. William Littlejohn, one of the village's regular attorneys, is counseling the Fire and Police Commission conducting the hearing, while a special outside attorney, Jack Siegel, was hired to represent the village board.

Attorneys' fees for the two lawyers range from $40 to $60 per hour each. Centner's attorney, John D. Hayes, is defending the former chief free.

"I'm charging Centner no fee at all," Hayes said, pointing to the former chief's family and the financial burden that would be incurred if he was faced with regular lawyer fees. Hayes has defended Centner and other policemen on a previous occasion for the Village of Palatine, when he claimed he charged the village less than half of his regular fee, "because I have a special feeling for the village."

VILLAGE PRES. Wendell Jones blamed the climbing cost of the hearing on Hayes' prolonged questioning of village witnesses.

"To extend it for so long a time is just not necessary," Jones said. The village board had anticipated Siegel's total cost between $1,200 and $2,000.

Just counting his hours in the actual hearing, Siegel has earned approximately $1,200. That cost will be higher when the attorney's time spent gathering background in the case is tabulated. And the hearing will go at least two more days.

The village's case is expected to conclude during the next hearing date Dec. 28.

WITNESSES FOR Centner will take the stand for the first time when the village completes its case, and Hayes predicted that presentation of his case will take at least 1 1/2 days. Between eight and 12 witnesses are expected to be called for Centner, including the chief's immediate superior, former Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun and former village trustees who technically had the final say in police department policies.

Centner's policies and administrative ability had been under fire prior to his forced resignation June 25, and during testimony from Republican trustees and men in the police department. Hayes has been attempting to show political motivations in Centner's ouster, through alleged deals between dissident policemen and newly-elected Republican trustees last spring.

The village's budget for legal expenses, which was approved before rumblings began for the public hearing, is $28,100.

Schaumburg curbs youth liquor rights

by PAT GERLACH

Nineteen and 20-year-olds can't buy wine and beer where hard liquor is served in Schaumburg, village officials say.

Yes they can, argues a spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Liquor law revisions adopted in Schaumburg this week prohibit 19- and 20-year-olds from being served beer or wine in restaurants serving hard liquor.

But, the revisions are illegal, said Thomas Murphy of the ILCC.

"Our position is that the state law granting 19- and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allow them to buy these beverages wherever they are sold," he said.

THE SCHAUMBURG ordinance is an attempt to "deny rights granted by the state legislature," he added.

Even though Schaumburg is a home rule community, those powers do not permit a municipality to "deny rights allowed by the state," Murphy said.

Neither Jack Siegel, the village attorney, nor Mayor Robert O. Atcher were available for comment yesterday.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the ordinance will be enforced as part of regular spot checks the police department makes of liquor-serving establishments.

There will be a lot of self-policing by license holders too, Conroy said, adding, it was the people who hold full liquor licenses who wanted these restrictions.

The ordinance was written after a meeting of proprietors from businesses holding full liquor licenses.

THE UPDATED village ordinance allows 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase beer and wine in places where only those alcoholic beverages are sold as well as in package liquor stores. But persons under 21 cannot buy or drink beer or wine in establishments where hard liquor is served.

The law also prohibits persons under 21 from entering a tavern unless accompanied by a parent or other adult and does not allow them to purchase either beer or wine.

The ordinance, however, does not restrict those under 21 from entering restaurants or other businesses whose principal purpose is other than serving liquor.

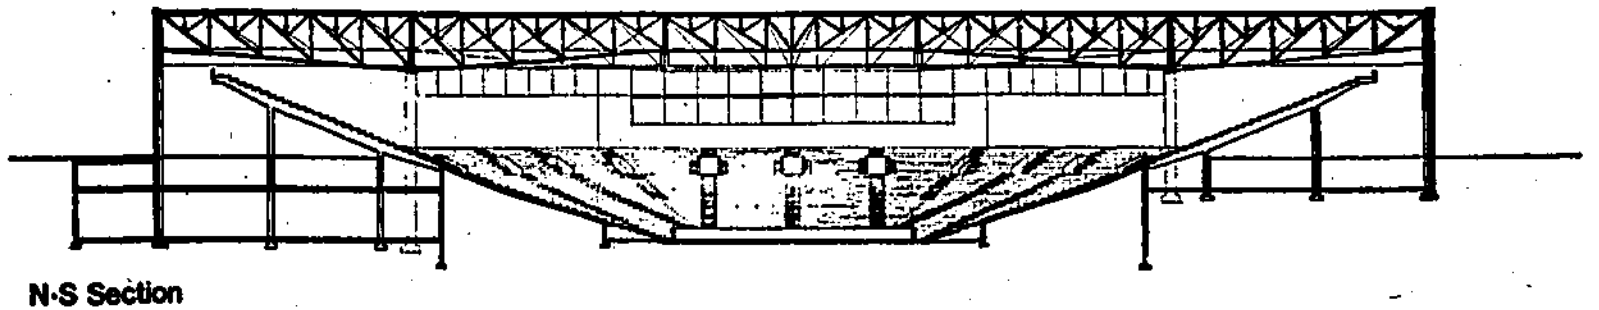

Persons 19 and 20 years old will be able to serve all types of alcoholic beverages, it was added.

Burglars grab safe, stereo from rug mart

A safe and stereo set were reported stolen from the Value Rug Mart Inc., 600 Pratt Blvd., early Monday morning.

According to Elk Grove Village police, the building was broken into by cutting a padlock and kicking in a door. No value was reported for the stolen items.

Police said whoever broke into the building apparently knew where valuable items were stored.

INSIDE AND OUT — Preliminary architect's plans for the proposed 18,000-seat sports stadium to be built in Rosemont shows how spectators in the $11.5 million arena will have an unobstructed view of the action. ### Des Plaines officials to hear Rosemont mayor speak on stadium

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there. The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des

Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team. Stephens' offer came after several Des

Plaines aldermen raised questions regarding the impact on the city. Both 6th Ward Aldermen, Ewald Sanson and Carmen Sario, asked how Rosemont plans to handle traffic control and flooding problems that may be created by the stadium, which will be located at Mannheim Road and Lunt Avenue, north of the Northwest Tollway.

STEPHENS SAID there are current plans for 4,200 parking spaces at the stadium and there is additional space for another 700 to 800 parking spaces.

He added the village plans to double the size of its police force to handle stadium crowds. A brochure prepared by C. F. Murphy Associates, the architects for the $11.5 million facility, indicates the stadium will be used about 250 days each year.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Mannheim Road and Lee Street and that no access to Touhy Avenue is planned.

Rosemont officials have been trying to get a tollway interchange built at the stadium site to ease traffic flow. Stephens also indicated Rosemont plans to seek more than $1 million from the federal government to widen Higgins Road which runs just south of the stadium site.

The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 86 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 28 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Interchange urged for Elk Grove hospital

Alexian Brothers Medical Center has begun distributing petitions, posters and buttons to gain support for its campaign to construct a full interchange at Biesterfeld Road and Interstate 90.

Robin Leach, public relations director, said the hospital hopes to get 25,000 signatures on the petitions now circulating throughout the suburbs served by the hospital. She estimated the petitions would be circulating for about six weeks.

The hospital is also distributing about 1,000 posters and 5,000 buttons describing the interchange by saying, "It could be a matter of life or death."

PETITIONS HAVE been placed in village halls, shopping centers, doctors' offices, churches, the hospital emergency room and other public places.

When completed, the petitions will be sent to the state transportation department to strengthen the hospital's position that the full interchange is needed to provide service to the area.

Miss Leach said the hospital is also asking people to write letters to various state officials to express support for the interchange. She said the names and addresses of the officials are also being distributed.

The hospital has requested that the Illinois Department of Transportation take action to have the interchange built.

In addition to the petitions circulating among citizens, the hospital has asked for support from the governor, state legislators, municipal presidents, police and fire chiefs, ambulance companies, township supervisors and the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

ACCORDING TO hospital officials, the interchange is needed to provide quicker access to the hospital, especially from communities to the north, south and west.

In order to use I-90 to reach the hospital, a car or ambulance coming from the north must travel to the Thorndale Avenue exit and double back traveling an added 1½ miles.

The hospital also says the interchange will provide quicker access for physicians and other employees.

Elk Grove Village tried to get a full interchange at Biesterfeld and I-90 two years ago. Gov. Richard Ogilvie rejected the request, saying it would not be in the best interests of motorists.

The village was advised by state officials that the distance between Biesterfeld Road and the Thorndale exit was shorter than the federal safety standards required, although the distance between Biesterfeld Road and Higgins Road exit was far enough to provide an exit for traffic coming from the north.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

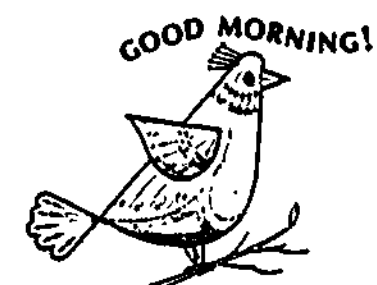

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. White 1½ inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

Use of $10,000 fund to be weighed

Area principals to be asked to advise on scholarships

Principals from the four high schools serving Rolling Meadows will be asked to appear before a city council committee next month to discuss how the city may be able to administer its proposed scholarship fund.

Members of the public information and education committee (PIE) last night agreed to invite the principals from Rolling Meadows High School, Fremd High School, St. Viator's High School and Sacred Heart of Mary High School to discuss the fund at the committee's Jan. 16 meeting.

The city in March approved an expenditure of $10,000 in the current city budget for a college fund. The PIE committee has been designated by Mayor Roland Meyer to draw up plans for the council to consider how the scholarships

City eliminates last two building officer hopefuls

Rolling Meadows will apparently be without a building and zoning officer as of Dec. 28 when Building Officer Sverre Haug officially retires.

Two men who had been regarded as prominent candidates for the position have been eliminated from consideration following interviews with city officials behind closed doors Tuesday.

Officials contacted yesterday said neither of the men, one an architect and the other a structural iron worker, is likely to be appointed to the post. Aldermen said one of the men has requested a salary substantially higher than the $17,500 the city is prepared to pay. The other man was not considered knowledgeable in all aspects of the building trades, aldermen said.

There apparently is still support on the city council, however, to have building inspector Donald McDade appointed to the post. Meyer has said he will not appoint McDade because he does not consider him sufficiently qualified.

MEYER, WHO has the authority to appoint the building and zoning chief with the consent of the city council, could not be reached yesterday.

Ald. William Ahrens (2nd), who had said the special closed meeting Tuesday requested by aldermen was necessary to "straighten out" several matters between Meyer and the council, yesterday said he still wants McDade to be named to the position.

"I still think McDade should be given a chance at it," he said. "I think you would be granted and how many would be available.

Committee members last night came to no agreement on specifics of a plan but suggested a number of possible requirements which may be used to determine scholarship recipients.

ALD. DANIEL WEBER (4th) said the committee will have to determine how many scholarships will be awarded, what yearly increments will be made, whether an income limit will be used to select students and what, if any, renewal factors will be required.

He also suggested the city consider limiting the number of fields of study toward which the grants could be used to areas which could possibly benefit the city, such as urban planning, political science and public administration.

The committee members, Weber, Aldermen Thomas Waldron (2nd) and Stephen Eberhard (3rd), agreed the city should not use financial need as a major determining factor in granting the scholarships. Waldron said too many middle-class families are being eliminated from consideration for scholarships because they are not considered in need, even though the families in reality are not affluent enough to pay for the high costs of college today.

He said university officials he has spoken to say a trend is developing in which the very poor and the very rich are attending college, with the middle class getting squeezed out in the trend.

"I THINK WE NEED something unique," Waldron said of the city's proposed scholarship plan.

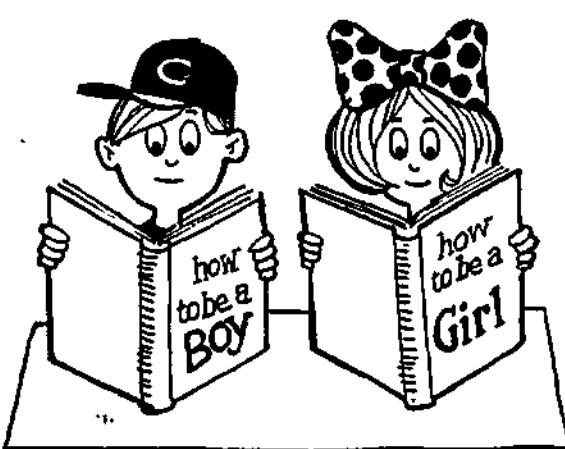

"If we're going to get into this, then it should serve the bulk of the people who reside here," Weber added.

Waldron has suggested the city offer two four-year grants at $1,000 per year and two two-year grants for students interested in attending junior colleges or vocational schools.

Weber last night also suggested that the committee consider offering freshman-sophomore year scholarships and junior-senior year scholarships which would require students to requalify each year for the grants.

The committee also agreed an independent board of residents, educators and community leaders should choose the scholarship recipients, with aldermen and other elected city officials specifically excluded from the selection board.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

Two injured in 2-car accident here

Two persons sustained minor injuries early yesterday when one car skidded into another at the intersection of Plum Grove and Kirchoff roads in Rolling Meadows.

Taken to Northwest Community Hospital were James W. Moyer, 29, of 278 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates, and Max W. Hitchens, 23, of 2831 N. Hampton Ct., Rolling Meadows. Both were treated and released for multiple contusions, a hospital spokesman said.

According to police, the mishap occurred when Hitchens failed to make a complete stop at the Plum Grove-Kirchoff intersection on Kirchoff Road. Moyer told police he was northbound on Plum Grove Road when Hitchens' vehicle struck his car.

Hitchens was ticketed for failing to yield at an intersection. A Feb. 4 court date was set.

Cub awards meeting scheduled Friday

Rolling Meadows Cub Scout Pack 96 will hold its annual Christmas awards meeting at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Trinity Lutheran Church, 3201 Meadow Dr.

The highest Webelos Scout award that will be presented is the arrow of light, which will be given to Chip Schneider and Dave Schroeder for their knowledge of scouting.

Derby cars will be given out to each scout so the boys can practice for the annual Pine Wood Derby competition which will be held in February.

Gifts will be given to each child, and a new den mother, Mrs. Sheri Weller, will be inducted into the pack. Refreshments will be served.

Police press cager uniform theft

Police are hoping for a fast break, but meanwhile are pressing the investigation into the theft of five varsity basketball uniforms from Arlington High School.

George Zigman, basketball coach, Arlington High School reported to police someone entered the school's athletic equipment room and made off with five complete basketball uniforms.

Zigman said the haul included red warmup jackets, blue jerseys and matching shorts. All the items were emblazoned with "Arlington." The value of the uniforms was placed at $250.

Township study

'Manor' flood control: $250,000

It will take $250,000 worth of storm sewers and water retention basins to stop flooding in the Arlington Manor subdivision, according to a recently released Elk Grove Township flood-control study.

The results of the study, paid for by the township, show that residents of the subdivision are in the center of a relatively low flood plain, a natural floodway.

Two storm sewers, one from Arlington Heights and another installed by Cook County, discharge into the flood plain.

The area with the flooding problems is in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, bounded by Central Road on the north, Cypress Street on the south, Arlington Heights Road on the west and Douglas Avenue on the east.

The township has set aside $100,000 of its federal revenue sharing money for flood control. Township officials said they may use some of the funds to start the Arlington Manor work.

RESIDENTS FROM the area appeared before the Elk Grove Township board in August, asking that something be done to correct the problem. The township board, using federal revenue sharing money, authorized a flooding study by the engineering firm of Pearson, Brown & Associates, who recently presented the findings to the board.

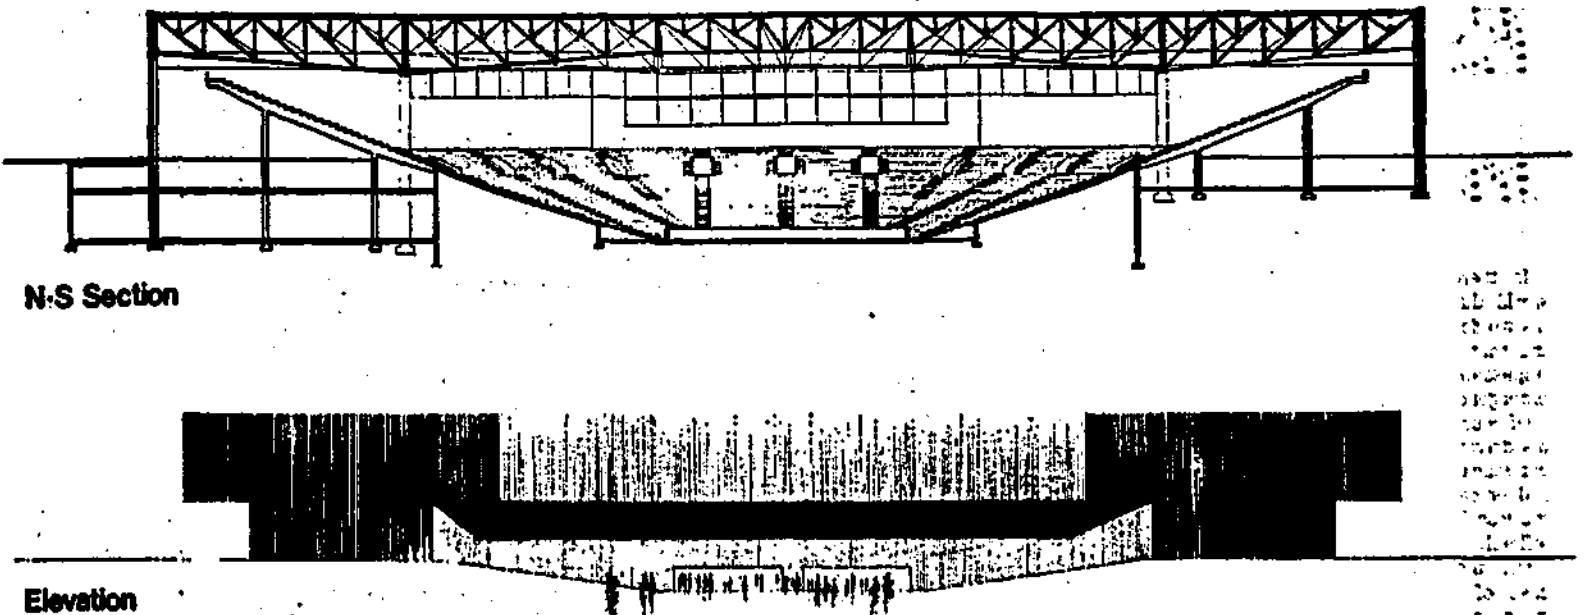

The firm recommended a three-phase plan to correct the problem. The first phase calls for the construction of a main trunk sewer line which would run from the western end of the area, connecting with a 72-inch sewer that runs along Meier Road.

According to the report, the sewer would divert water from the western edge of the area into the Meier Road sewer. Pearson, Brown & Associates estimated the construction of such a sewer would cost approximately $115,000.

The second phase of the project calls for construction of lateral and inlet pipes and sewers between Magnolia and Cypress streets where the floodway is located. Cost for the second phase is estimated at $34,000.

A dry retention pond, built on vacant land east of Pine St. would make up phase three of the project. The pond, capable of storing 1,630,000 gallons of water, would cost about $77,000 to construct.

The report cited an inadequate drain tile system in the area that has in some cases, blocked underground drainage patterns. The blockage has slowed the rate of dissipating water, which aggravates and prolongs flooding conditions.

INSIDE AND OUT — Preliminary architect's plans for the proposed 18,000-seat sports stadium to be built in Rosemont shows how spectators in the

Des Plaines officials to hear Rosemont mayor speak on stadium

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there.

The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team.

Stephens' offer came after several Des

Plaines aldermen raised questions regarding the impact on the city. Both 6th Ward Aldermen, Ewald Sanson and Carmen Sario, asked how Rosemont plans to handle traffic control and flooding problems that may be created by the stadium, which will be located at Mannheim Road and Lunt Avenue, north of the Northwest Tollway.

STEPHENS SAID there are current plans for 4,200 parking spaces at the stadium and there is additional space for another 700 to 800 parking spaces.

He added the village plans to double the size of its police force to handle stadium crowds. A brochure prepared by C. F. Murphy Associates, the architects for the $11.5 million facility, indicates the stadium will be used about 250 days each year.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Mannheim Road and Lee Street and that no access to Touhy Avenue is planned.

Rosemont officials have been trying to get a tollway interchange built at the stadium site to ease traffic flow. Stephens also indicated Rosemont plans to seek more than $1 million from the federal government to widen Higgins Road which runs just south of the stadium site.

The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

Burglars take tires out of railroad car

Burglars forced their way into a railroad car and stole an undetermined amount of auto tires owned by Kelly-Springfield Tire, 301 S. Third Ave., Des Plaines police said yesterday.

The car was left outside the company building when police said the burglars struck, probably Monday.

The break-in was discovered early yesterday, according to reports.

$150,000 fire in Elk Grove

by BOB GALLAS

Fire, apparently caused by an electrical short, completely destroyed a 100-year-old barn at Berthold's Nursery and Garden Center in Elk Grove Village last night.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out about 4:50 p.m. Owner Al Berthold tentatively set the damage at $150,000.

According to employees inside the building when the fire erupted, the fire was first noticed when lights in the two story building went out. Employees going to check found fire going up the wall of the boiler room near the electrical panel, according to Berthold.

"They (the employees) tried to put it out with fire extinguishers, but once it got going in that wooden building there was just no stopping it," said Berthold. The building was engulfed in flames by the time Elk Grove firemen arrived on the scene a few minutes after 5 p.m.

BERTHOLD SAID most of the loss would be in the contents of the building. About 15 employees had been inside, making up flower arrangements for Christmas when the fire broke out. Besides other flowers being prepared for delivery, Berthold said 2,000 poinsettias scheduled to go out over the next few days were destroyed.

Parks to offer new rec programs

Several new recreational programs for residents of Palatine Township will be offered beginning in January by the Salt Creek Park District.

A special five-month weekend pass good at the Arlington Park Towers indoor swimming pool and Health Club is available for families. Passes will be honored any Saturday or Sunday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Wednesdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Cost of the special pass is $7.50 for residents, $14 for nonresidents per family.

Plans for family tennis lessons at the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club are being prepared by the district. The lessons will start in January for beginners, advanced beginners and intermediates. Cost will be $28 for adults, and $22 for children for six one-hour lessons.

On Friday, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. family trampolining lessons will begin. Cost is $10 for any four-member family, with at least one adult.

For women in the district, a belly dancing class for beginners and intermediates will be offered starting Jan. 10. Residents may enroll for $6.50 and nonresidents for $8.50.

Lessons also will be available for children in tumbling and trampolining, dance, tennis, skiing and swimming beginning in January. The preschool classes held in the district also will accept new students in January.

For information on any program or to register for a class, call the district at 259-6890.

THE HUGE MASSES of fluffy white stuff that fell this week brought happiness as well as slippery streets. Youngsters cheerfully took to the outdoors, building gigantic snowmen or gleefully slinging snowballs at each other. Some, on the other hand, just stood and watched while snow fell and others played.

Schaumburg curbs youth liquor rights

by PAT GERLACH

Nineteen and 20-year-olds can't buy wine and beer where hard liquor is served in Schaumburg, village officials say.

Yes they can, argues a spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Liquor law revisions adopted in Schaumburg this week prohibit 19- and 20-year-olds from being served beer or wine in restaurants serving hard liquor.

But, the revisions are illegal, said Thomas Murphy of the ILCC.

"Our position is that the state law granting 19- and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allow them to buy these beverages wherever they are sold," he said.

THE SCHAUMBURG ordinance is an attempt to "deny rights granted by the state legislature," he added.

Even though Schaumburg is a home rule community, those powers do not permit a municipality to "deny rights allowed by the state," Murphy said.

Neither Jack Siegel, the village attorney, nor Mayor Robert O. Atcher were available for comment yesterday.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the ordinance will be enforced as part of regular spot checks the police department makes of liquor-serving establishments.

There will be a lot of self-policing by license holders too, Conroy said, adding, it was the people who hold full liquor licenses who wanted these restrictions.

The ordinance was written after a meeting of proprietors from businesses holding full liquor licenses.

THE UPDATED village ordinance allows 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase beer and wine in places where only those alcoholic beverages are sold as well as in package liquor stores. But persons under 21 cannot buy or drink beer or wine in establishments where hard liquor is served.

The law also prohibits persons under 21 from entering a tavern unless accompanied by a parent or other adult and does not allow them to purchase either beer or wine.

The ordinance, however, does not restrict those under 21 from entering restaurants or other businesses whose principal purpose is other than serving liquor.

Persons 19 and 20 years old will be able to serve all types of alcoholic beverages, it was added.

Burglars grab safe, stereo from rug mart

A safe and stereo set were reported stolen from the Value Rug Mart Inc., 600 Pratt Blvd., early Monday morning.

According to Elk Grove Village police, the building was broken into by cutting a padlock and kicking in a door. No value was reported for the stolen items.

Police said whoever broke into the building apparently knew where valuable items were stored.

Parks seek MSD, village help with flood problems

Hoffman Estates Park District officials will seek help from the village and the Metropolitan Sanitary District to alleviate the current flood situation at the water retention lake at High Point Park.

Tom Barber, park commissioner, said the recent heavy snow created a rush of water from storm sewers in the neighborhood, causing the water level in the lake to rise. Water from the lake has spilled over onto MacArthur School property, he said.

Barber said the problem was apparently caused by inadequate drainage. He added that the 18-inch pipes from the High Point Lake might have to be replaced by larger diameter pipes. The pipes run eastward and connect with drainage pipes from Highland Lake. The water then travels north to the Twin Lakes water retention area.

The park district has spent more than $90,000 to add black dirt and grade the High Point Lake area in an effort to prevent flooding, Barber added that the water went over a low portion of the lake's shore — which was state property and could not be raised by park district construction.

$2 million more for village in '74

Revenues to the Village of Schaumburg will increase more than $2 million during 1974, according to the budget adopted this week by the village board.

The 1974 budget estimates revenues at $7.5 million. Expenditures of $7.2 million are planned, a $2.2 million increase over 1973.

Largest sources of revenue are state sales tax receipts, and building and inspection fees, said Village Administrator John Coste.

Coste said the village has been alerted to expect an estimated federal revenue sharing allocation of $94,000.

In a finance committee report, Trustee Ray McArthur noted that 1973 income is now in excess of the original estimate of $5 million.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher said that the village always attempts to prepare an appropriation and budget which is less than actual revenues.

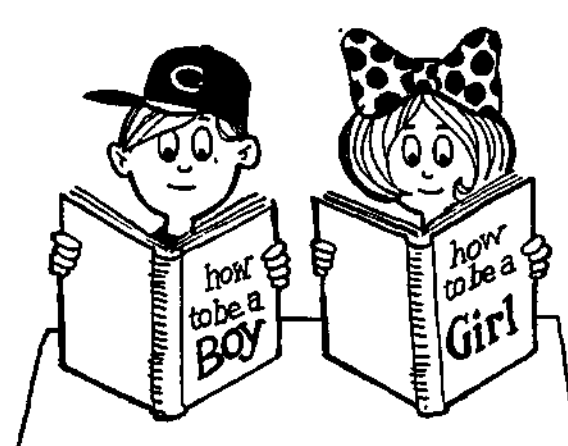

Two men bound over on robbery charges

Two Des Plaines men were bound over yesterday to the Cook County grand jury after appearing in Schaumburg Court on armed robbery charges that were filed in connection with the reported robbery of a youth at Woodfield Shopping Center.

Richard A. Banks, 21, of 1828 Webster, and David A. Bruno, 21, of 1830 Park, were still being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of bonds. Bond for Banks was $50,000, and for Bruno $20,000.

The Schaumburg youth was reportedly robbed of $43 in cash Dec. 11 in the shopping center parking lot by two men, one of whom brandished a pistol, police said.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel; or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

MEG arrests five here on drug charges

Five persons were arrested on various charges and a Mexican citizen taken into custody early yesterday morning after undercover police agents made an alleged drug buy at a Schaumburg apartment, police said.

The arrests were made about 1 a.m. by Schaumburg police and agents for the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. Some of the suspects were arrested in Village in the Park Apartments, and the rest in the parking lot after they reportedly tried to flee from the apartment complex, police reported.

Charged with conspiracy to deliver and delivery of cocaine were James Teschke, 32, Lake Village; Peter Worts, 27, Addison, and Alejandro Gonzalez, 27, Waukegan.

CURTIS Crowley, 28, of 1427 Valley Lake Dr., Apt. 1222, Schaumburg, was charged with conspiracy to deliver cocaine and possession of marijuana. The marijuana charge was filed in connection with about two pounds of a substance thought to be marijuana which was found in the apartment, authorities said.

Kathy Schug, 23, Verona, N. J., was charged with possession of stolen property. The charge stemmed from the discovery of a .22 caliber automatic pistol which was believed to have been stolen from Florida, police said.

The alien, Pablo Saga, was transferred to the custody of U. S. Immigration agents pending his return to Mexico.

Undercover agents went to the Crowley apartment after receiving information gathered in an investigation, police said. They allegedly bought four ounces of a powder thought to be cocaine at the apartment, police reported.

The agents announced their identity, and several persons fled from the apartment, authorities said. They attempted to escape by car, but it was surrounded by about a dozen MEG and Schaumburg agents, according to the police.

SEIZED ALONG with the drugs were two autos, the pistol and a .10 gauge shotgun, police said.

Schaumburg police participating in the arrests were Det. Frank Zajac, William Ostermann and Kenneth Alley.

The five persons appeared yesterday in the Elk Grove Village branch of the Circuit Court. Miss Schug posted 10 per cent of $2,000 bond. Teschke, Worts and Gonzalez were being held in Cook County Jail in lieu of $30,000 bond each. Crowley was also unable to post his $15,000 in bonds. No court date was immediately available.

Women's 'Lobbers' are big on hockey

by STIRLING MORITA

The red plastic hockey puck flew off a stick and past the slender, four-foot goalie wearing short shorts and knee-socks.

Slender? Four-foot? Short shorts? Knee-socks?

They're all a part of the Schaumburg Park District's popular, new girls' floor hockey program. Games often are high-scoring and resemble a sort of ordered chaos.

It's not another plot by the Women's Liberation movement, but rather an outlet for athletic, sixth-grade girls who like to swat a puck with a flexible plastic hockey stick. The girls' program was initiated this year because the boys' floor hockey program was so popular.

DURING THE LAST 10 weeks, about 50 energetic girls scuffed their tenues on school gym floors and hurriedly rushed up and down playing areas not only in search of fun, but the thrill of winning, of putting the elusive puck in the opposition's metallic net.

In the sixth-grade championship game, Hale and Collins schools battled for the team award — park district cloth patches. Hale kept its season unblemished by beating its opponent 14-10. The two opposing coaches called the game the best one of the season.

High-pitched squeals shot through the gym whenever a goal was scored, and afterward the scoring team ran to its side of the playing area, hands and sticks thrust high in the air.

The pace of the game was fast, and the flurry of the sticks so quick that at times it was difficult to determine who was to be credited with a goal. Body contact was limited, and two penalties came on high-sticking calls.

THE GAME DID not physically tire the 11- and 12-year-olds. It was played in three periods — each eight minutes long. The players magically found their teammates with passes although the uniforms were as varied as outfits at a teen dance.

Enthusiasm was high on both sides. An occasional graceful, backhand wrist shot into the net or an on-target, centering pass made some park district officials speculate that the girls were as good if not better than their male counterparts in the other program.

Seldom was a face-off called for an out-of-bounds puck as it was "live" throughout the game — players scrapping for the puck, forcing spectators to move.

COACH KANGAROO — Debbie Schueler — of the Hale six jumped and bounced on the sidelines on almost every play as her team slashed its way to victory.

"They put all the girls from the same school together, and I got a bunch that plays well," Coach Debbie said modestly.

High-scoring center Kim Wallner, 12, of the Hale squad said, "I like the sport. I've played it at home."

Skinny goalie Lee Ann Uhler, 11, was cat-like quick in turning aside enemy shots. Asked why she played a position commonly thought of being manned by chunky and big types, she said, "She (the coach) puts me there, I guess, because I'm good at it."

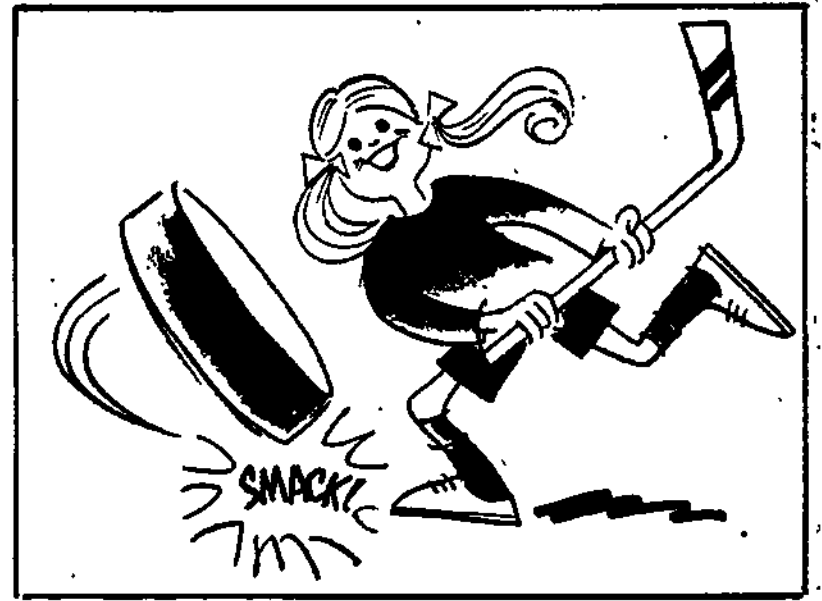

She added that she played because it was a good opportunity to get out of the house.

LISA BENSON, 11, said she participated because she just "like sports."

The Collins School coach Kathy Moffo said the girls learned good sportsmanship from the program. Her team had lost three games out of an 11-game season, but those three were to the Hale team.

Sharon Mattioli, park district recreation supervisor, said many of the girls had played together in the grade school gym classes.

"Girls are interested in floor hockey," she said. "But they never had a program before."

Letters, posters, petitions, and buttons

Hospital in major effort to build full interchange

Alexian Brothers Medical Center has begun distributing petitions, posters and buttons to gain support for its campaign to construct a full interchange at Blesterfield Road and Interstate 90.

Robin Leach, public relations director, said the hospital hopes to get 25,000 signatures on the petitions now circulating throughout the suburbs served by the hospital. She estimated the petitions would be circulating for about six weeks.

The hospital is also distributing about 1,000 posters and 5,000 buttons describing the interchange by saying, "It could be a matter of life or death."

PETITIONS HAVE been placed in village halls, shopping centers, doctors' offices, churches, the hospital emergency room and other public places.

When completed, the petitions will be sent to the state transportation department to strengthen the hospital's position that the full interchange is needed to provide service to the area.

Miss Leach said the hospital is also asking people to write letters to various state officials to express support for the interchange. She said the names and addresses of the officials are also being distributed.

The hospital has requested that the Illinois Department of Transportation take action to have the interchange built.

In addition to the petitions circulating among citizens, the hospital has asked for support from the governor, state legislators, municipal presidents, police and fire chiefs, ambulance companies, township supervisors and the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

ACCORDING TO hospital officials, the interchange is needed to provide quicker access to the hospital, especially from communities to the north, south and west.

In order to use I-90 to reach the hospital, a car or ambulance coming from the north must travel to the Thorndale Avenue exit and double back traveling an added 1½ miles.

The hospital also says the interchange will provide quicker access for physicians and other employees.

Elk Grove Village tried to get a full interchange at Blesterfield and I-90 two years ago. Gov. Richard Ogilvie rejected the request, saying it would not be in the best interests of motorists.

The village was advised by state officials that the distance between Blesterfield Road and the Thorndale exit was shorter than the federal safety standards required, although the distance between Blesterfield Road and Higgins Road exit was far enough to provide an exit for traffic coming from the north.

Seek new developers for two Schaumburg projects

New developers are being sought for two apartment developments in Schaumburg, village board members learned this week.

Trustees, because of the ownership shift, agreed to allow an additional six months for construction to begin at Laurelwood, a 23-acre threeplex development near Roselle and Wise roads.

Joe Ash, an attorney for Melvin Isenstein, the land owner, told the board that new financing for the project is being negotiated.

Ash said plans for ITI Realty and Funding Corp., a New York firm, may be finalized this week. This would be the first ITI venture in the Chicago area, he explained.

3-H Building Corp. originally planned to develop the 75-unit complex with construction to have begun by Dec. 19.

Ash noted that 3-H Building Corp. later lost interest in the project, forcing Isenstein to make new arrangements.

ASH ALSO represented Isenstein in a request that the village board waive common ownership requirements for Village-in-The-Park, a 69-acre apartment complex near Golf and Roselle roads.

He said the property was sold to Building Systems, Inc., a Cleveland development firm, on an installment purchase.

Though 45 acres of the land have been developed, BSI has defaulted on the remaining 25 acres, Ash said.

BSI is now in corporate reorganization and may be sold to a limited partnership, Ash added.

He stressed, however, that the project will be completed along lines of the original plan. Thus far 890 units have been built.

Trustees agreed to waive the common ownership requirement, but stipulated that each subsequent phase of the development be brought in for village board approval.

Village board wrapup

Howie documents to board tonight

The first in a series of legal documents making the settlement of the Howie-In-The-Hills suits in Hoffman Estates formal and final will be presented to the village board at a special meeting tonight.

The meeting was scheduled last week to permit the final vote on the annexation, zoning and height variation for the Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Assn. buildings at Gannon Drive and Higgins Road.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert informed the board Monday he also would present documents in the Howie settlement for approval. Howie-In-The-Hills is the former name of a 497-acre site north of the Northwest Tollroad in Palatine Township and along both sides of Palatine Road. It had been owned by City Savings Assn. of Chicago, which went bankrupt.

The bankruptcy involved the village in a series of lawsuits because of special assessment bonds the village had issued to pay for public improvements on the land.

In the settlement, the land was purchased from a federal receivership by Meridian Housing Corp., which now is seeking zoning from the village for 4,472 housing units in apartments, townhouses and single family homes.

More than half the units will be apartments, some in 6-story buildings and some over commercial buildings. Four hundred of the units are to be single family homes. Meridian has renamed the development Westbury.

Easement suit settled

The Hoffman Estates Village Board learned this week of the settlement of a lawsuit arising from unrecorded easements.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said four lots, including the easement, in the Highlands subdivision have been sold and the new owner is prepared to build on them. Buildings were planned over sewer and water mains, which now must be moved.

The village will pay $2,500 of the cost, while Bennington Corp., the purchaser, will pay $2,000. Citizens Utility, the former owner, will pay $4,500.

Variation denied

Trustees in Hoffman Estates this week denied a variation to permit Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Weiss Sr., 439 Chippendale Rd., to reduce the space between their property line and the front of their home to less than 20 feet.

They had hoped to add a work room to the front of their garage. Although the village ordinance requires a 30-foot space, variances have been granted in the past for as little as 25-foot setbacks. Village Atty. Edward Hofert said he believed the request was denied because of its precedent-setting potential.

Parks take step toward annexing

The Hoffman Estates Park Board of Commissioners has moved closer to annexing the planned 497-acre Westbury development to the park district.

The board Tuesday directed its attorney, Don Rose, to outline a procedure for connection with the area, which is along Palatine Road in Palatine Township and in the Palatine Rural Park District.

Tom Barber, park commissioner, said the board has written the (Palatine) district of annexation intentions, but that the Hoffman district has not received a reply.

About 17 acres of land were promised for parks and schools by the developer, Meridian Housing Corp., during zoning hearings for the development proposal.

Officials said they did not know if the Palatine district authorities would voluntarily allow annexation. Local voter approval is needed for annexation.

In other business, the park board:

- Directed Rose to draw up an ordinance for bonding and investment procedures for the treasurer.

- Voted to pay a $200 membership fee to the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission for planning services.

- Approved a $2,000 donation to the Hoffman Estates 4th of July Committee for fireworks.

- Accepted the resignation of Mike Quill as recreation program supervisor.

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Sup. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 30, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 96 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 26 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.
- Number of illustrations of males and females.
- Number of stories which depict children involved in actively play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.
- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.
- Are boys allowed to show emotion?
- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?
- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?
- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?
- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?
- Are babysitters depicted in stories?
- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

SCHAUMBURG TOWNSHIP business is now conducted from a 1,900-square-foot office suite in The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg. Township Clerk Kathleen Wojcik, left, and bookkeeper Sharon Kimble serve in the new facility which also houses offices for the assessor, collector and Committee on Youth.

Schaumburg Township boasts roomier offices

Roomier quarters now house the Schaumburg Township offices of the clerk, assessor and youth committee in The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

"We still don't have a township building, but this rented suite of offices is a far cry from the old days of operating in our homes," said Mrs. Kathleen Wojcik.

Mrs. Wojcik, clerk since 1968, reminisced about her first year in office, "when the only way persons could register to vote or contact the township was to call on me at home."

The township rented three small rooms in the front section of The Buttery in 1969 and business was conducted from then until July when a new wing was constructed and the township moved in.

The 1,900-square-foot suite boasts a large conference room where public meetings are held. There is also a storage room for records and office equipment. Offices for the clerk, assessor, collector and youth committee. A reception area and space for social workers and office clerks also are provided.

The offices are open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily except Wednesday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

The Committee on Youth operates a youth employment service from the conference room and the Salvation Army uses the clerk's office for counseling Schaumburg Township residents.

Orange shag carpeting is the only color accent in the airy white rooms with colonial windows. Mrs. Wojcik said the township officials pay $750 a month rent for the offices.

The local scene

Holiday closings

Hoffman Estates village employees will get a small time-off bonus for the Christmas holiday.

The municipal building will close at noon Christmas Eve and not reopen until 9 a.m. Dec. 26. Village employees will receive a 1½-day holiday in most departments.

Over the New Year's holiday, the municipal building will be closed on Jan. 1. Regular office hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. will be in effect Dec. 31.

Addressograph day

Jan. 4 has been designated Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. day in Schaumburg in line with village board action taken this week.

On that day the corporation will dedicate its $1 million corporate headquarters building on Algonquin Road in the Walden complex.

Robbery suspects bound to grand jury

Two Chicago men were bound over to the Cook County grand jury after appearing yesterday in the Schaumburg branch of the Circuit Court on attempted armed robbery charges.

Luke O'Banner Jr., 36, and Carl Scott, 25, were charged in connection with the reported armed robbery attempt Dec. 1, at the Sheraton Inn Walden Hotel, 1723 Skywater Dr., Schaumburg, police said.

A warrant had been issued for O'Banner's arrest, and he was picked up in Chicago, police reported. Scott had driven persons to visit O'Banner at the lockup, and police arrested him after an investigation because Scott matched a description furnished by witnesses, police said.

O'Banner was released after posting 10 per cent of $5,000 and Scott was freed on 10 per cent of a $7,000 bond.

Free horror movies

Free scary movies for school kids between six and 12 years old will be shown in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Dracula" will be screened at both performances in the basement theatre of the building, 32 Library Ln., Schaumburg. Tickets are not required.

"Born Free," a movie about lions will be shown at 10 a.m., 12:30 and 3 p.m., Dec. 26. Free tickets for the movie must be obtained in the Children's Department before the showing.

Auto sticker sales

Beginning Jan. 3 Schaumburg village offices will remain open from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday exclusively for the sale of vehicle stickers.

Thursday night hours will remain in effect until the Feb. 15 deadline for purchase of stickers.

Offices are located at 231 S. Civic Dr.

Temporary tennis club

Chicago Health and Tennis Clubs will operate in temporary Schaumburg facilities until a Meacham Road building is completed next fall.

Edmon Zistook, representing the club chain, received permission from the village board this week to open a trailer at the site next month.

Zistook said this is the first club to incorporate tennis facilities. He said memberships sold locally can be used in other clubs in the Chicago area until the Schaumburg club opens.

Weather permitting, ground will be broken March 10 for the building which is to be on the west side of Meacham Road between Woodfield Fire Station and American Savings and Loan Assn.

Ice skating lessons offered

Openings are still available for various ice-skating lessons conducted by the Hoffman Estates Park District.

The lessons will be held at Highpoint and Finger lakes. The fee for persons 6-to 12-year-old is $4, and for adults and 4-and 5-year olds, $5. The larger fee is because of a smaller class size.

Interested persons can register at the Village Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Skiing lessons

Registration for skiing lessons for the Schaumburg Park District will be conducted through Jan. 1.

The fee for the children and adult lessons is $35.

It was erroneously reported that registration for ice-skating lessons would end Jan. 1. The registration will be held during the week of Jan. 21.

For further information call the park district office at 394-4660.

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurl through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

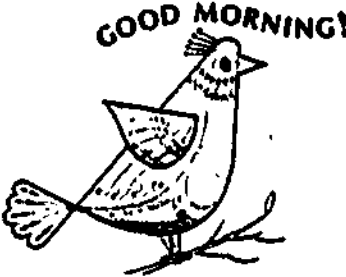

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1 1/2 inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Another snowfall yesterday, which greeted residents early in the morning with as much as four inches of fresh snow, caused additional jam-ups of traffic on roads already slick from previous snow and ice.

New language arts, math programs for area schools

by TOM VON MALDER

New language arts and mathematics programs will be introduced into Mount Prospect Dist. 57 schools next September.

Behind the impending change is a dissatisfaction among teachers, administrators and parents with the current programs. Assistant Supt. Dwight Hall said math computation skills among students "have slipped" and the current language arts program "isn't doing the job we want."

The relative lack of success in teaching math and language arts (which include spelling, word usage, punctuation and capitalization) became apparent in the results of the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills. The results of this battery of achievement tests were presented Monday to the school board.

THE TEST results showed that in the five basic skill areas Dist. 57 students scored anywhere from the top 12 per cent nationally to the top 28 per cent.

This can hardly be called lack of success, except that based on Dist. 57 students' IQ test results the students should have scored within the top 15 to 25 per cent.

Hall said the students — third, fifth and seventh graders tested last fall — showed greatest strength in vocabulary and work study skills. They were weakest in language arts. Hall added the results showed improvement would be desirable in the areas of math and reading.

The seventh grade students were within the expected percentiles except for mathematics, where they were below expectations. Fifth graders were above expectations in vocabulary and work study arts but below expectation in language arts.

Third graders were almost as low as fifth graders in language arts but they scored very high within the expected range in the other four areas. The composite score for third graders placed them in the top 16 per cent nationally.

Fifth graders had a composite score in the top 17 per cent and seventh graders had a composite score in the top 21 per cent.

THE IOWA TEST is an achievement test designed to measure growth, not ability, Hall explained.

The disappointing language arts scores apparently were not totally unexpected. Hall said that for the past year or so the district has had teachers supplement the basic language arts program to overcome deficiencies in the materials. A replacement program is being piloted in some classrooms and may be instituted in all schools next year, he said.

Also, the district is examining a number of new programs and language arts series. Similar action is being taken with regards to math programs.

HALL SAID a new math program will be selected for the junior high school students at least because the current books are falling apart. New programs stress basics more than theories, somewhat a reversal of the thinking used to promote the "new math," Hall said.

Any decisions on new programs will have to be voted on by the school board before they become a reality.

The Iowa Test scores will also be used to help set up remedial programs for individual students, Hall said. And can be used by school personnel to give guidance to both students and parents.

Village approves garbage contract; 17% fee hike

Mount Prospect village trustees this week gave the formal OK for a contract for scavenger services that boosts the cost of garbage pickup 17 per cent.

The rate will go from $3 a month per household to $3.55, largely because of increases in the cost of labor to the scavenger company, Browning-Ferris Industries of Illinois Inc., Barrington.

Garbage fees are not paid directly by Mount Prospect residents, but come out of municipal funds.

Two trustees, Richard N. Hendricks and George B. Anderson, initially objected to the new rate schedule, indicating they felt the cost of the labor increase should be added to labor costs that constitute the $3 base, rather than being levied against the $3 total.

Both trustees later joined the rest of the board members in voting for the contract, however, after Mayor Robert D. Teichert pointed out that the contractor had stated specifically in his bid that he would add labor costs to the total bid.

In accompanying changes to the village's refuse ordinance:

- Refuse cannot be placed at the curb for pickup more than six hours prior to the regular pickup day.

- Waste receptacles must be removed from parkways or alleys after collection, but on the same day collection is made.

$150,000 fire hits Elk Grove nursery

by BOB GALLAS

Fire, apparently caused by an electrical short, completely destroyed a 100-year-old barn at Berthold's Nursery and Garden Center in Elk Grove Village last night.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out about 4:50 p.m. Owner Al Berthold tentatively set the damage at $150,000.

According to employees inside the building when the fire erupted, the fire was first noticed when lights in the two story building went out. Employees going to check found fire going up the wall of the boiler room near the electrical panel, according to Berthold.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor; pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

Mayor raps 'low-ratio' police story

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert came to the defense of the village's police department Tuesday night, challenging a report that the village has a lower ratio of policemen to population than other Northwest suburbs.

Teichert described a Nov. 29 article in The Herald that compared the village's police manpower strength to that of other suburbs as "less than accurate in my judgment."

"The last consideration of a police department is the ratio of police officers to population," he said.

"I don't care if we stay at the bottom of the list for men per population, so long as we stay at the top of the list for the lowest crime rate."

According to the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission study last year, the crime rate in Mount Prospect was the fourth highest in the Northwest suburbs, behind Des Plaines, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling. The village was ranked 128th in the state in the crime index.

THE HERALD article had stated that Mount Prospect, with a population of 46,525, has 39 policemen, for a ratio of one officer per 1,193 persons. With an additional 15 policemen scheduled to be sworn in within a few weeks, the ratio would drop to one officer per 862 persons.

Nearby Arlington Heights has one officer per 961 persons, while Elk Grove Village has one officer per 431 persons.

Teichert compared the local situation to relative police strengths in Los Angeles and Chicago. Both cities are about the same size in population, he said, but Los Angeles has half as many policemen as Chicago. "I don't think anyone is going to say the L.A. police are only half as good as Chicago's," he said.

"I stand by a statement I've made before: The matter of department strength is a very insignificant factor in determining the capabilities of a police department."

Police suspension hearing rescheduled

The new date for the hearing on two Mount Prospect policemen's suspensions has been set for Jan. 16.

The case was continued this week because one of the policemen's attorneys could not make the scheduled date. The suspensions last month were given to Sgt. Gerald Glascock and Patrolman Eugene Hooten for alleged "conduct unbecoming an officer." The hearing will be before the board of fire and police commissioners.

The local scene

Teichert tabs brother

Kurt Teichert, of 600 N. Wille St., has been named to head an ad hoc committee to plan Mount Prospect's participation in the nationwide 1976 bicentennial celebration.

He is the brother of Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who commented in making the appointment, "I've been trying for many years to get him involved in something."

Other members of the committee are C. O. Schlaver, former mayor and executive director of the Chamber of Commerce; John Weber, who coordinated the village's 50th anniversary celebration; Harvey Nehmsow, 1002 Alder Ln.; and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley.

Appointments announced

Other appointments announced this week by Teichert: Joel J. Reznick, of 1818 Apache Ln., succeeding Dennis Kennedy on the board of local improvements; and Patricia Sramek, 716 Holly Ct., filling a vacancy on the community services and mental health commission.

Santa Claus to be in town today

Santa Claus will put in a special appearance today at the Mount Prospect Park District office in the Lions Park Recreation Center.

Santa will be on hand from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. at the park, 411 S. Maple St.

Yule chestnuts to be roasted

The aroma of chestnuts roasting on an open fire will drift through downtown Mount Prospect on Christmas Eve.

A local merchant, Louis Velasco, of Louie's Barber Shop, will sponsor a chestnut roasting in front of his shop at 9 E. Prospect Ave. between 1 and 6 p.m.

Carolers are also expected to participate.

"When I was on the chamber of commerce board we were trying to think of something to do for downtown Mount Prospect for Christmas," Velasco said. "I had this thought in the back of my head, but never did it because I always had to work on Christmas Eve."

Because the barber shop is closed on Mondays, Velasco won't have to work the 24th and decided "to lend a little atmosphere to the town."

He has ordered 20 pounds of chestnuts, which will be available to residents at five cents each or six for a quarter.

Ken Hamann and Ed Gary will assist in the roasting.

Village donates $2,500 in utility rate fight

Mount Prospect village trustees this week appropriated up to $2,500 for expert testimony in the effort by residents of the New Town area to fight a proposed rate increase by Citizens Utilities Co. The village earlier appropriated $2,500 for lawyers' fees.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Beu, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Sluss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Sluss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Beu said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Sluss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Beu said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Beu said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Beu that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 96 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 28 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.

- Number of illustrations of males and females.

- Number of stories which depict children involved in activity play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.

- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.

- Are boys allowed to show emotion?

- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?

- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?

- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?

- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?

- Are babysitters depicted in stories?

- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

More snow, lower temperatures to blanket suburbs today

by BETTY LEE

A white Christmas is predicted as more snow is expected to hurt through the Northwest suburbs today along with freezing temperatures to linger until the holiday.

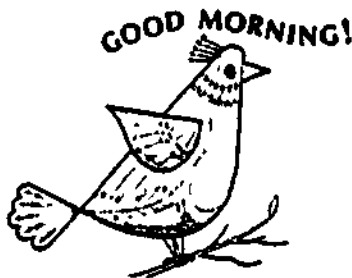

Occasional light snow and snow flurries are expected today, adding to the nine inches of snow and ice already packed on the ground. The high today will be in the 20s, according to the National Weather Service.

Residents should also prepare for a jolt tomorrow morning as temperatures will dip to a low of nine degrees. However, the sun should come out and warm the weather up to a high in the 20s by the afternoon.

Since the first snowfall last Thursday, more than 17 inches of snow have fallen in the Northwest suburban area. While 1 1/2 inches of snow drifted into the Loop area in Chicago Thursday, four inches of snow whipped into the Northwest suburbs, causing schools to close down, snarling traffic and snapping power lines.

Project won't be ready by fall: schools

Snow delays construction of junior high additions

The onslaught of heavy snows has slowed construction on the new additions to the three junior high schools in Dist. 21. School officials predict the entire project will not be completed by next fall as originally planned.

The $1.8 million additions are to provide extra classrooms besides accommodating new vocational education programs at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said workmen were able to install the foundations for the additions before the snows came last week, but further progress this winter will depend on the weather.

"We'll keep going, but if we continue to have storms like this, we won't be able to make it," Gill said.

A PRIORITY has been placed on completing the addition to Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove first because the new classrooms will be needed in September. The building is operating at near capacity now.

Plans for the new vocational arts program have not yet been finalized, but the superintendent said a coeducational curriculum is being studied.

Courses will be probably be offered, he said, to acquaint girls with carpentry skills needed around a home and cooking classes for boys likely will be available.

"We'll probably set it up to give students exposure to general home arts the first year and offer specialized courses the second year," Gill said.

The Watson Construction Co. began work on the additions the first of November.

THE NEW facilities are being financed with funds remaining from the 1970 Dist. 21 referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools, both completed this year, and to construct the vocational education wings at the junior high schools.

Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated to the district by builders, about $300,000 in referendum funds remain unused.

The special education monies may be used for the junior high additions because the new wings will include some classrooms for special education students.

SLEIGH BELLS are ringing in Arlington Heights, as the Jaycees make Santa phone calls. Here Douglas Nelson acts as Santa's representative to children.

Police press cager uniform theft

Police are hoping for a fast break, but meanwhile are pressing the investigation into the theft of five varsity basketball uniforms from Arlington High School.

George Zigman, basketball coach, Arlington High School reported to police someone entered the school's athletic equipment room and made off with five complete basketball uniforms.

Zigman said the haul included red warmup jackets, blue jerseys and matching shorts. All the items were emblazoned with "Arlington." The value of the uniforms was placed at $250.

Sexist texts?

A muscular boy is an athlete,
A modern one is really a groove.
A sports-minded girl is a tomboy,
For just what is she trying to prove?
A boy sheds a tear, he's a sissy,
And if he's a bit skinny, he's a fruit.
A girl who cries is just sensitive,
And if she's petite, she's cute.
An outgoing girl is obnoxious,
A boy is the "life of the party."
A "straight A" male is intelligent,
A girl is a bookworm, a smarty.
If a boy and girl act identically, their actions exactly the same,
One of them will take the credit,
While the other is stuck with the blame.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

by JILL BETTNER

Sweet little Susie, dolly in hand, her roughneck brother, Billy, the baseball star and Mommy, with her milk and cookies, are the targets of feminists across the country who say it's time to start telling it like it is in school textbooks.

It's the sex role assignments in educational materials they abhor, pointing out that Susie could just as well be the baseball star and it's not Mommy who does out the after school snacks in some families, but Daddy instead.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) has groups in practically every state who are making a concerted effort to obtain textbooks for children that accurately reflect the wide variety of current lifestyles.

One of the first steps in that process is to appeal to school boards to adopt a policy saying they will not allow the use of materials that reflect discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in the curriculum.

THE FIRST STEP taken locally was by two Arlington Heights women last week who called on the Dist. 21 school board to include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

One of the authors of the suggested policy is Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, a member of the NOW state education committee. The state committee is seeking similar policy adoptions in all Illinois public school districts.

MRS. KELLER, along with her collaborator on the policy, Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said the request was made of Dist. 21 because both women have children in local schools.

"We are not pointing an accusing, evil finger at Dist. 21 or the Dist. 21 school board," Mrs. Keller said. "The board

Problems of seniors to be surveyed

A questionnaire to determine the problems of 4,500 senior citizens in Arlington Heights will be published in the January village newsletter.

The Arlington Heights Senior Citizens Commission drafted the questionnaire to find what services the elderly population need and what problems they have living in the community.

The newsletter, which is circulated to approximately 18,000 households, will contain a business reply card that can be readily returned to village officials. "Hopefully we will get about 10 to 12 percent or about 500 questionnaires back," said John Gianopoulos, chairman of the senior citizens commission.

Of the 500 questionnaires that are expected to be returned, 100 persons will be randomly selected for personal interviews. "The samples will be a good cross stratification of senior citizens with varied incomes," said Gianopoulos, adding that the interviews will probably begin in March.

THE COMMISSION will ask various civic organizations to volunteer in conducting the interviews.

Following the interviews, the commission will hold a public hearing so senior citizens can air their opinions.

The Senior Citizens Commission, in a meeting this week, voted to work together with the village's Housing Commission and the Arlington Heights Park District to further expand the benefits for the elderly.

"The Housing Commission is interested in the results of our study so it can use the information for low-cost housing for the elderly," said Gianopoulos. "They (officials) need the input for persons of the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. And we must work together with the park district because citizens should be aware that there are programs available to them."

The newly-formed senior citizens commission met for the first time last month. The purpose of the commission is "to promote the needs and concerns for senior citizens." Members are to investigate specifically the areas of housing, employment, education, physical and mental health, income, nutrition, legal aid and transportation.

New sorority officers

Two Arlington Heights students at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, have been elected officers of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Carol Lynne Holm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Holm, has been elected journal correspondent for a one year term. She is a junior majoring in special education.

Laura Lee Behrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Behrens has been elected social chairman, also for a year term. Miss Behrens is a sophomore majoring in journalism.

New sports stadium plans to be aired

Des Plaines officials plan to take Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens up on his offer to meet and explain plans for a proposed stadium that will be built there.

The meeting will probably take place after the first of the year and after Des Plaines officials complete their research into the impact the 18,000-seat stadium will have on the southeast section of the city. The stadium will house the Chicago Cougars hockey team.

Stephens' offer came after several Des Plaines officials had plans to build the stadium for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

NEIL SAID there are current plans for 4,200 parking spaces at the stadium and there is additional space for another 700 to 800 parking spaces.

He added the village plans to double the size of its police force to handle stadium crowds. A brochure prepared by C. F. Murphy Associates, the architects for the $11.5 million facility, indicates the stadium will be used about 250 days each year.

Stephens said possible flooding problems would be eased by the creation of a 20-acre reservoir that will be constructed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District near the O'Hare Inn hotel.

MSD Chief Engineer Forest Neil said the district has had plans to build the reservoir for a number of years, but is waiting to complete land acquisition. Neil said the project involves land belonging to Chicago and the Illinois State Tollway Highway Authority.

Neil could not predict if the reservoir would be completed by the time construction starts on the stadium.

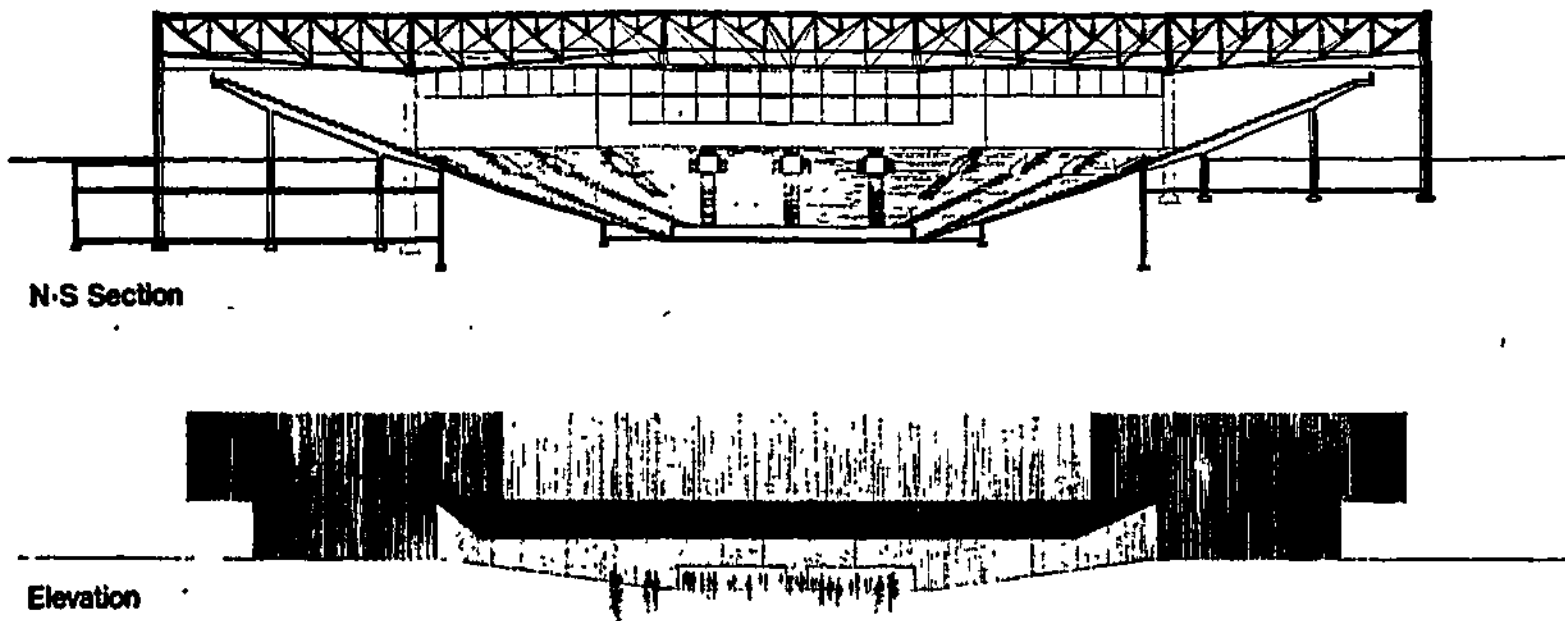

STEPHENS SAID the state plans to dredge the Willow-Higgins Creek which runs adjacent to the stadium site. He said additional flood control would be provided by using the parking lot as a retention basin.

Besides beefing up the police force, Stephens said traffic will be routed on Mannheim Road and Lee Street and that no access to Touhy Avenue is planned.

Rosemont officials have been trying to get a tollway interchange built at the stadium site to ease traffic flow. Stephens also indicated Rosemont plans to seek more than $1 million from the federal government to widen Higgins Road which runs just south of the stadium site.

The mayor said Rosemont plans to seek approval from the Federal Aviation Administration for the facility. He noted that the building will be about 50 feet high and the FAA allows buildings as tall as 63 feet tall in the area.

In addition to housing the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Assn., there have been plans to hold concerts and conventions in the stadium.

Feminist target: sex stereotypes

shouldn't feel it's their fault, but we just want to raise their consciousness of what the sexist textbooks are doing to children's goal setting and the images they're developing of themselves.

"The school board of Dist. 21 or any other school district can't be blamed for approving discriminating or sexist materials," Mrs. Keller said, because that's all that is available from textbook publishers at the moment.

Marjorie Bau, Dist. 21 curriculum director, confirmed that assertion, saying, "Yes, some of our textbooks have sexist stories, but there's nothing else on the market to buy."

DIST. 21 ADOPTED three new reading series this year, each one is used by different buildings in the district. They are the Houghton-Mifflin series, Scott Foresman Systems and a program published by the Economy Company.

Mrs. Keller said she considers a sampling of books used at one Dist. 21 school to be on a par with texts used nationwide. NOW groups in several states have conducted studies of educational materials which she used as a basis of comparison for her evaluation.

Although Mrs. Keller said feminists are interested in changing much more than school textbooks, they believe it is necessary to start with them.

"I see textbooks as a vehicle for raising awareness," she said. "It's vitally important to look at textbooks first — the publishers are the ones who pass the buck to the curriculum selection committees."

According to one school book publisher, Ray Suss, of Harper and Row in Evanston, societal attitudes about traditional sex roles have changed too fast for textbook publishers to keep pace.

"PUBLISHERS HAVE been very concerned about this since the 'Women's Lib' movement began about three years ago, but our problem is time," Suss said. "It takes two to three years authors to prepare materials, have them published and adopted by a school district."

Besides the publisher's time lag, most school districts cannot afford to adopt new texts more often than about every five years. Dist. 21 usually uses the same textbooks for that long, making it impossible for school officials there to comply with the requested policy, Miss Bau said.

"Moneywise, it's just impractical to adopt texts more often," she said. "We're talking about thousands of dollars."

Suss said he thinks writing entirely non-sexist textbooks may be an impossible task for any publisher.

"I'M SURE WE'LL be damned if we do and damned if we don't," he said. "No matter what non-sexist situations are portrayed, somebody won't be happy."

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he is in sympathy with the feelings expressed by Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Hays. Gill is currently working with the two women to revise their recommended policy to perhaps come up with a statement of practice that the district can realistically follow.

Miss Bau said plans are to conduct in-service programs for teachers "to make them aware of the problem." That's about all that can be done at the moment, she said.

Some textbook publishers are putting out revised teacher manuals suggesting different ways of interpreting stories to rid them of sexist connotations, but Miss Bau said the new manuals are "not that available" and currently are not in use in the district.

Reaction to the policy suggested for adoption in Dist. 21 from other school officials in the Northwest suburbs has been varied.

IRWIN STEVENSON, assistant superintendent for curriculum in Elk Grove Township, Dist. 59, said he doubted that most persons, particularly women, want to see much redefinition of roles in textbooks. He feels books used in that district, which includes the Houghton-Mifflin reading series, are not sexist and do not define clear-cut roles for characters.

Dwight Hall, Mount Prospect Dist. 67 assistant superintendent, agreed with Miss Bau that consideration of sexist elements in school textbooks should be just one criteria for selecting curriculum materials.

"When we look at new material, we try to choose that which is as realistic as possible," Hall said. He added that making sure the material reflects current attitudes by and toward women would be one criteria, as long as it did not hurt other criteria.

No other area school districts surrounding Dist. 21 have been contacted about adopting non-sexist policies.

Officials in Arlington Heights School Dist. 15, Dist. 25, Schaumburg School Dist. 54, Buffalo Grove-Long Grove School Dist. 86 and Mount Prospect districts 23 and 26 said they have not been approached by anyone concerned about the use of sexist materials.

Checklist measures amount of sexism

Committees of the National Organization of Women (NOW) are using the following checklist to review the kinds of sexism and role stereotyping in public school textbooks.

The checklist was developed by a group of New Jersey women called Women on Words and Images. Members also authored "Dick and Jane as Victims," a book which points out sex stereotypes in children's readers.

Parents interested in using the checklist to make an informal evaluation of the textbooks being used by their children in local schools may want to go through the books, answering questions raised by the checklist.

- Number of stories in which the main character is male or female.
- Number of illustrations of males and females.
- Number of stories which depict children involved in activity play; showing initiative and independence; solving problems; earning money; receiving recognition; involved in sports; being passive; being fearful; being helpless; receiving help; in quiet play.
- Number of stories which portray adults in different occupations; playing with children; taking children on outings; teaching skills; giving tenderness; scolding children.
- Are boys allowed to show emotion?
- Are girls rewarded for intelligence rather than beauty?
- Are derogatory comments directed at girls in general?
- Is mother shown working outside the home either for pay or at an unpaid job?
- Are there stories about one-parent families and families without children?
- Are babysitters depicted in stories?
- Are minority groups treated naturally and without stereotyping?

Schaumburg decision questioned

New law limits youth liquor rights

by PAT GERLACH

Nineteen and 20-year-olds can't buy wine and beer where hard liquor is served in Schaumburg, village officials say.

Yes they can, argues a spokesman for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Liquor law revisions adopted in Schaumburg this week prohibit 19- and 20-year-olds from being served beer or wine in restaurants serving hard liquor.

But, the revisions are illegal, said Thomas Murphy of the ILCC.

"Our position is that the state law granting 19- and 20-year-olds drinking privileges, coupled with the existing civil rights bill, allow them to buy these beverages wherever they are sold," he said.

THE SCHAUMBURG ordinance is an attempt to "deny rights granted by the state legislature," he added.

Even though Schaumburg is a home rule community, those powers do not permit a municipality to "deny rights allowed by the state," Murphy said.

Neither Jack Siegel, the village attorney, nor Mayor Robert O. Atcher were available for comment yesterday.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the ordinance will be enforced as part of regular spot checks the police department makes of liquor-serving establishments. There will be a lot of self-policing by license holders too, Conroy said, adding, it was the people who hold full liquor licenses who wanted these restrictions.

The ordinance was written after a meeting of proprietors from businesses holding full liquor licenses.

THE UPDATED village ordinance allows 19- and 20-year-olds to purchase beer and wine in places where only those alcoholic beverages are sold as well as in package liquor stores. But persons under 21 cannot buy or drink beer or wine in establishments where hard liquor is served.

The law also prohibits persons under 21 from entering a tavern unless accompanied by a parent or other adult and does not allow them to purchase either beer or wine.

The ordinance, however, does not restrict those under 21 from entering restaurants or other businesses whose principal purpose is other than serving liquor.

Persons 18 and 20 years old will be able to serve all types of alcoholic beverages, it was added.

Volunteer aides racking up man-hours

Parents in School Dist. 21 are donating hundreds of hours of their time each week to work regularly as volunteer helpers in local schools.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

A recent survey shows volunteers put in an average of 1,158 hours per week. They serve as classroom aides, library helpers, room mothers, "motor moms," "picture ladies," learning center aides and perform a variety of other tasks in the schools.

The greatest amount of regular volunteer hours is put in by parents of children at Poe School in Arlington Heights, Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove and Kilmer School, also in Buffalo Grove. Volunteers at these schools all work an average of over 100 hours per week.

Volunteer participation at other schools in the district is also high except at Holmes and London junior high schools.

OVERALL, DIST 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he believes that the number of volunteers working at buildings is "tremendously large" for a school district the size of Dist. 21.

Commenting on the parent service to the schools, Gill said, "I guess they're just nice people who really want to make a contribution to the community and the school district. They are very generous with their time and most of them are very very competent."

Gill stressed that the recent survey of volunteer hours contributed to the district does not include the great amount of time and effort donated by local PTA and PTO groups.

Actually, the superintendent said, the organized volunteer program began with the efforts of members of parent-teacher organizations.

The organized volunteer program was set up with a half-time paid volunteer coordinator about five years ago. Prior to that, Gill said, PTA and PTO members served in the schools and coordinated activities without pay.
